

State where it was rendered. The whole question was elaborately presented in briefs on both sides, and all the authorities that could be cited were referred to, pro and con. This ruling settles the matter in Nebraska, and will form a precedent in the struggle going on against the liquor traffic in other parts of the Union. The full text of the decision will be looked for with interest.

Utah needs a general statute on the sale of intoxicants, and the business in all our towns, villages and cities would be under strict control, if the officials furnished us by the Federal dictum would only act in harmony with the wishes of the body of the citizens, in consonance with the local laws and regulations, and in the interests of order, sobriety, peace and the general welfare.

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

FROM FRIDAY'S DAILY, AUG. 19.

Clifton to Cannonville.—Ira B. Elmer writes on the 14th inst., that the town of Clifton, Oneida County, Idaho, has been changed to Cannonville. A dozen more families and a good blacksmith would be welcomed there.

Departed.—As we were about going to press, the sad news was communicated of the death of Sister Betsy Ann Eldredge, wife of President Horace S. Eldredge. A death notice in another place furnishes all the particulars now in our possession, and it was too late to obtain anything further at the time. We sympathize deeply with the bereaved family and friends.

For the East.—Dr. Ellen B. Ferguson left this morning for Ogden, where she was to deliver two lectures this afternoon and evening, previous to starting to-morrow morning, in company with Sister Zina D. Young, for the Eastern States. The object of their journey abroad has been stated heretofore. They have been blessed and set apart under the hands of the First Presidency of the Church. They will travel as far as New York in company with Lieutenant Willard Young, U. S. A., who goes to resume his duties at the Military Academy at West Point. We wish them all a pleasant trip, and a profitable experience while away.

Murder at Moab.—On the evening of the 7th ult., John Kalemberg, a storekeeper of Moab, Emery County, was shot dead in his own house by some unknown party. It is supposed for the purpose of robbery. W. A. Pierce, a citizen of that place, writes under date of the 8th ult., that Thomas M. Pritchett, who lives at the Old Fort, about a quarter of a mile from the store, says he heard the report of firearms on the night of the 7th inst., which aroused him from bed, and that just afterwards James Porter, Alfred Peterson and Christian Yassen came in from the outside of the Fort, saying they had heard loud talking and five gunshots down at Kalemberg's store. The four men then proceeded to the place, found the door open and after repeated calls to Kalemberg, heard groanings in response, evidently made by a dying man. They then got two other men, and calling again, received no reply. Just then four men rode towards the store from the west. The surrounding party hailed them and forbade nearer approach, unless they gave their names. They replied that they wanted to know where the store was. They were told it was about one mile east, and rode off reluctantly. The first party then lit a lantern and entered the house, where they found Kalemberg dead upon the floor, with three pistol-shot wounds in the left thigh, one of them in the rear and ranging up into the bowels. In the morning an inquest was held, when a verdict was rendered in accordance with the facts mentioned.

Bishop's Meeting.—The Bishops and Lesser Priesthood held an interesting meeting last evening. Among the topics considered were the Utah Eastern Railroad, and the projected house for the care of the poor.

Bishop L. W. Hardy said a report had been circulated to the effect that the Utah Eastern Railroad had been, or was about to be sold. It was an utterly false report, which he wished to contradict. The railroad enterprise was, as it had been from the first, intact, and would remain so; and he cautioned shareholders against being influenced by unauthentic rumors, and from disposing of their stock. For his part, he would not to-day take the face value of his shares, and he could assure the Bishops, who had invested in the road, that if they would hold on to it, they would soon realize, in the cheapness of fuel, the benefits for which the enterprise had been inaugurated.

Elder John Alford made some very good remarks on the subject of the Poor House. He had been a teacher in the Church for 15 years, and from his experience he believed that if the teachers were relieved of the necessity of collecting means for the poor, and could give the time occupied in visiting their districts, wholly up to spiritual duties, not only would they have more influence with the people, but in the centralization of the same means and efforts, for the relief of the needy, which would result from the establishment of this house, the poor would be still better cared for and donations for their relief be more abundant than ever. Other speakers followed upon these and other subjects, corroborating what had been said, and giving additional views in relation thereto. It was stated that the subject matter last mentioned was under consideration by the proper authorities, and the result might be anticipated with confidence.

FROM SATURDAY'S DAILY, AUG. 20.

Deseret Museum.—The Curator returns thanks for the following contributions to the Museum: A slab containing fossil shells of Unio Anodonta and other mollusks, from near Clear Creek station, on the Utah and Pleasant Valley Railway, presented by E. Covington, Esq. Also a likeness of the Prophet Joseph Smith, taken at Nauvoo, Ills., presented by Sister D. Fuller Smith, of the 6th Ward, in this city. Copies of the Bulletin of Salt Lake Academy for 1881-2, have also been received and filed for reference.

