

young men about entering the field of politics. It says:

"Be something, young man. If none of the existing parties satisfy you, organize one of your own, and go 'slashing around.' But have a politic. Institute a war cry. View with alarm and point with pride on your own back, but do view and point. If you are very vigorous you may also at times 'recoil with horror.' You will find this very effective toward the close of the campaign. If I had time, my son, I believe I could fit you out with a full and complete assortment of tools, weapons and armor for politics."

You should have, at the opening of the campaign, besides the matters already mentioned:

One dozen kegs of nails, where-with to nail the enemy's lies. Shriek, every time you nail a lie,

"DOWN WITH THE MORMONS."

A few judicious lies to toss around carelessly and not too early, just to keep him busy. Shout when you scatter them. Say something mean about the Mormons.

A few "demands" for things that we already have, and have had for fifty years. Nobody will notice this if you only yell them out lustily, and with the air of a man who is saying something new. The older the "demand" the louder you must yell when you make it. "Demand" especially that the Mormons be suppressed.

Some "pledges" more or less. Pledge yourself to something easy—the abolition of Mormonism, the abolition of slavery and unyielding opposition to the payment of the Confederate bonds by the State of Ohio. Rar about it and give it to the Mormons red hot.

Remember the soldiers. This is eminently proper, patriotic and cheap. I won't cost you a cent. Stand upon the house-tops, and in a loud voice call them "the defenders of the republic," and declare that they shall have their rights. Alone near the close of the campaign you might promise them their lefts. That's what they'll get anyhow, but you needn't say anything about that. Keep as noisy as possible, and howl.

"THE MORMONS MUST GO!"

Arraign the administration! Oh! every time arraign the administration. And a common arraigning will not do. If any platform contains not a scathing arraigning of the administration the same is a liar and a horse thief, the same more or less. If, unfortunately, you are on the side of the administration, then you must arraign the other party. But you labor under a great disadvantage if you are in with the administration. It is so much easier to stand in the street and throw stones at the window than it is to stand in the window and throw stones into the street.

Blessed be opposition. Because why? You're liable to run out of stones. There are no stones in the house, whereas the street is full of 'em, and the man in the window can't throw until the man in the street has first fired a rock at him. And if it so be that the first dornick catches him in the eye his case is distressing, or if it be that while stooping to pick up the first stone the man in the street fires half a dozen more at his stooping figure, then is the last state of the man in the house worse than the first. "Holler" as loud as you throw fast, and let the Mormons have it all the time.

For the reasons set forth above never fight on the defensive. Always keep going up and down like a raging lion, seeking where you may investigate somebody. "You haven't taught me any of the parties," said a young soldier to an old Prussian fencing-master. Parties be—"I have forgotten the Prussian for the word," replied the other moustache. "You thrust; let the other fellow parry." Lay it on the Mormons every time.

Demand the resumption of specie payments. It has been accomplished so many years that most people have forgotten it, and this slogan will catch the Greenbacker. There, that reminds me. By all means have a slogan. No party is equipped for the contest until it has a slogan.

In some wards you will want a slogan that holds a quart.

Down with the Mormons, remember. And talk loud.

Pat civil service reform on the back. Remember that, in the hands of the administration it is a mere instrument of partisan tyranny and nepotism, an object of selfish ambition and base personal greed; but in your hands and those of your relatives by consanguinity, marriage and adoption, public station would be a place of honor and honesty, capacity and fidelity, and constitute the only valid claims to public endorsement. And right here, oh how you can

SCATHE THE MORMONS!

In regard to the tariff, denounce Mormonism as a scandal and a reproach, that is breeding a demoralization from its foul and festering chaps, that is fetid with rank corruption, that threatens to pollute the entire system of the grandest government on "God's green earth." This will catch the free protrade-unionists.

I think there's about all you need to start with my boy, and the other things will occur to you as the campaign advances. It's always safe to let into the Mormons. They have no friends east of the Rocky Mountains, and very few west. Some of these points you may have to modify a little, but in the main you can use them as they are. They have been used by two parties during the past twenty years, and have come out radiant with victory and noble in defeat every time.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In Norway the struggle of many ages between the peoples expressed by the parliament, and the King of Sweden has been renewed with extreme vigor. The King holds one view as to the method by which the constitution may be altered, the parliament another. Having the supreme tribunal on their side the parliament will doubtless now at length, after several years of struggle, be able to carry their point.

The Boston Herald says that one of Uncle Rufus Hatch's visiting Englishmen is doing the square thing by his host in writing up the journey to Yellowstone Park for the Boston Telegraph; and he does it after a very complimentary fashion. This correspondent is particularly pleased with Chicago, Sitting Bull and other prominent features of the western landscape; but he does miss picturesque ruins. Uncle Rufus could have exhibited plenty of those no farther west than Wall street.

On the 5th inst., at the convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, held in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Philadelphia, the English Lord Bishop of Rochester, in an address, said: "A reproach sometimes cast is not a just one, that the poor are not to be found in our churches. The poor have souls as well as the rich." We wonder if the exalted priest thought he was astonishing his auditors with a new discovery when he made that announcement.

Glass is beginning to take the place of wood and iron in making railroad bridges in England. The inventor makes blocks of glass, which he hardens by a special process. In solidity it is said they leave nothing to be desired. The experiments already made have given surprising results, and the cost is below that of bridges of wood or iron. Moreover, the glass cannot be injured by insects like wood, nor rusted like iron.

