THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT.

GRAND RECEPTION.

BRIEF BUT POINTED AND PLEASANT SPEECHES.

THE ARRIVAL, THE FESTIVITIES, THE DEPARTURE.

YESTERDAY morning at 9:45, a special train left this city with a party of ladies and gentlemen, by invitation of President Taylor and the courtesy of Superintendent John Sharp, bound for Ogden to meet President Hayes and party on their arrival from the East. The party consisted of President John Taylor and wife, Hon. George Q. Cannon, Counselor D. H. Wells and wife, President Angus M. Cannon and daughter, Miss Mina A. Cannon, Elder David O. Calder, Superintendent Horace S. Eldredge, Hon. Wm. Jennings and Mr. Joseph Jennings, Elders H. W. Nahlitt and Theodore McKean, Hon. C. W. Penrose and wife. Superintendent John Sharp took charge of the train and was accompanied by his daughter Miss Nettie Sharp.

On account of the conflicting reports of the time when the party would arrive it was difficult to make arrangements so that the Sunday Schools and those who desired to greet the President on his arrival, could be at hand without having to wait long for the hot rays of the September sun. Reaching Ogden, a few minutes after 11 o'clock, the party from Salt Lake finally obtained definite information that the President would arrive an hour earlier than was expected. President Taylor at once had the news telegraphed to Salt Lake, so that the Sunday Schools might be gathered in time, and also that the congregation in the Tabernacle, if they chose, might adjourn to greet the Presidential party. Word was also sent, by his instructions, to Wood's Cross and Farmington, the only places along the line of the Utah Central, at which an operator could be reached, on account of the day.

At 12:35, a large crowd having assembled at the Ogden depot, the Ogden Brass Band, being present, the train, consisting of five coaches, one of them containing the Governor and his committee, who had been out as far as Weber Station, rolled into the depot, the engine being fully decorated.

The President was greeted with cheers and being called on for a speech, was introduced by Governor Murray. In a few brief sentences he excused himself from a lengthy speech, as the day was not opportune for formal ceremonies. Secretary Ramsey followed in a similar vein, and General Sherman, in response to loud calls, spoke a few words of thanks and pleasure at the reception.

The four coaches containing the Presidential party were then attached to the two coaches containing President Taylor's party, and the Utah Central engine, which was very tastefully and nicely adorned with the stars and stripes and numerous flags and streamers started for Salt Lake with Robert, Bult, an engineer.

As soon as the two trains met, President Hayes, who was on the platform of the rear car, recognized Delegate Cannon standing on the platform of the Utah Central car, and President Taylor and party were introduced to the President of the United States, being very kindly and cordially received. The train left amid the cheers of the Ogden people, and when it was clear of the station, President Hayes stepped into the Utah Central car and visited President Taylor and his friends, chatting pleasantly with them until Kayville was passed. Being called away to luncheon, he was succeeded by Secretary Ramsey, who also dismounted to a pleasant and cordial manner, and on his departure General Sherman entered, making himself quite at home and staying with President Taylor until Salt Lake was reached. He expressed his surprise at the improvements perceptible on the route and said that in his opinion a people who could make a living out of such materials and elements and be reasonably happy, were entitled to all they could make and ought not to be disturbed.

By invitation of Mrs. Hayes the ladies of President Taylor's party went into the President's car and spent a very pleasant time in conversation with Mrs. Hayes and the ladies accompanying her.

At Farmington a large number of children and friends, chaperoned by Elder Ezra T. Clark and Father Remondelli of the party and were very kindly received, Mrs. Hayes as well as the President's ladies going to reach down from the cars and shake hands with the little boys, not neglecting even the smallest of them. A similar scene took place at Wood's Cross, and the President and party were highly gratified at these manifestations of respect from the people of Utah.

what disappointed that the committee in charge rushed them at tremendous speed up South Temple street, and round to the Walker House, passing so rapidly that few could get a full look at the Chief Magistrate of the nation or his estimable wife.

However, after the party arrived at the hotel, they came out upon the portico, and an immense audience being assembled, Governor Murray, in a few words clearly spoken, introduced the President of the United States.

President Hayes then came to the front, and, addressing the people, said, in substance, that owing to the day and the circumstances he did not consider it proper to make a formal speech. He could say, however, that like all other strangers who entered this wonderful city of Salt Lake, he was astonished at what he had seen. Begging to be excused, and thanking the people for the welcome and reception that was shown him, he retired, when hearty cheers followed.

The Governor then introduced the Honorable Mr. Ramsey, Secretary of War.

