EDITORIAL NOTES.

Roslyn, once the home of William Cullen Bryant and famed throughout the length and breadth of the land for its quiet beauty, has just been disgraced by an amateur prize fight at which it seems incredible—a woman was present, who even went so far as to run and bring lamps from her house that light might be cast on the proceedings.

The scientists who are now visiting Philadelphia in large numbers cannot be charged with being dull. Of all the varieties of costumes imaginable no other gathering can compete with this class. Yet, when intellects are measured, these persons, male and female, shine all the more brightly for the contrast that is offered between mind and dress.

An ingenious scheme for robbing the mails was discovered in New York last Wednesday. The driver of one of the wagons left a confederate into his van at the Postoffice, and between there and the ferry, he opened letters and purloined any valuable contents found therein. The driver was arrested, but the confederate made his escape by jumping off the ferryboat.

The cholera seems to be doing more fatal work at Naples than it accomplished during the height of its sway at Toulon and Marseilles. The official reports lately recorded more than 200 cases and 175 deaths, while unofficial reports put the figures much higher than that. From all the points from which reports are received, 341 deaths are reported. The probabilities are that over all Italy the total number of deaths must be more than that. This doesn't look very promising for transatlantic travel in the South of Europe.

Says the Chicago News: "When it comes to a question of necessity on both sides there is no trouble between capital and labor. The Edgar Thompson Steel Company of Pittsburgh having shown its laborers that under the present rates of wages it was losing money and would have to close down sooner or later, the men yielded to a reduction of pay without a whimper. It was one side tries to climb higher and higher on the backs of the other side that trouble begins."

That the English language is sadly in need of a new pronoun of the singular number, masculine gender, moved to the fore. It is exceedingly awkward to be obliged to write "he or she," "him or her" and "his or hers" so often. But it is very doubtful if the suggestions of a correspondent of the New York Sun, who coins "twem," "twem" and "twens" for this purpose, will be generally adopted. The present generation could not be expected to know what was meant by such sentences as "either twem will do it," "it was addressed to either twem" or "it is either twens."

An Englishman, recently arrived, and wishing to understand the merits of the opposing Presidential candidates, asked a chance acquaintance to give him some information on the subject. "For instance," he said, "how about Mr. Spooner?" "Oh," replied the other, who happened to belong to the opposite party, "he's a mugwump and a snide, and will go skimming out on the fly with the grand bounce!" The Englishman says "Ah! indeed?" and gives every sign of having been thoroughly enlightened, but means to study the American language in order to master its peculiar vocabulary.

The situation in Cuba is simple but serious. The island is absolutely bankrupt and another revolution against Spanish rule is certainly approaching. Even the Spaniards in Cuba are penniless, having given their money to put down the protracted revolution in 1878. Now, with another revolution threatened, they have no means to resist it, and not being able to resist it is evidently their policy to side with the revolutionists if they would save anything at all from the wreck. It is because of this that General Castillo, Captain General of the island, has formally requested the Spanish Government to relieve him of his command. The trouble is liable to break out any time this winter.

MORE APOLOGIES FOR THE TENNESSEE MASSACRE.

An apologist for the cowardly massacre who fired upon a religious meeting on a Sunday morning in Tennessee, murdering four men and wounding a woman, attempted, in a letter to the Nashville American, published eleven days after the massacre, to blacken the character of one of the victims in the tragedy, so that some excuse might be made for the writer was one of the monocrats.

He stated that it would be a hard matter to make the people of Lewis County believe that the attacking party intended to kill any one. If this is true, the people in that region must be indeed bereft of ordinary sense. When a band of men, organized with a leader, disguised behind recognition, and armed to the teeth burst into a house where men and women are assembled to worship God, and without a word of warning commence to shoot down unarmed persons, what else can people conclude was the object of the attack?

The writer goes on to explain his theory of the cause of this organized murderous onslaught, which was "not intended to kill anyone," and proceeds to relate some stories about Elder Gibbs—one of the martyrs to mob violence—who he considers "not to be this trouble." We need not reproduce them here. He did not relate them as facts. He merely stated that "it was reported." No one ever knew of such reports until this apologist for murderers, who was ashamed to give his name, wrote to the American in order to trumpet up some shadow of excuse for the massacre. But if it was true that such reports had been circulated, what justification would this have been for wholesale murder? If Elder Gibbs had actually been guilty of improper conduct with some person who is not designated in any way whatever, what excuse would this have been for killing four persons and wounding another?

