Miss Ada Douglass and Charles Carlson, two of Ogden's most popular young people, were united in bonds of holy wedlock, Wednesday evening, June 28th, at their own newly fitted up home on the corner of Lincoln avenue and 25th street. The home was very artistically decorated for the occasion with beautiful sweet scented cut flowers, potted plants and ribbons. At an early hour in the evening the wedding guests arrived, and under the sparkling rays of electric lights the bride and groom stood while President C. F. Middleton performed the ceremony which united the young couple together in bonds of matrimony, after which congratulations were extended by those present, and all sat down to an elaborate wedding supper. The bride wore a very beautiful gown of white silk, made en traine; the groom wore a conventional black. The bride is one of Ogden's accomplished and charming young ladies, and the groom is a bright and able young man. They have both for a number of years been in the employ of the Z. C. M. I. in the retail department, and are among the society people of the city. There were present at the wedding only the relatives of the contracting parties and a few intimate friends. In the evening the young people returned from the capital and were given a reception at the home of the bride's parents, No. 2554 Barlow avenue. The front part of the house was separated from the avenue by stretched canvas, and a sumptuous wedding spread was partaken of by the happy gathering in the open air, after which music and other pleasures were enjoyed until long after midnight when the wedding guests departed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Kammeyer much joy and success on the sea of matrimony. Roses and other flowers were in profusion. The bride was dressed in a pretty white gown, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Denkers, and the groom is well known in the city. He is clerk in Ogden Bros. grocery store. Their parents were numerous and useful. Mr. and Mrs. Kammeyer will make their home on Adams avenue between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets.

PRETTY DRESS FOR A BABY GIRL.

This dainty dress for a little maid of four is made of white point d'esprit and trimmed with narrow white satin ribbon. The ribbon is gathered and forms ruffles which are set on in curves, both on waist and skirt. A rosette with long ends of the same ribbon in a wider number, and a sash of the same, complete this artistic little model.

of the most successful conferences of that organization. President Schurman of Cornell, who has shown his interest in the work by inviting the society to hold its meeting under the auspices of the university, gave in his address of welcome evidence of a thorough understanding of the objects of the society. He expressed, too, his hearty approval of its efforts and achievements in this State. Mrs. W. G. Shadler, president of the association, responded to this cordial and sympathetic greeting, and took up the importance of teaching to the working classes domestic science and the betterment of the home. An interesting paper of the day was by Mrs. Melvil Dewey of Albany, on "Higher Education in Home Economics." Mrs. Dewey made the point that if the principles expressed in home economics were applied to the home, the expense of the state in the maintenance of its overcrowded reformatories and prisons might be much diminished, degraded conditions of the home doing much to keep these institutions filled. Miss Martha Van Rensselaer, who is the editor of the Woman's Reading Course in the University Extension Department, gave an excellent talk on the "Farm Home," showing its needs and how the association could help it. The speaker is the author of a number of helpful leaflets sent out by Cornell's School of Agriculture to rural homes. At the evening session Prof. A. B. Trowbridge of Cornell University gave an address on "Home Aesthetics," which might be read with profit by every householder in the land. This lecture would be a revelation to many furnishers, who fancy that an expenditure of money is all that is needed to produce satisfactory results. Professor Trowbridge spoke of the importance of the artistic point of view, and in a talk that was delightful in manner gave much suggestive matter on the subject of the arrangement and adornment of the home. Professor Craig of the Cornell College of Agriculture told, in his address on "Co-operation and How to Effect It," of the extension work carried on by Cornell. At the close of the evening session the association delegates and visitors were socially received by the Woman's Club on the campus.

The promoters of the movement to erect a memorial to Margaret Fuller at Point of Woods, Long Island, are pushing the work in order that it may be completed and dedicated by July 19. This date in 1850 saw the tragic wreck of the ship Eliza, on which Margaret Fuller, her husband, the Marquis Ossoli, and their son were drowned. The design of the memorial, as displayed, is a colonial pavilion, which will stand on the land of the Ossolis. It will contain a bronze tablet, bearing an inscription to this noble woman, whose remains were never recovered from the waves. Subscriptions from anyone interested may be sent to Mrs. Little Doreen Blake, president, No. 75 East Eighty-first street, New York city, or to Mrs. L. W. Meredith, treasurer, No. 97 McDonough street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The chairman of the Bureau of Rectiprocity of the State Federation, Mrs. W. P. Blakely, asks the clubs of the state for co-operation in the work of the Bureau. It is earnestly urged that clubs will send the chairman, at her address, No. 21 Elm street, Oswego, New York, typewritten or printed copies of papers, lectures, and talks that have been given at the club during the winter. Now that there is something of a lull in club activities, the chairman hopes that presidents, secretaries, or programme committees may feel leisure to assist the Rectiprocity Bureau in the way indicated. There is a demand for papers on art, literature, household economics, child study, music and education. In closing the papers, the Bureau urges the selection only of those of exceptional merit, taking into consideration the points of originality, literary style, and understanding of the subject. Every Federated club is also urged to send its year-books, programmes, and advance outlines of study along definite lines of work. With an accumulation of this matter in hand the Bureau will prepare a catalogue of its resources which will be accessible to all clubs in the state, and which, it is hoped, will be a useful source from which all may draw.

