Provo, Utah Co., Feb. 12 .-- The case of the State vs Wm. King was heard by Judge Marioneaux in the Fourth district court yesterday. After the evi-dence was in District Attorney Hatch asked that the jury be instructed to re-turn a verdict of not guilty; the jury was so instructed and a verdict as asked for was given. Defendant, who lives in American Fork, was charged with taking a steer, the property of Carl S. Dickerson, last November. The evidence was to the effect that the ani-mal had strayed to defendant's place and had been with his stock for some time, and defendant testified that the butcher, who killed the steer, had made a mistake and had not killed the animal defendant pointed out to him. Old Folks Are Made Happy and Royally Entertained.

Special Correspondence.

Farmington, Davis Co., Feb. 8.—This was Old Folks' day, and it was made a joyous one for the veterans. All over 50 years of age were the guests of honor at a grand banquet and entertainment gotten up by the Old Folks' committee. The scene of the happy affair was laid in the social hall, which was beauti-fully decorated for the occasion. Dinner was served for about 200, and some 25 generous kunches were sent to those who were unable to attend. An interesting program was a pleasing feature of the festivities. Apostle John W. Taylor added interest to the occasion in a short address, and everything went off pleasantly.