On examination the story of this anonymous writer shows evidence of original manufacture. It does not contain a single attempt at proof, not anything to give it the appearance of truth. It is stated that "occasionally there would be a heavy report against Elder Gibbs." Who started it? What heard of it? No one until after the massacre, when a person, name unknown, tried through the American to apologize for the murderers. The ground that something had been reported against one of the victims.

There is nothing stated in his effusion as a tangible reason for the excitement culminating in conspiracy and murder but this:

"The Mormons always preached to the most illiterate and ignorant people, and had made several converts among this class, which is very obnoxious to an enlightened and virtuous people."

This was the great crime of the murdered Elders. They preached to ignorant and illiterate people. It is the same old story. It was a charge made against the great Nazarene. "The common people heard him gladly." He made converts of illiterate fishermen, and those who were despised and hated by the learned and religious and orthodox, followed and obeyed him. How very "obnoxious" it was to the "enlightened and virtuous" Pharisees, that people among that "lower class" should be preached to by "John the Baptist and Jesus the carpenter's son." One of Elder Gibbs' great crimes as alleged by this anonymous article, was that "he confined himself almost exclusively to the people on the head of Cane Creek, a very ignorant people." And for this the "enlightened and virtuous" arose and armed themselves, organized into a band of assassins and slew him and three other Elders, against whom there was no breath of slander.

But is this charge true? No. For, as related by Elder W. H. Jones, Elder Gibbs and he had just returned from a tour through the principal cities in Southern Tennessee, lecturing in public halls and gaining access where they could to the interior of the most enlightened and cultivated. Our missionaries do not labor specially among the illiterate, nor do they draw converts from that class from choice. But "to the poor the gospel is preached" now as in the days of the Savior, because the wise and learned after this world close their eyes against the truth, and the things of God are "foolishness" to them. So the Elders go where they are received, and if their converts are chiefly among the "illiterate and ignorant," the more "enlightened and virtuous" ought to be glad. For what were the effects of the teachings of our Elders among their converts at Cane Creek? Hear the statement of Elder Jones:

"Even our enemies confess that our teachings have effected a marked change for the better in the habits and customs of the people. Since they have become members of the Church they have ceased their wild, rough life, and have become peaceful, more law-abiding, and in every respect better citizens."

These are the results everywhere. They are the natural effects of the reception of the Gospel which our Elders were sent to preach. And our Elders were the mobocrats that felt so exasperated against this preaching to the "illiterate and ignorant" at Cane Creek? Why according to the anonymous writer and manufacturer of scandal, they were the "enlightened and virtuous" of that region. What proofs of excellence they exhibited on Sunday morning August 10, when, with his Kit and shotgun in hand, they rushed upon the "illiterate and ignorant" worshippers and shed innocent blood!

The Salt Lake Tribune reproduces the vile stuff from the American with comments. Quite appropriate. The Tribune is the proper place for such garbage. It says this apologist for the assassins was "certainly not influenced by the Tribune." Indeed, how was this discovered? His vile "reports" are just of the kind in which the Tribune delights, and which it has taken joy in detailing for the delectation of those who take pleasure in such salacious morsels. It is through the sensational personal libels and filthy stories and insinuations of the Tribune, with the wilful lies told about the "Mormons" by preachers in this city, which have been copied abroad, that the erroneous ideas concerning our Elders have been fostered and supported in various parts of the United States.

Billingsgate the scribbles of that paper belch out against those who expose their villainy, the clearer does their shame stand exposed to the public. Their rage and vituperation do not help their case in the remotest degree. And their reproduction of every nasty story, and ebullition of spleen from disappointed preachers against our missionaries, only confirms our charge against them.

If they want to be regarded as decent men following the legitimate calling of journalists, they must cease to be literary scavengers, abhorring up mire and gathering in garbage, and manufacturing violence when the supply fails from outside sources. Opposing "Mormonism" is one thing, spreading scandal, provoking violence, and giving every dirty-minded slanderer the means to vent his spleen against his neighbors, are totally different things. The former may be followed by the "enlightened" and respectable; the latter is the work of blackguards and is thoroughly detestable.

TAXATION FOR SCHOOL PURPOSES.

The Seventh Ward folks profited by the lesson they learned at the election for School Trustees. Last evening they were not caught napping. If a few such occurrences as their former experience would serve to wake up the People's Party in other places they would be "blessings in disguise."

A vote for a tax of one cent for the building of a school-house was carried by a very large majority. The opposition was of course from "Liberal" sources. Those who have been representing to the world that the "Mormons" are opposed to education, are now in a force with every member of their families who can be pressed into the service to obstruct the "Mormons," if possible, in their efforts on behalf of education. These persons are vehement supporters of "free schools"—with their mouths. Just watch them when the question comes to their pockets. They do not want the school.