FEMININE FLOTSAM.

Bread and butter crispies to serve with salad need a fresh loaf baked so as to give a square slice. With a sharp knife cut off all the crust; butter one end of the loaf, and shave off in the thinnest slices possible. Roll each slice tightly, and fasten with a wooden toothpick. Lay on a flat pan, and place in a quick oven until crisp and lightly browned. Remove the toothpicks, and serve hot, piled on a plate over which is laid a folded napkin.

If alcohol is used to clean gilded picture-frames—and nothing is better for the purpose—it should be applied very lightly with a camel's-hair brush. The beaten white of egg is also a good cleaning agent for the gilt, and needs the brush application with the same light touches.

A beautiful violet dinner was carried out, so far as decorations were concerned, without the use of violets. A Renaissance-centerpiece was laid over a mat of violet crepe paper; on it were placed, in a row, five silver dishes of fine workmanship, into each came a small hostess had slipped from tiny pots six or eight heliotrope plants in luxuriant bloom. The effect was most attractive, and the quick fading of these blossoms when cut was prevented. Bunches of deep-hued lilacs were scattered over the cloth in and about among the relief dishes, and antique candlesticks of old brass held ivory candles with lovely petal shades of the same hue. A further contribution to the color scheme was had by the use of some exquisite dollies in violet silk, each decorated with a Japanese design, which the hostess cleverly arranged to keep on the table during the dinner by using them under finger-bowls, set at each place for the strawberry course, beginning the meal. Tiny bunches of lilacs floated in each bowl, and violet handkerchiefs and dinner cards added to the pretty coloring.

Occultist say that kerosene-lamps furnish the only best artificial light for the eye. As against the flicker of gas and the trying glare of the electric light, the oil radiance is greatly to be preferred. From a sanitary side, too, oil-lamps are not so injurious to the eyes. The latter is killing to plant life, as florists well know. Hot-houses and green-houses are invariably lighted by kerosene lamps.

An excellent plain staining fluid for floors is permanganate of potash, which may be used in a proportion of one ounce and a half to a gallon of water. The crystals cost only ten cents an ounce, making the stain among the cheapest that can be procured. As is well known, it is an excellent disinfectant, so its sanitary value is appreciable. The easiest way to apply the stain is to use a painter's flat brush, working with the grain of the wood. If after one coat the stain does not seem to be dark enough, a second may be applied. The floor should then be gone over with two or three coats of linseed oil rubbed in with a piece of flannel or cambric, and a final polish, if that is wanted, of beeswax and turpentine. The beeswax and turpentine are mixed in the proportion of two ounces of the wax to four of the fluid, put in a covered vessel, and set where a slow heat will melt the wax. Stir the mixture smooth, and when cool it is ready for use.

At nearly all of the recent English weddings the groups of attending bridesmaids have either tiny children or very young girls not far along in their teens.

Among the season's lace accessories are shown any number of adjustable collars in various graceful shapes; some in fish styles, with pointed ends which reach to the waist in front; others in marine yokes, collarette, and similar pretty forms, and also made of bisque yellow linen lawn, batiste, and grass-cloth. These are used to decorate the low-cut, collarless Etons and boleros, summer tea-gowns, Empire negligees, and new silk "coffee jackets" made with lace-filled elbow sleeves and scarf fronts.

The various forms of furniture are legion this season, and lace is everywhere most radically applied. Strapping lace with velvet ribbon in various charming ways is still the rage, and is one of the features of summer decoration, which has followed in the wake of the employment of silk bands on gowns of cloth, light wool, or net. Garmettes which are really one trimming applied to another appear to be extremely fashionable in almost any of their varied guises. One idea of this kind is demonstrated in the "illuminated laces" on which tinted, silk-wrought motifs in various elegant Venetian, Renaissance, Flemish, and other equally handsome patterns are applied directly to the raised surfaces of corresponding designs woven in the lace meshes, some of them being intermingled with fillets of finest gold or silver, or very delicately threaded with black chenille or the narrowest black velvet ribbon.
