

PACKARD WILL IS CONTESTED

Petition Filed in California Court
And Notice Served
Here.

UNDUE INFLUENCE CHARGED.

Since Says Edward Winslow Packard
Induced Uncle to Bequeath Property to His Advantage.

Martin F. Marsh of Plainfield, N. J., a piece of the late John Q. Packard, the Salt Lake millionaire, filed notice in the superior court of Marquette, Cal., yesterday of a contest of the will. As soon as the citation was issued a telegram was sent to Mrs. Margaret Zane Witber, county clerk, notifying her of the petition for the revocation of the will which was filed in Salt Lake county, and asking that the hearing of the petition for partial distribution be continued.

The hearing on which the postponement is asked is on the petition of Edward Winslow Packard of Salt Lake and Mrs. Mary Louise Shear of New York of the property bequeathed to them which amounts to $100,000. In her petition Mrs. Marsh states that undue influence was brought to bear upon Packard when he made his will. She accuses Edward Winslow Packard, a nephew of influencing his uncle to distribute his property to his advantage. Packard had large holdings in Marquette, and Santa Cruz, Cal., and in Salt Lake City. He left Mrs. Marsh $10,000 which is the same amount he bequeathed to seven other persons and pieces. The bulk of the estate was left to Edward Winslow Packard and Mrs. Shear.

John Q. Packard died several years ago. He was the donor of the free library on State street. Shortly after his death his will was filed in the probate division of the Third district court in this county.

FOR PARTIAL DISTRIBUTION.

The petition on which hearing was to have come before Judge T. D. Lewis of the district court on Saturday was for partial distribution of the estate, the amount to be distributed amounting to a total of $100,000, and is asked by Edward W. Packard and Mary Louise Shear. The former is a nephew and the latter the widow of Theodore W. Shear, also a nephew. Each is entitled to about $45,000 according to the petition and the entire amount of the estate is $100,000. They set forth that they are the sole residuary legatees of John Q. Packard, who died Oct. 1, 1905, and that letters testamentary were issued to Edward W. Packard May 14, 1906. The decedent was unmarried.

The value of the estate in California is placed at $400,000 and of that each of the petitioners are entitled to $100,000. In Idaho there is $100,000, of which each will receive half, and in New York $100,000 of which they will each get half.

The petition states that the decedent in his will gave legacies to the amounts of $100,000, to be paid in a year from his death, and that there is now on hand in cash in Utah $100,000, and there will be enough to pay these when they mature. They ask that $100,000 be distributed, half to each, and that only a nominal bond be required.

The heirs of John Q. Packard are: Edward Winslow Packard, Salt Lake; Julia G. Wells, Chicago; Mary W. Ellis, Rochester, N. Y.; Emma Hough, Evanston, Ill.; Harriet Carlock, Albany, N. Y.; Josephine Doran, Sandy Spring, Md.; Kate Glover, New York; John Q. Packard, South Williamsport, Pa.; James B. Packard, San Francisco; Martin Marsh, Plainfield, N. J.; Margaret Bobert, d'Alviola, Brussels, Belgium; Eleanor Hatch, Brussels; Theodore H. Shear, New York.

EXECUTION STAYED; VENUS GETS A HOME

Vagrant Doggie Sentenced to Be Shot
At Sunrise Is Adopted as Press Mascot.

"To Be Shot at Sunrise" or "Reporters Thrilling Rescue" is the title to a little drama enacted at police headquarters this morning, beginning at 2:30 o'clock. The story has to do with a poor, lone little female dog of uncertain breed but positively dog.

Without kith or kin poor little Venus was captured by a hard-hearted policeman last night, hauled to police headquarters where, after a short session of a kangaroo court, the prisoner was sentenced to be shot at sunrise this morning, but a gallant reporter on a morning paper and an equally gallant reporter on the "News," situated the executioner and prevented the dog from being slaughtered of the innocent canine.

Quaking inwardly, but with a bold front and outward calm, the reporters bearded the hot-tempered chief of police in his den, and demanded the life of the dog. Entreaty, persuasion and threats were resorted to and finally succeeded. While a pardon was not exactly granted in express terms, a respite was secured and doggie's life was saved.

What would have happened to the dog is told in the following note from one of the reporters on the night watch to the day man:

"This female canine occupying our quarters was to have been shot at sunrise. I adopted her last night, and secured permission from Chief Barlow to get a real tag, and the promise goes that she would not be shot at sunrise."

"Have left her some meat and would you mind giving her a little more water during the forenoon? If not for my sake do it for the dog's sake at least until I get down today with a full pardon."

Did the reporter furnish the necessities for the little creature? Well, rather. Food and drink in abundance were not only furnished but a tart policeman who was doing target practice preparatory to putting an end to Venus' existence was politely but firmly informed there would be some trouble if he tried to exterminate said canine.