Mr. Ramsey thanked the people for the immense reception given the President's party; they had met with surprises all along the route of travel westward, but the reception they met with in Salt Lake exceeded all of them, (cheers) and the appearance of the people generally, he said, was beyond anything they had seen. He concluded by sincerely thanking the people for the splendid reception.

Gen. Sherman, on being introduced, then came forward and said: Friends and fellow citizens. Following the example of my chief—indeed, I may say, my two chiefs—I ought to say nothing, but I cannot look upon this crowd of people, and upon the scenery as my right and on my left hand, without saying a few words of praise to those who have come to this desert land and made it to blossom as the rose. (Cheers and applause.) An old philosopher remarked, before any of us were born, that he who made two blades of grass to grow where only one did before was a public benefactor. Now, the people who have made the desert bloom, and the wheat and the grass to grow, when but a short time ago there was nothing but the sage-brush to be seen, are entitled to our thanks as public benefactors.

The President will in due time on all proper occasions recognize your kindness to him—not here but elsewhere, for he takes notes of everything as he goes along, and he is so familiar with the history of this people, that when the time comes that he can say a kind word for you, he will say it (Cheers and applause.) All that I want to say this Sunday afternoon is this: Go on as you have begun, make homes for yourselves and your children and be half as good as you know how to be, and you will be good enough for this or any other valley. (Applause.)

I thank you again for this testimony to your chief Magistrate, and I believe it will go to his heart and to yourselves and to the whole world.

I beg you will excuse us from saying anything further excepting that we intend spending all of today and part of tomorrow in your City, and will do the best we can to view the internal arrangements, the garrison on the hill top and anything else that we can overlook. We are, I may say, on the road to California with all speed and we can't stop. Those fellows in California hold a laral around our necks and we have got to go on and make the best of our time. (Laughter and applause.) In the meantime, one and all, we thank you for the hearty reception given unto us this far. (Great applause and cheers.)

Agreeable to a general call, Mrs. President Hayes was presented to the assembly, and bowed acknowledgments to the three hearty cheers that greeted the lady.

Here this part of the programme terminated, the visitors retiring to the hotel, and the crowd slowly dispersing. An agreeable feature of the occasion was witnessed in the respect the people paid to the day, there being an entire absence of the boisterousness generally attending such public gatherings.

This morning, between 8 and 9 o'clock, the President, Gen. Sherman and others, rode out in carriages, nine in number, to visit the principal points of interest in the city. The General and a few friends reached the Tabernacle previous to the others' arrival there, and were being shown through the building when the main body, with the President and Mrs. Hayes, Secretary Ramsey et al., presented themselves at the door. While in this position, with Gen. Sherman at the other end of the building, quite a conversation took place between the two leaders, which, much to their surprise, was faithfully carried back and forth by the remarkable acoustic properties of the hall. At another time, the President was standing immediately in front of the organ, when some of the others at the east end of the auditorium engaged him in conversation. One of the ladies said, "Good morning, Mr. President." "Good morning," he responded, both speeches being heard very accurately by Elder C. J. Thomas, who was guiding the visitors through the place, then gave His Excellency another proof of the ease with which sounds were transmitted from one point to another in the building, by dropping a pin at one extremity of the house, which was distinctly heard by the visitors at the opposite side. This the President pronounced as "extraordinary," as did Gen. Sherman and the rest. They remarked that they had never before seen anything like it. While they were introduced to Superintendent Henry Grow, the builder of the Tabernacle, to whom the President said: "I am pleased to meet with the man who could erect such a building. Who was the architect?" "President Brigham Young was his own architect," replied Elder Thomas. (Dead silence.) On leaving the building the President constantly lifted his hat to a group of workmen who had congregated near the doorway and who promptly returned his salute. The visitors spent about half an hour at the Tabernacle, expressing great pleasure at what they saw, and delighting all who met them by their kind and affable deportment. Their names, gleaned from the list at the Temple Gate and other sources, are as follows:

President R. B. Hayes, Mrs. Lucy W. Hayes, his wife; Messrs. B. A. W. Hayes, their sons; Mr. Mitchell, of Columbus, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. John W. Herron, of Cincinnati; Dr. Huntington, U. S. A. Surgeon of Soldiers' Home, Washington, D. C.; John Jameson, Assistant General Superintendent of the Mail Service, of Washington, D. C., who has charge of the President's party; Hon. Alex. Ramsey, Secretary of War, who joined the party at Omaha; and Lieut. Noyes, who joined it at Cheyenne. The above are the members of the President's party. Gen. Sherman's is as follows: Gen. W. T. Sherman and his daughter Miss Rachel; Mrs. Colonel Audenried; Colonel Barr, Judge Advocate of War Department; and General A. McCallum. McCook, Lieut. Colonel Tenth Infantry and Aid to Gen. Sherman.

