ANOTHER VERSION OF MORMON LIFE.

Editors Journal:—There is much written in the newspapers and periodicals about the Mormons and especially "Mormon women." Very little is really known of the motives and principles by which this people are actuated. Occasionally some visitor or tourist with broader views and less prejudice than the majority, stays long enough to get a glimpse of what is termed the "inner life of Mormon families;" but usually they see Salt Lake City, visit the Tabernacle, and Theatre, call on the "modern prophet," President Brigham Young, express their wonder at the work he has accomplished in so short a time in establishing settlements and cultivating the desert places, make a few general observations round about, then go away and write long letters on Mormonism and its peculiar institutions.

Some of these letters and articles have been particularly unjust and decidedly partisan in expressing views upon doctrine and principle, judging things from the writer's own standpoint, knowing little of the feelings or circumstances which have developed certain phases of Mormon life. If persons possessing an average amount of intelligence, would consider the difficulties and persecutions through which this people have passed, it would help them to comprehend that such experiences would inevitably result in striking characteristics marking the society they constitute. The world can never fully understand Mormon women, because these women have had individual and general experiences incidental to the peculiar circumstances of their wanderings, pilgrimages, and the Gospel in which they implicitly believe. These experiences taken together have lifted them out of the narrow grooves of modern conventionality, and have given them higher aims, holier impulses, and a broader expanse of thought. This experience has taught them self-denial in its truest sense, and from the intense depth of emotion awakened by the strange variety of circumstances through which they have passed, has developed sublime traits of character, which have qualified them to make some of the most noble efforts ever made by women to promote the highest interests of humanity.

Perhaps if some of those who condemn "Mormon women" for living what they consider a degraded life, could be convinced of the sincerity of their motives and the noble aims which stimulate them, they would admire such sublime courage and self-sacrifice. Mormon women can afford to be ridiculed and despised, knowing the goal in view will more than recompense them for all they may have to endure. Instead of going back into barbarism, as the world pleases to term Mormon institutions, these people are endeavoring to renovate society through a higher code of moral and religious principles, which, from their very nature and bearings, would, if properly carried out, redeem this generation from some of its most degenerating influences.

It is not possible to portray the characteristic history of these women in one or two articles, or even to represent in a satisfactory manner the principles of that religion which has induced them to leave houses, lands, kindred and worldly possessions for the gospel's sake; but we can perhaps give some crude idea of the object they have in view. This people, so despised, so persecuted, are fully persuaded they are acting by divine authority, vouchsafed through the ministration of angels to Joseph Smith for the regeneration and redemption of the human family. These great ambitions elevate the mind and soul above common every-day grievances, enlarge the hope, strengthen the faith, and, through this channel, inspire that perfect confidence and trust in God, which is ennobling to man or woman, and tends to the development of the most sacred emotions of humanity.

The Saviour said to the young man who came to him asking what he should do to be saved: "Sell what thou hast and follow me;" but he was not sufficiently in earnest to offer up all upon the altar. The Christians of modern times, many of them, would have men and women believe that there is no need of sacrifice. The Saviour's own words were: "If they have persecuted me they will also persecute you." Shall those who anticipate partaking the glories and blessings of his kingdom expect to escape persecution and trials? If so, how are they to be tried as by fire? Must it not be something which will search the heart and reins?

Wade Hampton to Gov. Hayes.

COLUMBUS, O., 29.—Judge Mackey, of South Carolina, is here, bringing the following letter from Wade Hampton to Gov. Hayes,

"Executive Chamber,
"Columbia, S. C., Dec. 23rd.

"Dear Sir—I have the honor to enclose a copy of my inaugural address as the duly elected Governor of South Carolina. In view of current events, and the official sanction given to gross misrepresentations of the acts and purposes of the majority of the good people of this commonwealth, I deem it proper to declare that profound peace prevails throughout this State. That the course of judicial proceedings is obstructed by no combination of citizens thereof, and that the laws for the protection of its inhabitants in all their rights of person, property and citizenship, are being enforced in our courts. While the people of this State are not wanting, either in spirit or means, to maintain their rights of citizenship against the usurped power which now defies the supreme judicial authority of the State, they have such faith in the justice of their cause that they propose to leave its vindication to the proper legal tribunals; appealing, at the same time, to the patriotism and public sentiment of the whole country. The inflammatory utterances of a portion of the public press render it, perhaps, not inopportune for me to state that although the people of South Carolina view with grave concern the prospects of the critical conjunction of affairs of our country, which threaten to subject to the extreme test the republican system of government itself, it is their firm and deliberate purpose to condemn any solution of the existing political problem that involves the exhibition of an armed force, or that moves through any other channel than the prescribed form of the constitution or peaceful agencies of the law.

"Trusting that a solution may be had which, while maintaining the peace of the country, shall do no violence to the constitutional safeguards of the popular right, and will tend still more firmly to unite earnest effort to preserve peace and to sustain the laws and constitution,

I am, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant.
"(Signed) WADE HAMPTON,
Governor of South Carolina.
"His Excellency R. B. Hayes,
Governor of Ohio.

"P. S.—As a settlement of the vexed political questions which now agitate the public mind must ultimately depend upon yourself or your distinguished competitor for the presidency, I have addressed a letter similar to this to his Excellency Gov. Tilden.

"Yours, &c.,
"WADE HAMPTON."

Completed Their Work.

COLUMBIA, 29.—Messrs. Sayler, Abbott and Lawrence, the Sub Congressional Committee, completed their work here, to-day. Their report, from the returns as submitted, gives the State to Hayes and Wheeler by about 700 majority, but show that Hampton and the entire democratic State ticket is elected by a much larger majority.

The National Union League.

CHICAGO, 29.—The Times this morning publishes an address of the National Union League, of Ills., said to be in secret circulation throughout the State. The document is signed by the Grand Secretary and is headed by Robert Ingersoll as President. It States that another crisis in the affairs of our country is approaching, and threatening no less danger to the liberties of its citizens than that of 1861. We believe it is time when patriots and lovers of the Union should be on guard, remembering that in union is strength. A call is made upon all patriots in every city and town throughout the State to organize for the defense and protection of our sacred institutions by prompt action. There can, within the next sixty days, be enrolled in our State not less than 100,000 National Union Leaguers. The veterans of the late war are, as they are earnestly invited to do, actively co-operating with other loyal citizens to prolong and perfect the proposed organization. The document closes by saying that if necessary, papers for organization will be forwarded on application.

No Jurisdiction.

District Attorney Corbett, for the Hayes electors, withdrew from the quo warranto proceeding in the Supreme Court, to-day, on the ground that the court had no jurisdiction.

Tilden Must be Next President.

The Journal's Washington special says Payne, chairman of the House committee to consider the counting of the electoral vote, in reply to an enquiry as to how his committee intended to fix things politically, answered that the only suggestion yet made which met with his approval was that the committee shall insist upon the right of the House to participate in counting the electoral vote, and to exercise its claimed right to throw out the vote of one of the Southern States, and thereby throw the election into the House. He said further that the democratic members of the House committee are firm in their conviction that Tilden must be the next President, and would not yield this point. On the other hand Senator Morton declares that there will be no compromise, Hayes having been honestly elected. The republicans may give away the presidency, but even how they are to accomplish this, under the constitution, he cannot see.