Cloud Burst in Castle Valley.—Where are these cloud bursts going to end? A telegram from Provo received last evening states that Captain R. R. Hopkins, who passed through there by the noon train from Castle Valley, reports that on Sunday last about 4 o'clock at Cottonwood Springs, on the railroad grade, Castle Valley, a cloud burst and carried away his entire mercantile stores, consisting of dry goods, flour and grain for men working on the grade. Nothing was saved but a few bars of steel. He barely escaped with his life. A cloud had burst in Soldier Canon, the main traveled road from the north to Castle Valley, and washed out the canyon road, so that it is impossible to convey supplies; and also a cloud burst near Castle Dale, the county seat of Castle Valley, and did considerable damage to the place. A number of places and culverts on the grade were washed away by rain storms in various places.

Reported Robbery Confirmed.—The Ogden Herald says of the reported robbery of Mr. Charles Crismon, on the road between Granger and the Crismon and Weiler Camp:

"The rumor was correct. The affair occurred in the night, or rather very early in the morning. Mr. Crismon was struck on the head and either fell or was dragged from the carriage in which he was riding. When he recovered consciousness he was lying upon the road with his derringer in his hand. The upper part of his pants was cut across, evidently by the highwaymen in their search for his money."

Mr. Crismon was carrying about $3,000, which, however, was in the bottom of the buggy, and as the horse ran away when the attack was made by the robbers, they did not get it. A man located a few miles further on found the horse and vehicle and this money intact.

Mr. Charles Crismon is in the employ of Messrs. George Crismon and E. M. Weiler, railroad contractors, to whom the money belonged. There is no clue to the road agents."

The Yellowstone Country.—Professors J. B. Toronto and J. T. Kingsbury, of the Deseret University, and Mr. John M. Young, who left this city on the 15th of last June, on a horseback excursion to the Yellowstone, have returned; Mr. Kingsbury on Saturday last, and his two companions yesterday morning, the latter having tarried at Malad five days while returning. Yellowstone Park, their objective point, is a tract of country containing about 3,600 square miles, situated in the northwestern corner of Wyoming, with a small strip reaching over into Idaho and Montana. The nearest settlement is Bozeman, Montana, 60 miles away. The Park is timbered principally with pine and spruce, and has a beautiful fresh water lake, 30 miles long, shaped like a human hand, there being an inlet or narrow bay to correspond with the thumb and each of the four fingers. The waters of this lake are cold as ice and clear as crystal; its altitude is over 7,600 feet and it is fed by the Yellowstone River and numerous fresh water springs in the vicinity. The whole country is a lava region. The tract mentioned was set apart in 1872 for a National Park, and is visited every year by thousands of tourists, whose number is increasing annually. They come from the east and west, and even from Europe. During the time our tourists were encamped there, two parties, of nine and five persons respectively arrived, and a wealthy Scotch gentleman and his wife, from Glasgow, also paid the place a visit. Just as the Salt Lake party were leaving, a company of eleven wealthy Philadelphians rode into the neighborhood. Among other sights beheld by our townsmen were the Upper Falls of the Yellowstone, 140 feet high, and the Lower Falls, 397 feet high, according to Hayden. They also camped among the geysers, the highest of which, the "Beehive," sends up its boiling column about 250 feet into the air. This geyser takes its name from the shape of the mound from the centre of which springs the jet of water. The other principal geysers are the "Old Faithful," the "Giant," "Giantess," "Grand," "Castle," "Grotto," "Fan," "Riverside," "Saw Mill," etc., also named from shape, location or other peculiarities. The "Old Faithful" is the most regular in action. It plays every 65 minutes, scarcely ever varying three minutes. The "Beehive" was seen to spout three times during three days. Some of the others play less than once a week. The whole country is filled with groups of hot springs, which make the atmosphere in places quite disagreeable. The Pulsating Springs are still in action but the Mud Volcano is nearly played out. The Grand Cañon of the Yellowstone is also mentioned as a magnificent spectacle. Viewed from the verge of the gorge, the river a thousand feet below looks like a small creek. One false step would precipitate the traveler over the brink of the cañon into eternity. The party were gone 35 days, riding horseback all the way. Out side the settlements they met but one Indian, and he was sick. At one period, the three weeks intervening between June 29th to July 21st, they did not see a human face besides their own, and so lovely did it become that they say the sight of Sitting Bull with a thousand hostile warriors would have been a grateful relief. They struck the Yellowstone Park on the 13th of July, and left for home on the 1st of August. All return in excellent health, much improved by their journey.

FROM MONDAY'S DAILY, AUG. 22.

A Word From Eden.—Our old friend and associate, Jas. A. Thompson, Esq., writes from Eden, Ogden Valley, that everything looks favorable for a good harvest. The Edenites have had lately considerable thunder, lightning, and rain storms, and all their grain is still in the fields, but it is thought that in about another week, the threshing machines will be running. The health of the people is remarkably good. James says he is enjoying good health at present, and has plenty of work to keep it up.

A Mud-Slide.—Saturday's issue of the Enquirer says that Mr. Dan Jones, who came down from Provo Canyon last Tuesday afternoon, reported that the heavy rain storm which visited that vicinity on that day, raised the Provo River three feet higher than ordinary. The water swept the sides of the mountains clean. He and his team came pretty near being carried away by a monster mud slide, which he estimated was from 200 to 300 feet square and from 4 to 10 feet deep. Luckily, Dan saw the moving pile of mud just in time to enable him and his team to post themselves at a safer and more convenient point of observation.

