SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

District Court-Desperate Italian Lover Shoots at Married Woman Who Spurned His Attentions.

James Morielli, an Italian laborer, was placed under arrest yesterday afternoon by Constable John Morris of Marriotts, Weber county, and a complaint charging him with assault with a deadly weapon has been preferred against him.

Morielli had become infatuated with a married woman named Mary Maera who resides on West Seventeenth street. He had been paying some attention to her, which she refused to reciprocate and would have nothing to do with him. He called at the Maera house several times and implored the woman to desert her home, husband and children and elope with him. She also refused all of his temptations and demanded that he leave her alone, Thursday evening he called at the woman's house and renewed his emplorings to run away with him, which she absolutely ignored and started up the street away from him with her little babe in her arms. He followed her for a distance, and becoming angered at Mrs. Maera's refusal to have anything to do with him, he pulled out his revolver, and leveling it on one hand, fired several shots at her and the child, each one going astray. The frenzied woman ran into a house, thereby es-caping almost certain death at his hands. He followed her to the door, but realizing she had escaped with her child he left, only to return again yes-terday afternoon. The frightened woman had gone down to Marriotts, to which settlement he followed her and again renewed his desires, but Mrs. red several tet her from Morelill, whom she de-cared would kill her. Constable Morris was sent for and placed him under arrest and brought him to the county jall where he was put into a cell and he will be put in safe keeping for some time for his murderous assault.

An evening session was held at 8 o'clock, at which papers on Sunday school topics were read by Nettie Herrick and Minnie Brown, and Prof. Jo-seph Ballantyne gave a talk on mu-sical exercises in the departments. A number of musical selections were rendered at the evening session.