The writer goes on to explain his theory of the cause of this organized murderous onslaught, which was "not intended to kill anyone," and proceeds to relate some stories about Elder Gibbs—one of the martyrs to mob violence—who he considers "not to be this trouble." We need not reproduce them here. He did not relate them as facts. He merely stated that "it was reported." No one ever knew of such reports until this apologist for murderers, who was ashamed to give his name, wrote to the American in order to trumpet up some shadow of excuse for the massacre. But if it was true that such reports had been circulated, what justification would this have been for wholesale murder? If Elder Gibbs had actually been guilty of improper conduct with some person who is not designated in any way whatever, what excuse would this have been for killing four persons and wounding another?

to school again. Every boy in Utah ought to understand that a meeting to decide upon a school tax is not an election. The effort to make the provisions of the Edmunds law cover the ground of the school law was possible in such eminent members of the legal profession. It is a simple proposition that property tax-payers residing in the District to be taxed shall vote in regard to the tax proposed. "Registered voters" are not entitled as such to any voice in the matter. The chairman who declined to put to the meeting a proposition to allow registered voters to vote on this was quite right, for any such proceeding would have been void because it is contrary to the law.

Out very "Liberal" opponents of education construe the term property tax-payers to mean owners of taxable property whether it is taxed or not, and whether their names are on the tax list or not. Very good. What is the source for the goose is sauce for the gander. If men and women on the "Liberal" side who pay no taxes are really "tax-payers" if they own any article liable to be taxed, so are the men and women of the People's Party. It is a poor rule that only works to the advantage of the "Liberal" side. We think that this kind of legal twisting will not operate as desired. It will give more People's votes than "Liberal" and if it suits the latter will suit much more the former.

All that our people need in this respect, is to be ready to do their duty. Every man and woman that has a right to vote at an election or at a school meeting or at any other public affair, should be on hand at the time appointed, and any neglect of this "cometh of evil."

We congratulate our friends in the Seventh District on their speedy recovery from the fit of somnolency which overtook them at the school election and their lively self-unification at the school meeting of Monday night. We hope they will build a school-house so good and attractive as to make its opponents ashamed of their opposition. The Trustees are alive to their duties and we wish them success.

THE IDAHO NOMINATIONS.

The Idaho Republicans have given their opponents a good point in nominating Singler for re-election as Delegate to Congress. We think it is very doubtful that he will poll a majority of the votes of his own party. He is no more to be trusted than the "Liberal" side who pay no taxes are really "tax-payers" if they own any article liable to be taxed, so are the men and women of the People's Party. It is a poor rule that only works to the advantage of the "Liberal" side. We think that this kind of legal twisting will not operate as desired. It will give more People's votes than "Liberal" and if it suits the latter will suit much more the former.

It is to be hoped that notwithstanding the very large odds in his favor, the managers of his campaign will not fail to watch the tricks of the enemy. The latter have become so familiar with their use that sharp eyes are needed, particularly in obscure polling places, and without these there is no doubt that the few supporters of Singler will try to take every possible advantage. With care and caution and a little energy in the right direction the Democrats of Idaho can gain a sweeping victory in November.

HOW TO KEEP THE LITTLE ONES COVERED.

MOAB, EMERY CO., Utah, Sept. 12, 1884.

Editor Deseret News: Noting in your semi-weekly issue of Sept. 3, an article headed "Look After the Little Ones," and asking for a contrivance or bed to surround the little folks from getting out of bed, I have been thinking of you my plan: Construct a simple, low bedstead or trundle bed, the bedding you wish to use. The side of the bed must come from four to six inches higher than the bed itself. Put from four to six knobs across, about 4 inches down the side-boards of the bedstead, properly distanced along the sides thereof. Have a cover to go over all the bedding, being the outer covering, to which attach strong loops to fasten on to the knobs across the side-boards. This will have a piece of elastic, say an inch wide, to go in the upper end of this outer covering, so that it will allow the cover to give when the little ones turn over, etc. Now put the little ones in bed and see how it works. This bedstead is calculated for children from 2 to 10 years of age. This is my plan, and I have seen it work like a charm.

The suggestion of our correspondent appears feasible, with the exception that we should suppose that the under and not upper cover should be the one attached to the side-boards of the bedstead and provided with elastic attachment at the upper end, so as to prevent the sleepers from kicking the under covers down. Perhaps some of our furniture manufacturers will adopt the idea in relation to the construction of the cot.