Obsequies.—The funeral services over the remains of Sister Betsy Ann Eldredge, wife of President H. S. Eldredge, were held on Saturday afternoon, at the residence of the family in the 13th Ward. The speakers were President Joseph F. Smith, President John Taylor and President George Q. Cannon. The remarks were of a very consolatory and instructive character, and were listened to with deep attention by the large assemblage of relatives and friends of the deceased who were present. The remains were interred in the City Cemetery, being followed thither by an extended cortege.

Fair Prizes.—At the meeting of the D. A. and M. Society on Saturday night, the following prizes were offered for exhibitions at the coming Territorial Fair, to be held in this city this fall:

For the best colt exhibited, sired by "Octopus," Dr. Williamson offers the use of "Octopus" for a season.

For the best colt exhibited, sired by "Napoleon III.," A. M. Musser, Esq., offers the use of that stallion for a season.

For the best colt exhibited, sired by "Steve Whipple," S. S. Walker Esq., tenders the use of that horse for a season.

For the best colt exhibited, sired by "Black Prince," the use of that stallion is offered for a season.

For the best colt exhibited, sired by H. S. Reedall's horse, the use of his horse is offered for a season.

For the best two ewes exhibited Mr. Jos Harker offers, as a special prize, the use of his best Cotswold buck.

Gen. H. B. Clawson, offers $25 as a special premium for a prize he will name hereafter.

G. F. Culmer, Esq., offers a special prize of $25 for the best collection of show cases, exhibited at the fair.

Geo. A. Lowe, Esq., has tendered $25 as a special prize, which is to be used according to the best judgment of the board of directors.

Produce Convention.—On Thursday, September 1st, at 10 a. m., the committee appointed at the last meeting of Zion's Central Board of Trade, to investigate and discuss the subject of manufacturing flour, corn meal, starch and kindred products, will hold a convention in the Council House, which it is desirable all who are interested therein should attend, in order that amity of thought and action may be secured in the consideration and treatment of this important subject, and measures adopted that will be mutually beneficial to the producer, the consumer, and the general good. The committee are as follows: H. S. Eldredge, chairman; S. P. Teasdel and J. P. Freeze, Salt Lake City; G. W. Thatcher, Logan; Lorin Farr, Ogden; Abram Hatch, Heber City; James Rathall, Grantsville; Jas. S. Rawlins, Draper; D. H. Peery, Ogden; Chris. Willardson, Ephraim; James Mack, Smithfield; Myron Tanner and James Loveless, Provo; James R. Miller, South Cottonwood; C. Layton, Kay'sville; W. C. Lewis, Lewiston; Anson Call, Bountiful; Joel Grover, Nephi; Archibald Gardner, West Jordan.

This committee was instructed to fully investigate the subject intrusted to them, hold a convention, adopt such measures as they found were beneficial, publish the results of their labors, and also report to the Central Board at their next meeting.

It is expected that the committee will be prepared to present their findings to the convention, where the reports will be carefully discussed, and the result thereof presented in writing by the committee to Zion's Central Board of Trade at their meeting on the 8th of October.

A Double Robbery.—A young man named Pack, from Sessions settlement, 10 miles north of this city, drove to town on Saturday, for the purpose of doing some trading. He tied his team near the Emporium corner, and entered that store. When he returned, his wagon and horses were missing. He looked around for them some time in vain, and finally proceeded to the Police Court and informed the officers of what had happened. Search was immediately instituted, and $10 reward was offered for the recovery of the missing property. Subsequently the wagon and harness were found on the State Road, a block and a half south of the Theatre, and one of the horses was discovered tied to a hay stack, but the other has not yet appeared. No clue has been obtained as to the person or persons responsible for this piece of rascality, but it is suspected that they were either bent upon plunder or some fugitive from justice took the missing horse to escape from the neighborhood. About 10 o'clock the same night a buggy belonging to Dr. Roumania B. Pratt, hitched in front of the residence of Sister Zina D. Young, half a block south of where Mr. Pack's wagon was found, was rifled by some unknown party and a kit of surgical instruments and a basket of uncooked provisions taken therefrom. It is believed that the same person perpetrated both robberies. A man was seen to drive the Pack wagon up to the telegraph pole, where it was left, and tie the horses there several hours prior to the rifling of the buggy and in the night the same individual returned and took away the horses. It was supposed, of course, that he was the owner of the team, consequently he was not questioned. Mrs. E. B. Wells and Dr. Pratt, having returned to the vehicle, after calling at Mrs. Young's, detected the robbery of Mrs. Pratt's property, and at once informed the police. They also mentioned the incident of the wagon hitched on the State Road, and the officers immediately concluded that it was the missing wagon of Mr. Pack. The supposition proved correct, and the owner thereby regained possession of his property, with the exception of one of the horses, which it is believed was ridden off by the robber.
