

FRAGMENTS.

The circus comes on Wednesday and Thursday next week. A DARK iron-gray stallion has strayed and $5 reward for its recovery is offered. See advt. The National base ball club will play a friendly game with the Utah Central nine on Tuesday next. A SHAWL was found in front of this office to-day. The owner can have her property by calling for it. The free entertainment in the Ninth ward last evening passed off pleasantly, and was a decided success. HON. JOSEPH A. WEST is down on a brief business trip from the Capital of Weber County. He is looking and feeling well. The members of the 20th Ward dramatic club, who have been cast for the "Fruits of the Wine Cup," will meet for rehearsal at 8 o'clock to-morrow evening. No abatement in the warmth of yesterday, but the nights are delightfully cool, so that what is lost by fatigues when the sun shines can be retrieved when it don't. HARRY TAYLOR, the well-known local actor, has received an offer for engagement with Manager McGuire at Helena, Montana. He will doubtless accept it. Harry is a good actor in his lines. DUCKS are already coming into town the game law limitation having expired at midnight. It is tolerably certain, however, that a good many did not seek the hour's grace which the law gives, and that there were a good many "dead ducks" before the law itself was fairly dead. THE San Francisco delegation of Knights Templars are expected to pass through Ogden to-morrow morning, en route to the grand convocation in St. Louis. H. A. Clawson, of the Union Depot Hotel, Ogden, has made elaborate preparations for the reception of the party.

LOCAL NEWS.

Father vs Son.—This afternoon sentence was pronounced by Justice Pifer on Alexander Brown, who had been arrested yesterday on a complaint filed by his father, William Brown, charging assault. The old gentleman is quite eccentric, and doctor some trouble between him and his son, the latter shook him. The charge of assault was sustained, and the sentence was a fine of $15. Sealed Instructions.—The success of the Madison Square company has induced the management to extend the engagement one more night, so as to present the piece of "Sealed Instructions," an original American drama by J. C. Verplanck, in which the following favorites will appear: Messrs. Stoddard, Kelcey, Lemoine, Massen, Holland and others; among the ladies, Misses Hill, Hill, Hudson, Busch and Robson. This piece had a long run in several Eastern cities, and is unquestionably a strong attraction.

RECEPTION TO HON. MERRISON E. WAITE.

GOVERNOR WEST INVITES THE BAR ASSOCIATION TO MEET HIM. One of the most agreeable affairs of the kind that has taken place in this city for many years, was the reception given to-day in honor of Hon. Merrison E. Waite, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, by Governor C. W. West, at the Executive Mansion. The hour set for the gathering was half-past eleven o'clock, and at about that time a body of attorneys, embracing almost the entire bar of this city, left the Federal Court House, and walked in formal procession to the Executive Mansion. Arrived there they were ushered into an apartment, near the entrance to which stood Governor West and Secretary Thomas, who received with a cordiality which was the opposite of stiff or formal the gentlemen who filed into the room. Justice Waite had not yet arrived, and it was stated that he was in company with ex-Governor R. H. Murray, and would be present in a few minutes. The gentlemen of the bar stood about the room, engaged in pleasant and cheerful conversation, and Governor West was a model of what a host should be under the circumstances, though he was quite indisposed and suffering from a sore throat. Soon ex-Governor Murray arrived, conducting Chief Justice Waite, who was greeted cordially by Governor West and Secretary Thomas. Governor West led the Chief Justice around the room, introducing him to each gentleman present. The exceedingly affable, cheerful and informal manner of the distinguished guest at once set every one present at perfect ease. As he grasped the hand of one after another he would make a remark in a familiar and often jocular vein. The Chief Justice was personally acquainted with a number of the attorneys present, and engaged several of them in conversation. The ceremony of introduction being over Governor West suggested that the company "join us" in an apartment across the hall, to which he led the way. At this juncture Captain Powell, Captain Burdick, Lieutenant Wagner, Lieutenant Bush and Chaplain Jackson arrived from Fort Douglas, and were introduced to the Chief Justice. Refreshments were dispensed, and the company indulged in an animated conversation for an hour or so when it began to disperse. Judge C. S. Sans, of this District, and Judge H. P. Henderson, of the First District were present, and the large attendance of members of the bar testified of the interest generally felt in the visit to their midst of so distinguished a personage as Chief Justice Waite. The honored guest of the occasion expressed the intention to leave the city tomorrow, and this afternoon he had arranged to visit Fort Douglas. He left his home in Ohio on July 1st, since which time he has traveled about 12,000 miles, having visited Alaska as well as various portions of the United States. Immediately after the reception was concluded, the Chief Justice and his daughter, who accompanied him, were taken in a carriage around the most important points of the city by Hon.

