

THE SCHOOL TAXES.

Is the Law as it Affects Cities of First and Second Class Invalid?

A Correspondent from New York City, and other persons for this opinion.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 3, 1895.

Editor Evening News.

I am extremely in harmony with the public opinion expressed today, that Judge Smith is right in his opinion regarding school taxes in cities of the first and second classes, and that the law as it affects them is invalid.

It is not a question of the validity of the law, but of the validity of the constitution. The constitution is the supreme law of the land, and any law that is in violation of it is invalid.

When the law is in violation of the constitution, it is void. The courts have the duty to declare such laws void, and they have done so in many cases.

It is not a question of the validity of the law, but of the validity of the constitution. The constitution is the supreme law of the land, and any law that is in violation of it is invalid.
