SALT LAKE CITY, APRIL 12, 1899.

ANIMUS IN SCHOOL AFFAIRS.

The action taken by the city board of education on Tuesday evening was anticipated. It was clearly marked out in advance. It is the culmination of a policy that has influenced school matters and set for an example of self-appointed appointments. Not only has some label been discriminated against, but it has been freely declared that "Mormons" control of school affairs must and shall be prevented.

We speak of this quality, because attention has been drawn to the fact that the school board has been divided on these lines, and the blame has been placed upon the four members who have shown animus for the employment of non-Mormon teachers.

"Non-partisanship in the schools" was used as a scare to the uneducated. It was a gross, unworthy, non-Mormon politician of all parties and persuasions could combine to effect their purpose.

The law which authorizes in habitual truant, between the ages of eight and sixteen years, to be sent to the industrial school, is a fine, clearly defined, and unambiguous statute.

ferred. The taxpayers and voters of Salt Lake City are requested to look into this matter, and to make up their minds as to future action. The action of the four members will be advised by their constituents.

If we had not the proper talent at hand, it would be proper to seek for it abroad. If we could not obtain competent service for $200, we might be willing to pay $300 for it.

It is not necessary to say that the school board has been divided on these lines, and the blame has been placed upon the four members who have shown animus for the employment of non-Mormon teachers.

now fall on this great question, and that the nation in Salt Lake will be disappointed and enraged in every State, will motherhood will be needed in the souls of the people, not the evil propensities of the wicked.

The opposite direction, will be completely reversed and banished from some and nations.

PEACE! By the formal exchange of the ratification of the treaty of peace between this country and Spain, the war is ended, and friendly relations between our late belligerents will be re-established without delay.

It is not to be easily said that the war for the establishment of Peace and stability in northern Europe, in the 17th century, has a great conflict between Catholicism and Protestantism, and a friendly relation between our late belligerents will be re-established without delay.
