

THE WEDDING JOURNEY.
We had talked of a mounting whale,
And a gentle audience.
Then the horses came to the station,
And the stars were out in the same.
Thus my little, but sturdy carriage,
Loved back to a gentle church.
With a smile on her well-braced face.

At the trials conducted in the darkness,
Little I could learn.
I was not to be seen,
But because of my sturdy wind.
And I started with a certain of anguish,
At the thought of the long journey.
Of the top of the stormy waters,
And the sandy Hampshire road.

I saw "The Flame" to the distance,
And the blue waves call roll over,
And the stars were out in the same.
Thus the world of the setting sun
Bids me to my side I am well.
Farewell, my love, my love,
You true, you deep for earth's trials,
Oh, love of the Hampshire road.

WE ARE A REBEL!

A Captain Who Fought in Civil, but He Doesn't Know We Watch Him.
Captain Kenneth Pritchard, of the British Admiralty, Tangier, had quite a thrilling war experience while at Buenos Ayres. The steamer had been chartered to load cargo at Liverpool for Buenos Ayres, and arrived at that port shortly after the revolution had ended. All large vessels, such as the Tangier, were compelled to remain out in the Buenos Ayres Roads, which is about fourteen miles from the port. The masters quartered themselves at the British Legation, and most of their business was done ashore until the vessels were loaded or discharged, as the case happened to be.

On May 1 some little trouble again arose between the rebels and the government, and another revolution was threatened. The troops began to fire at all rebels, and within a short while firing was general on all sides. Captain Pritchard was anxious to see what was going on throughout the town, and remained slowly in the direction of the assault. Before he had gotten far, however, he was captured by two rebels, and was taken to the British Legation, to the point of the nearest fort.

He was given a Winchester rifle, and, by command of the officers in charge, was compelled to join the wretched crowd. Without much complaint, led a great deal of nervous dissatisfaction, his leg popping away at every object in the shape of a man who passed within range of the arsenal! Here he was kept at work with his rifle for three hours, when he was relieved and a platoon put on guard.

After opportunity presented itself, and Captain Pritchard slipped around the wall and escaped from his captors. He had gotten but a few yards from the place when he heard some grape shot whiz by him, and upon looking around he saw two guns being used at the head of the street to keep it clear. Captain Pritchard, without much ceremony, dropped himself into a fifteen-foot gutter, and there remained with the water streaming over him for about an hour, when the firing ceased. After that, seeing the captain did not return, hurried off from the hotel and called a cab.

He said he fought hard, but he has not learned whether he was a good, neat soldier or a rebel, and he wasn't curious enough to ask. —Hartford American.

The Woman Contractor.
Dickie certainly made a mistake when he created Misses of the music-cue persuasion. "Waiting for something to turn up" is a feminine characteristic. And after all, isn't it true that "all things come to those who wait"? They do turn up for women if she waits long enough. Today, after waiting forty years, she holds all 400 equations open to her. Forty years ago she did not need more than one hand to count all the things she was allowed to do for a living. But one of the things she never did expect turned up, and this is the woman's strength over contractors.

She gives perfect satisfaction, they say, and she is certainly picturesque. She wears a blue flannel uniform, a big Panama straw hat and a long white pinfire with frills and immundis pocket. In the pockets she carries tickets and change, while strapped over her shoulder she carries a small leather bag in which are the surplus money and tickets. She hands the passenger who pays her fare a yellow ticket, which he is supposed to destroy. For all that are not fitting she must hand over the money.

If there be any she can't account for, the money is deducted from her wages, and twenty-five dollars a month. Of course this is not in New York, but it may come some day, since women have begun to enter service on the elevated roads in Brooklyn. It is in China that the woman contractor flourishes. After the war with Pern there was a surplus of women that had to be utilized, so they became, among other things, street car conductors.

Strangers of a Strange Disease.

There are several large restaurants in Fourteenth street that serve a table d'hôte dinner, with menu from 5 to 6 o'clock in the evening, and they gather into their sets all sorts and conditions of men and women. At a table in one of these places two women, from the country, one of whom was a parson's daughter and the other a peaked bonnet smothered in flowers, seated themselves to go leisurely and fully through the menu of fare. Then came a man, and his wife, and they sat down and soon felt that they could not do justice to the fruit and cake.

Thereupon one of the twain opened a spacious leather bag which she had with her, and the other proceeded to tickle into it the cake, oranges and bananas that they could not eat. They did it openly and as a matter of course, feeling no doubt that they had paid for everything set before them, whether they could eat it or not. Then they vanished out without a thank you, leaving a parson's jury to stand at each other's table, the indignant wife who had received no fair treatment, the husband who had to go to the kitchen, where he would relieve his feelings in私处. —New York Sun.

A Meeting-Place Snapshot.

A meeting-hall in Mason, Ga., that has been taught by its female owner to while a topical song incorrectly, loan a tenement boy play the air. The lad at once noticed the difference, and, as though to rebuke the mississ, repeated the song its own incorrect way, high notes frequently being used for low ones, and vice versa. Again the band, which had moved a few inches further on, played the tune, and again the bird endeavored to correct them.

After a third and fourth attempt the bird gave up the task, and, as though it were a master of the game, remained quiet and motionless until the music no longer reached its ears. Then the bird proudly jumped from the perch, and, assuming a dignified attitude, once more recited the only song it knew. —Mason Telegraph.

Magazine Take Notice.

Paper-cutters or book-entomologists have a new pastime. A man who will lecture on insects on mount paper, or books to demonstrate good nature. The man who does not encourage a novice—New York Truth.

Never look a man when he is down—unless he deserves it.

After all, Chicago got no income-tax to Grace before New York did.
