

FISHING SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

Not Likely That Many Isaac Waltons Will be on the Streams.

WATER IS HIGH AND MUDDY.

Will be Several Weeks Before Trout Will Jump for Flies—License Of One Dollar.

It will be several weeks before the diciples of Isaac Walton will be able to cast flies for the elusive speckled trout, but many of them will be out in a few days if the weather will only clear up some. The fishing season opens tomorrow and those who tackle the various trout streams will use it but they expect to make a catch.

The fine outdoor sport, angling for trout, is decidedly backward this year owing to the prolonged wet spell and the fact that water is high and muddy. Not many fishermen know that this means mighty little successful fly casting.

In the event it is necessary for the fisherman to have a license, the recent legislature passed a law making a fee of $1 for a license to fish and he who violates the law will be subject to a fine of $100 punishment. Under the new law those having authority to issue a license are all the justices of the peace and State Marshals and the Sheriff or his deputies.

The latter has an office in the city and county building, where the fisherman may get the necessary slip of paper to show he is legal to go to fish.

Justice Isaac Walton will also issue licenses and expects to do a rushing business when the weather warms up and the streams become clearer.

While it is expected that many will attempt to violate the law, the fish and game commissioners and their deputies propose to keep a sharp lookout for breakers. All the streams will be patrolled by officers and the man who has failed to plank down his wooden mast better "heat" it to the point of burning.

There is one fisherman in Salt Lake who cares not because the streams are high and muddy. That man is Billy Young, who claims to prevent Roger Greenham from winning his much discussed shin-guards, and President Pulliam has about come to the same conclusion. Notwithstanding Greenham's protest, Greenham has not been compelled to discard his unique protectors, but instead Fred Clarke has ordered them for his own catcher.

The only rule which could possibly have a bearing on the shin-guard matter is Rule 10, relating to the wearing apparel to be used by players. It says:

"Any player who shall wear anything to the sole of his shoe other than the ordinary baseball shoe plate or who shall appear in uniform not conforming to the suit of the other members of his team shall not be permitted to take part in a game."

This certainly has no bearing on shin-guards, as they are now a part of the uniform "different from other players" than is the catcher's mask or chest protector.

It is quite likely that Bresnahan's innovation will become a permanent fixture in the national game, as other players are thinking seriously of adopting it.
