on hand to run the administration. There is now a deficit of £544.00 in the sewer and drains fund.

City Auditor Ruddolph Alff, whose yearly report has not been presented to the mayor, was unable to state yesterday the amount of outstanding warrants against the deposit in the bank. It is known that there are several thousand dollars outstanding against every fund in the report. When these amounts are deducted it will in all probability leave deficits in many of the funds.

On account of the complicated manner in which the special auditors, who deest the dity $20.00, left the nookkeeping system. Mr. Alff was unable to give an estimate on the amount of outstanding warrants from his books. He hopes to be able to submit his report some time in the near future.

LIQUOR SHIPMENTS BY EXPRESS COMPANIES

selling price, plus the express charges, as they do in the case of other com modifies. This will tend to abate one of the commonest motherds of evaling the prohibition laws in small communities. It will have the effect of putting a stop to the custom of shipping intextents into a prohibition town addressed to a fictitious consignee and leaving it in the express company's ofnce until called for by some one who is "wise" to the scheme, or until a ustomer can be found for it. The case trose from the complaint of the Boyal Brewing company of Kansax City against the Admins, United States and Wells Fargo Express companies under the clause of the Hephurn law winch prohibits undue discrimination against particular commodity. The express empanies had adopted a rule that they no longer would accept such shipments C. O. D. In its decision the commission states that the discrimination against liquor is not undue and upholds the ruling adopted by the express companies. The express companies alleged that the liquor dealers had taken advantage of the C. O. D. plan to send arge quantities of intoxicants into p hibition communities without bons advorders, in many cases to fictitious addresses. On being notified that the shipment had not been called for they would obtain customers by vertous devices, sometimes employing traveling agents. Under this plan, they claimed, the express offices often became figure warehouses, which had a demoralizing effect on the employes, involved additional risk of loss from fire of robbery, and frequently involved the companies in litigation with local authorities.