"JIM THE PENMAN."

SUCCESSFUL PRODUCTION OF A NEW AND EXCELLENT DRAMA.

The first presentation here of "Jim the Penman"—and, by the way, its third performance in the United States—brought to the Theatre last evening a large and appreciative audience, the parquette being crowded and the upper departments well represented. The piece deserves more than a passing notice for the reason of its being almost entirely new, but to do full justice would require more space than we can spare to-day. From first to last it is full of interest; the events are not on the whole essentially sensational, but while being altogether natural and probable are so worked up and combined as to create a fixed and even at times intense interest, and hold the attention of the audience throughout. In early life, "Ralston" (Jim the Penman) has estranged two lovers, represented by Herbert Kelcey and Caroline Hill (the latter's first appearance here) by means of his remarkable skill in imitating others' voices, changing each a letter of declination at the other's hand; and having been second on the list in the girl's preferences, marries her himself. By this union, two children, a son and daughter, (a young man and woman respectively) when the play comes to its end, are left in the hands of a clever confederate ("Baron Hartfield," Mr. Le Moine), who manipulates and manages while the Penman does the designing and draughting of instruments, and acquires an immense fortune; but the Baron will not let him withdraw from the field of infamy, as he desires to do, until one more scheme, involving the procurement from the bank, where they have been placed for safe keeping, of diamonds belonging to "Jim's" daughter's lover, of the value of $20,000, is consummated, by consent with the understanding that this is to be the last job; the order is drawn and the jewels obtained; the alarm is at once given, and a large reward offered for their return. Meantime a detective (Mr. Holland) who stimulates stupidity so naturally that nobody suspects him, is quietly but effectively tracing up "Ralston's" forgeries. He succeeds at last and recovers the diamonds also. "Mrs. Ralston" and her old lover, in the course of a conversation, reveal to each other the cause of their original separation, each being the other's supposed letter, they are shown, and then the unraveling begins. The wife, while looking in her photograph album, sees her own name written by her husband some time before, and while musing on the exactness with which her own hand is duplicated, the truth slowly but with irresistible force dawns upon her. A terrific and powerfully portrayed scene between herself and her husband follows, in which the acting of Miss Hill fairly gathered the honors of the evening, and showed, even if anything else were wanting, that as an emotional actress, she outclasses the majority and stands almost if not quite alone in most prominent respects. The husband dies of heart disease, his jewels are restored, the Baron is apprehended by the detective, and the curtain falls upon a somewhat gloomy denouement, one not at all in the nature of a climax or in keeping with a play so interesting and skillfully drawn. The acting was superb throughout, that of Miss Hill, Messrs. Kelcey, Le Moine and Holland deserving special mention. The "Baron" of Mr. Le Moine, in make up, dialect and impersonation, was undoubtedly one of the finest things of the kind ever done here, and on the male side we think he is fairly entitled to be awarded the palm. To-night, "Our Society" will be given, and to-morrow night "Sealed Instructions" will be given, which closes the engagement.

CITY COUNCIL.

The City Council met in regular session at 7 o'clock last evening, Mayor Armstrong presiding.