From 10 a. m. till 11, a public reception took place at the Walker House parlors, this change in the programme being made in order to allow the visitors to leave earlier than had been anticipated. Many citizens of various classes took advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to shake hands with the distinguished tourists. All were treated with the utmost courtesy. The callers were introduced by Governor Murray, assisted by others.

At 11 o'clock, the party again entered carriages and proceeded to Fort Douglas, where they were met by General John E. Smith and staff and welcomed with a salute of artillery. After lunch and a pleasant visit at the Fort, which General Smith and his associates did all they could to render interesting and enjoyable, the party returned to the city and left by special train for Ogden at about half-past one o'clock this afternoon.

They were accompanied by the following gentlemen from this city, quite a number of ladies being in the company: President John Taylor, Hon. Orson Pratt, George Q. Cannon, Jos. F. Smith and D. H. Wells; Presidents A. M. Cannon and Jos. E. Taylor; Hon. Wm. Jennings; Gen. H. S. Eldredge; Bishops L. W. Hardy and R. T. Burton; Hon. Chas. W. Penrose; Dr. Jno. R. Park; Messrs. Jas. Jack, D. McKenzie and H. K. Whitney.

Shortly after arriving there, the Presidential party left to complete the tour of the West. We sincerely wish President Hayes and his fellow-tourists a pleasant and interesting experience throughout the scenes they propose to visit, and an ultimate safe return to their homes in the East. We earnestly hope and have reason to believe their brief stay in Salt Lake will be to them a pleasant recollection, as it certainly will to all who had the pleasure of meeting any of them personally.

In behalf of the great majority of our citizens we tender them the compliments and best wishes of the people of Salt Lake and Utah Territory, and only regret that circumstances were such that the people were not permitted to make a more extensive demonstration of respect in honor of our Nation's Chief and his distinguished travelling associates.

No Peace Treaty Probable.

New York, 5.—The cable brought information regarding the signing of a preliminary treaty of peace between Chili and Peru, stipulating the articles of the treaty. The report of this news naturally caused a flutter of excitement among the people of California, and a number of the articles of the treaty, as reported on the Pacific coast, were being read and discussed with interest. It was stated that the treaty provided that the boundary line between the two countries should be determined by a commission of experts, and that the treaty should be ratified by the respective legislatures of the two countries. It was also stated that the treaty provided for the exchange of prisoners of war, and for the return of the bodies of the fallen soldiers.

Their names, gleaned from the list at the Temple Gate and other sources, are as follows:

weighing 72 ounces. The bars will be exhibited at St. Louis and Chicago, and as soon as possible thereafter at the New York Mining Board. At present the silver is at the Merchants' National Bank of Little Rock.

Some Sunday Fastings. SAN FRANCISCO, 5.—At Bodie, George Watkins killed police officer Whitaker and died shortly after from wounds inflicted by the officer. A Spaniard killed John Hackwell, a miner, at a saloon on account of Hackwell beating a waiter girl. John Raum killed a man named Castello, the trouble growing out of the same affair.

Chicago, 6.—Paul Populorum's tannery in the northwestern part of the city burned early this morning. Loss on the building and stock $15,000; only partly insured.

The Times' Milwaukee special says: It is generally asserted that Ben. Butler defrauded the National Soldiers' Home of that city out of vast amounts of money while he was its manager. The Times discredits the story.

The Times' Washington special says: General Walker's investigation of the manner of taking the census in South Carolina has convinced him that wholesale frauds have been perpetrated. Evidence is sufficiently conclusive to warrant prosecutions under the law.

The Ohio Campaign. The Times' dispatches from Ohio state: The democratic managers there have had a wine fall from some quarter, and that from this time forward they will make a lively campaign. None of them will admit there is any hope of defeating the republicans, but the aim is to reduce the majority of their opponents to such a figure as to demoralize Garfield in other parts of the country.

The State Supreme Court to-day decided the case of G. M. Dunbar, vs. the Chicago and Western Indiana R. R., reversing the decision of the lower court and dismissing the case. The railroad company consider this as final disposition of the litigation and will immediately begin the extension of their tracks.

The man-horse contest of endurance at the end of 24 hours stood as follows: Horses—Speculator 130, Bothman 108, Bony Baker, 109, Rose of Texas 105, Dunbar 80, Map—Dollor 117, Schosch 100, Byrne 100, Vint 97, Coleston 94, Cole 91, Crawford 91, Krohne 88, Connelly 85, Fox 78, Jackson 71. The men seem to be far less fatigued than the horses and are jogging along without apparent effort.