Venus seemed to understand what was going on and the narrow escape it had, for she laid her head on the reporter's knee and in the plainest kind of language thanked him most heartily. She has now secured a good home and sports a brand new tag which is a notice to dog catchers and policemen to keep their hands off.

Reinhardt did not know why he stole the clothing. He claims his father is dead and that his mother married again and is somewhere in the east. HIS LIFE WAS SPARED.

Police Heed Pleadings and Tears of Nine-Year-Old Youngster.

Bernard Seal, a 9-year-old youngster, brought tears to the eyes of several big policemen yesterday afternoon when he pleaded for the life of his canine companion. Patrolman Horace Heath had captured the dog and took it to police headquarters, his intention being to kill the dog unless the license was paid.

Little Bernard followed the policeman to the station, sobbing as though his heart would break. Throwing his arms around the neck of the dog he begged that it be not killed.

"Didn't you never have no dog?" he asked Lieut. Hempel. "Mamma didn't want me to have this one but I sneaked him into the yard and built a house for him and then fed him on scraps. If you'll let him go and don't kill him I'll sell papers and junk and get the money." The lad's pleading won, and the dog's life was spared.

High School Notes

A setaper has been at work all the week leveling the drill grounds and excavating the same. Some trees have been cut down and when the work is completed the battalion will have ample room for all movements.

A reception in honor of the band is to be given by Principal Eaton and Captain Fisher on Saturday evening, March 27, in Christensen's hall. It is intended as a compliment to the boys because they supplied all the music at the cadet dance recently.

The girls of the commercial chorus will give several recitals in connection with the regular practice work. The one given last Friday was so successful that one is to be given every two weeks in the future.

Next Monday afternoon a tryout will be held in the gymnasium to select representatives to compete in the state high school oratorical contest that will be held to the university on April 2.

An interesting debate was held yesterday in Miss Moffet's English class on the question, "Resolved, That all Federal Appointments Should be by Civil Service Examination." The affirmative position was presented by Dorothy Olinore and Gertrude Hartwell, and the negative by Taylor Carmichael and Charles Van Pelt.

The cadets are taking hold of their drill work with more than usual interest, owing to the fact that Rear Admiral Roderic D. Evans is expected to visit the school sometime after his arrival in the city on April 2.

The students of the commercial class have been considering the purchase of a suitable class pin.

TWO COMPANIES SHOW EVERY MAN ON ROSTER

Inspection of Companies C and the Signal Corps Establishes New Record.

The National Guard added to its growing reputation for proficiency last night to a marked extent, in the inspection of the Signal corps under Captain Bourne, and C company, First Infantry, under Captain Eakle. The Signal corps boys turned out 25 men, the total number enrolled, and went through their maneuvers with a precision and accuracy that was a commendation from the many visitors present. The corps also gave a display of signaling and general workings of their equipment showing what was being accomplished in their special field to the great pleasure of all who were there. The signal corps has a fine array of apparatus with which it did highly effective work in the maneuvers camp last summer, and their experience gained from association with the regular army Signal corps men gave the Salt Lake boys an inspiration that has shown itself in the good work they have done since. It may be safely said there is not a National Guard in the Union that can make a better showing. Major Armstrong, the government inspecting officer, complimented Captain Bourne upon the excellence of his command and condition of his equipment.

Company C also scored a fine record with 24 men present, the full number on the roster. The command presented a fine appearance and did excellent work both in the manual of arms and in the marching. Adjutant General Wedgwood and the other officers witnessing the evolutions of the evening, expressed themselves as highly gratified. He said the loss for failure to attend would be only about 11 per cent, or 100 per cent improvement over last year, and 200 per cent better than two years ago. The inspection of C company tonight at Odeon will complete the annual governmental inspection.

PARK TERRACE SOLD.

The sale of the Park terrace, which has been in the air for several days, was consummated yesterday afternoon, when the purchaser, Joseph A. West, of the West Mail Order House, paid about $4,000 for the property. The exact figures are withheld, but it is claimed that the purchase price was around the above sum. The property is located at 7th and 5th South streets, and it is the intention of the owner to renovate and re-build the property so as to insure a good rental value.

OPENING SATURDAY OF A BARGAIN DEPARTMENT ON THE FLOOR BELOW.

This is a distinct innovation in Salt Lake. It will open in a modest way at first. Our purpose to push it vigorously, and spare no effort to make it one of the largest departments in this store. The offerings will be bargains in the strongest sense. Every customer in the store Saturday should make a point to visit this interesting new department.

A Separate Department for Popular Priced Millinery has Been Opened on Third Floor

In the Section will be displayed hats ranging in price from $5.00 to $10.00. In order to popularize the department the hats will be sold on a close margin. These hats bought from New York makers are just as good style as the more expensive hats, with these exceptions: the trimmings are not as elaborate—quills, wings and ribbons in tailored effects and less expensive flowers, being used. The hats are very dressy.