The New York Sun very happily says: "We learn with pleasure that the biography of the late Judge Black will be written, and his papers, essays and speeches be edited by his distinguished son, the present Lieutenant Governor of Pennsylvania. The work will be of high interest. No man ever put more ideas into his words than Judge Black, or put them into words more fresh and fitting; and no one can be better qualified than his son to prepare his literary remains for the public."

The Sun says the Pittsburg Dispatch is expecting a rare treat in John A. Steven's play of "Her Second Love," which is now shining its way across the country. It says the play is clean and strong. We will not discuss its strength, but we cannot forbear remarking that, if it is clean now, it must have been disinfected and taken a season of Turkish baths since it last inflicted itself upon the folks of this town. The purification had not been gone through when the thing reached here.

The Nihilists, after a period of comparative inactivity, have resumed operations, and are about to enter upon the campaign of the coming winter. They have issued a proclamation warning the Czar that he has been sentenced to death. This will not alarm the Czar, as he has become used to these pleasing messages, and from his experience last year, even dynamite has probably lost its terrors for him. Certainly he has shown that he has the nerve of a genuine autocrat, and thus far he has beaten the Nihilists at their own game. Their plots and warnings have not succeeded in softening the rigors of absolute despotism one jot.

Ohio has been recognized as one of those states in which the Democratic and Republican vote was pretty evenly divided. It is a fact, however, that the Democrats of Ohio have only polled a vote in excess of the Republicans four times during the last twelve years. The balance has generally been in favor of the party now in national power, and the election of the Democratic candidate for Governor must be looked upon as of great importance. It will strengthen the opinion that has somewhat extensively obtained that the chances of the political stick falling in favor of the Democrats at the next election are tolerably strong.

The New York Sun says that one of the objects of Lord Coleridge's visit to America is evidently the puffery of Gladstone. From town to town he wanders, indulging in dreary drives about England's prime minister. It is generally conceded that Mr. Gladstone is considerable of a man, but that he should be made the constant burden of Lord Coleridge's post-pandial remarks is somewhat too much of a good thing. If Judge Waite were to go to London and regale the epicures of that town with fulsome flattery of his benefactor, U. S. Grant, he would be speedily voted a bore. Gratitude is an excellent quality, but it is mighty unpleasant when it is officious or has become stale.

Petroleum Nasby enters a plea on his own behalf and for other stay-at-homes during the war: "Kin any one give a good reason why we are not pensioned? Troc, we didn't go ourselves, but we sent men. Wood the man hev gone of we had not sent him? Wat difference does it make to the government who the man is so that it gits the man? And to whom does it stand indebted for the man? Clearly to us who sent him. The man who went for us got his remuneration in wat we paid him, or promised to. Clear then es we wuz reely the recruit we are entitled to the penshun." This is as logical as some of the claims on which pension have been awarded.

A gushing Western man, hunting for office, lately addressed this to a friend in Washington: "The ruthless tyrant, Ambition, has seized my soul, and I seek relief by confessing that I pine for fame and would throw my young and virtuous life away in the service of the Government to which I owe all due allegiance. The position to which I aspire is that of special agent in one of the Departments, where you travel around and seek out the villainous acts of those unworthy to be the servants of Uncle Sam."

"Now, the part I have cast for you in this drama, is to inform me to whom I shall make application, and what kind of influence I must bring to bear. I am aware that the position is one of importance, but I am equal to the emergency, and greater will be the glory if the duties are successfully performed. I suppose you can 'catch on' to what I want, and if you can put me into the line of march, I will commence operations and set the wires to pulling."

Is Your Blood Pure?

Now this is an important question. For without pure and wholesome blood there can be no perfect health, and without good health life is a mere burden and waste. For impure blood the best medicine known is Scovill's Sarsaparilla or Blood and Liver Syrup may be implicitly relied on when every thing else fails. Take it in the spring time especially, for the impure excretions of the blood incident to that season of the year; and take it at all times for Cancer, Scrofula, Liver Complaints, Weakness, Boils, Tumors, Swellings, Skin Diseases, Malaria and the thousand ills that come from impure blood.

Talking about the liver, we presume that ill temper is more often caused by a disordered liver than anything else. To insure a cheerful disposition take this well-known medicine, which will remove the prime cause, and restore the mind to its natural equilibrium.

NOTICE.

In the Probate Court, in and for Salt Lake County, Territory of Utah.

ELIZA F. SALISBURY, Plaintiff, vs. JOSEPH SALISBURY, Defendant.

The People of the Territory of Utah, send Greeting to Joseph Salisbury, defendant:

YOU ARE HEREBY REQUIRED TO APPEAR in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Probate Court, of the County of Salt Lake, Territory of Utah, and to answer the complaint filed therein within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of summons—if served within this County; or, if served out of this County, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree from this court dissolving the marriage contract existing between said plaintiff and you, and for custody of their minor child, Percy Delilah, on the ground that defendant has willfully deserted the plaintiff for more than one year, and also that defendant has willfully neglected to provide for his wife, this plaintiff, the common necessities of life, and you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint as above required, the said plaintiff will apply to this court for the relief prayed for and cost of suit.

WITNESS, the Hon. E. Smith, Judge, and the seal of the Probate Court, of Salt Lake County, Territory of Utah, this 13th day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty three.

CHARLES F. BLANDIN, Plaintiff's Attorney.

In fevers, malaria, biliousness, heartburn, etc., nothing is so beneficial as Brown's Iron Bitters.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed my nights after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL, a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me."

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.