W. H. Hancock, general superintendent of the D. & R. G. W., said that since the removal of Officer Calder from their department had a great deal of trouble with hotel runners and back drivers. He suggested that an ordinance restricting these parties be framed, and tendered his advice in the matter to the committee who might have the matter in hand. A member asked whether there was no policeman at that depot now, and the Mayor said yes, but there had been a great deal of trouble with the beats. The petition was referred to the Mayor. The Mayor asked to be given charge of the Warm Springs at a salary of $125 per month. Referred to the committee on public grounds. Four retail liquor licenses were granted. Mr. Scheimerding submitted a report of the stray pound for the three months ending August 31st. The committee on police reported that they had examined and found correct the Marshall's report for August; the same committee reported similarly on the Police Justice's statement for the same term. The committee on irrigation reported adversely on the petition of Richard Brown for a water right to draw water from the Red Butte ditch to his residence. Adopted. The committee on streets and alleys reported favorably on the petition of Mr. Ellerbeck and others asking that the head of East Temple Street be paved and the large culvert under it up—the work to be done as soon as the force at the command of the Street Supervisor and his other work would allow. Adopted. The same committee reported that they had examined and found correct the Street Supervisor's reports for the quarters ending May 31st, and August 31st. The committee to whom had been referred the petition of Richard Brown asking that the old canal on Sixth Street be filled up, recommended that the work be done when the water pipe extension is made on that street. Adopted. The sum of $500 was appropriated to the Marshall's contract, each being $250,000 dollars was also appropriated for the water right. The Council then adjourned for one week. Immediately after the adjournment the City Council held its final meeting as a Board of Equalization, to listen to the statements of the Auditor and Assessor. The following was submitted: Total assessed valuation of city property, $10,000,000.00. Reductions by the Board, 25,000.00. Net valuation, $9,975,000.00. Amount of tax to be realized at 5 mills on the dollar, $49,875.00. Less amount of taxes remitted by the Board, 1,300.00. Net amount of tax for the year, $48,575.00. The reports were approved and the list handed to the Assessor and Collector for collection, after which the Board adjourned sine die. Benefit Performance.—Some charitably-disposed individuals have in hand the matter of a theatrical benefit for the Orphans' Home in this city. To this end they propose to have something in the way of a novelty, the parts, except perhaps the lead, being ones, being in the hands of people who never appear on the stage. An experienced man will have charge of the details, select the pieces and cast the players, and those who are assigned places are expected to respond, whether they feel themselves competent or not. The price of admission will be made very low, with the privilege to the purchaser of reserving seats and paying whatever he pleases extra.

A Terrible Fall.—The Butte Miner

Yesterday morning James Hobbs, a 17 year old son of the late John Hobbs, met with an accident in which he lost his life. The deceased was employed by the Alice mine, as a tool-carrier on the 200-foot level. He had carried some tools into the north level of the drift shaft, and returned to the shaft. At the south side of the shaft is a railing to prevent any one from walking into the shaft, and it is supposed that in trying to get under the railing he must have struck against the same and lost his footing; for at that point Mr. Medina the station man saw him disappear. Mr. Medina gave the alarm upon examination it was found that young Hobbs had fallen a distance of 200 feet falling into a sum of water. The place where he fell was a few minutes before the poor fellow was picked up in a shapeless mass, the head being severed from the body.

Singular Co-incident.—The Butte Miner

of September 9th, contains the following: "Excelsior Geyser, in the Yellowstone Park, is the most powerful geyser in the world. It is somewhere in the neighborhood of 80 feet in diameter, and from its immense crater are bubbling scalding waters throw off great clouds of steam which cover the hills in the neighborhood, and the locality in which it is situated, with a noise, resembling the roar of a cyclone, and the water is constantly ascending until lost in the heavens above. During the past four years it has remained in the same position, and throwing no water above its monstrous jaws. But about the time of the Charleston earthquake, the geyser became disturbed, and when the unfortunate southern city was being shaken from center to circumference, the whole country more or less disturbed, the immense geyser belched forth for 24 hours a column of water 200 feet in circumference and sent it the same distance in the air. Whether the events had any connection with each other is left to scientists to determine. We have simply recorded the event as it occurred."

ONE DAY LAST WEEK A MAN ENTERED

Thatcher Bros. & Co.'s bank, Logan, and asked if he could borrow $100 with the endorsement of Mr. Robert Reeder of Hyde Park, and was answered affirmatively. A note was filled out by the cashier, to which the stranger signed his name as W. H. Winters. He then took the note away ostensibly for the purpose of obtaining Mr. Reeder's signature to it, and subsequently brought it back bearing his name. The cashier suspected a forgery, and his suspicions were confirmed by communicating with Mr. Reeder, who knew nothing of the note.
