In Woman's World.

In writing about "Women and the Occupations" in the September American Magazine, W. L. Thomas has occasion to comment upon our treatment of the factory girl. He said:

"It is, I believe, considered good business to death, to wear him out fast, and take another. Certainly it would be a good policy to do so if horses had a very trifling value and could be had in unlimited quantities. At any rate it is good to wear girls out in this way, for the initial outlay in their training, nothing at all, and then you can get in unlimited numbers. Professor James' theory of getting your second wind" and "tapping unused reservoirs of energy" is doubtless sound psychology, up to the point where he leaves it, but there is a limit to it, and evidently working under great strain is

SALT LAKERS IN GOTHAM.

(Special Correspondence.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—On roof of Dewey Richards' house, One Hundred Forty-fourth street and Riverside-drive, 2:30 p. m. Twenty-two U. S. men-of-war, four German, three French, from British, two Italian, with hundreds of small boats, private yachts, police patrol boats, and innumerable crafts in colors and in sight this brilliant afternoon, every nationality represented. Boatmen of all colors, including the Half Moon and Clermont anchored just off One Hundred Tenth street, where an official reception is being held, while the procession of boats goes up as far as Two Hundred Twenty-second street to "Spuyten Duyvil" park, each vessel of note showing in miniature a glimpse of real battle in war time, a glorious sight never to be forgotten and only duplicated in England when the naval display was seen in which all nations were represented on the banks of the Thames.

In the evening some 2000 deck events, including a mass of light and color, illuminations on grandest scale from Battery to One Hundred Fifty-eighth street, an uninvited sight Sun-ship Hendrick Hudson that Englishman, so often called a Dutchman—and Robert Fulton, the greatest New Yorker, must be reburied in their graves this evening, not for mention or sight of their names, off go bats, boom go guns and general hurrah follows. It is "Hudson-Fulton" everywhere, up and down these long streets and riverfronts, while poor Varazzone the Italian, recently discovered of a beautiful riverboat, is now submerged in the fatigued Indians down near Battery Park and throughout their papers and humble homes; but posterity will yet see Varazzone justice, and he will come into his own.

The roofs of Dewey Richards, Hugh Ford, and Stewart Kohn's houses are the vantage grounds for many of the Utah people during this gala week, and every available space is occupied, for residents have been thronged with relatives and friends to the number of dozens each. New York for once is filled to its capacity. Thus ends the first day of our annual talked-of "Hudson-Fulton" celebration.

Last Wednesday eve Elder Heber J. Grant gave a talk to the Utah members and their friends at mission headquarters; the rooms were well filled and the audience was greatly interested in the speaker during the meeting. At the conclusion, singing by R. C. Easton and an hour or two of visiting among friends completed a most enjoyable evening. Elder Grant left for home Saturday after attending several insurance conventions in Canada and upper New York; he has many friends who wish him a safe journey West and a return to us in the near future.

Mrs. Charles Skekin and little Max-ter Charles Walcott Meakin, are living here while husband and father is out on the stage as manager for "The Parisian Model" Company. Mrs. Meakin is not expected home to his family until some time in June, next.

Last week Mrs. Husband and her daughter Miss Husband, arrived in the city from their home in Salt Lake to take up residence in New York for the winter, and as the former will at once begin lessons in vocal training, they will take rooms near the Colony headquarters if possible, Prof. Tracy Y. Cannon giving them letters of introduction to friends here.

Elder Lewis T. Hammond, who has been ill with typhoid for some time, has been released from his hospital headquarters recuperating, will soon be well enough to resume his mission labors in the field. Elder Hammond now looks and feels better and is quite impatient to begin work where he left off.

On Saturday morning the 25th, Miss Arton Young, mother of Attys. L. Grand Young with Mr. John D. Spencer and his son Daniel, arrived in the city from Chicago where they were detained for a day or two on their way. Miss Young will remain with her relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Easton for a month or six weeks. Miss Spencer, who is also from Atlantic City, Monday to attend the life insurance convention, returning to the city Thursday where she will stay three days, and then go on to Louisville, Ky., to meet with the convention there. While here the Messrs. Spencer are taking in the Hudson-Fulton with great interest, going to one of the largest boats not even fitting for the electrical display, tickets being given them by Mr. Spencer's brother-in-law, John W. Young; everything that can be seen in the way of water and land parade will be well noted by the Salt Lake visitors during their limited stay here.

Two new elders, Lott E. Russell and Levi and John W. Peterson of Springville, arrived in the city three days ago, and will be appointed to their various mission fields in a few days.

Elder Morgan Rich, brother of President Rich, E. Rich, who has been in England for nearly two years and finished his mission in Vermont the last two months, will leave for his home in Bear Lake some time during the week. Elder Rich was unable to reach home in time for the Rich family reunion which took place two weeks ago, but rejoices in the knowledge that he has fulfilled an honorable mission and is returning home in excellent health.

Prof. Levi E. Young of the U. S. who arrived last Wednesday, at once enrolled himself at Columbia university in the historical department; the study of Martin Luther under Prof. Robinson will begin the coming week. Mr. Young

THREE SHADES OF GREEN RIBBON ON THIS HAT.

Mr. Malcolm Trundell of Chicago, an well remembered in Salt Lake as Miss Jane Macintosh, the vocal teacher, so there has been quite a friendly reunion since her arrival. Mrs. Macintosh will remain in Chicago until the middle of October, and then return home to Tacoma, where her mother, Mrs. Joseph Young, and sisters, Viola, Fanny, Mrs. Chloe Benedict and Miss Hetta Young, now live.
