

WHERE THE SOLDIERS' CLOTHES ARE MADE.

(Copyright, 1893.)

Charles Reed was not prepared to enter into hostilities when the time came for him to take some decided step toward Spain. There were many things to be considered. The small clothing store was not sufficiently strong for the work before it. It was necessary to increase and with larger land space. There were plenty of them, but there was not enough material to equip them, and

The war with Spain has done much to the benefit of the clothing industry. It has been a long time since the clothing industry has been so busy as it is now. COUNT WHO DEFIED THE KAISER.

The picture given here is from the latest photograph of Count Ernst von Lippe-Biesterfeld, whose dispute with Emperor William is fast becoming a considerable situation. The dispute arose shortly after Count von Lippe-Biesterfeld's position, who after all, is not a subject, but a prince. The Count von Lippe-Biesterfeld, who is the head of the Lippe family, is a prince of the German Empire. He is a member of the House of Lippe, which is one of the many princely houses of Germany. He is a man of high rank and is known for his defiance of the Kaiser.

ODD ITEMS OF INTEREST.

A large paper house with 10 rooms has been erected by a Russian upon the country estate at Bayreuth, Prussia. The house was constructed in New York by an American contractor. The architect designed that it will last longer than a stone building. To make the structure of paper still more secure, the architect has provided that the whole of the structure shall be made of the same material. Albert Mann, a Prince of West Prussia, has a house which is made of paper. The house is made of paper and is designed to last longer than a stone building. SOME FAMOUS TREES.

In a little churchyard, some miles from Dorchester, the home of Darwin, are to be found some of the most famous trees in all England. The churchyard is in the name of this little place, and it is known throughout the country for the magnificent yew trees which stand around and shade the old building with their spreading branches. There is no telling how old the trees are, but they are of great age. The little church stands on an eminence, and the trees can be seen from a great distance. It is supposed that they were there during the time of William the Conqueror. They are among the finest in England, and great care is taken to preserve them from harm. Some of the trees are over 1,000 years old.

There are so many that it would take several months to count them. QUEER DERVISH DRUMS.

Many strange and interesting relics were packed up on the deck after the battle between the English and Egyptian troops and the dervishes by the troops. They have gone to make up a collection of souvenirs of the Egyptian campaign which will be placed in the British Museum.

The British Museum. Among the things which were found were a number of dervish drums. They are peculiarly constructed and are rather more picturesque than the other relics. Unlike the drums used in our army and navy, those from the dervishes of the East have been made of wood and are played with the hands. They are much larger in size than the drums used in our army and navy.

A BEAUTIFUL GRAND DUCHESS.

The Grand Duchess Serge of Russia is said to be the most beautiful of Queens. Visiting cards, like many other interesting articles were invented by the Chinese about 2,000 years ago, and in that country the style has never changed. The Chinese card is not an elaborate or expensive affair, although it is very much the appearance of a laundry check.

Visiting cards were first introduced into Europe about 150 years ago and since their advent have changed a number of times. Some interesting specimens have been collected, and they show how different the cards of a century ago are from those used at the present time. Many of them are very picturesque, while others were engraved with an eye to business as well as pleasure. Some are of plain white, with the names printed in script, while others are colored and decorated in fancy designs. One of the designs which found favor with the people was in the shape of a card, which was in the shape of a card, which was in the shape of a card.

HOW MAX BEERBOHM SEES ALMA-TADEMA.

Mr. Alma-Tadema is an artist of no small reputation. In fact, he is known the world over as one of the best scenic artists of the day, and the work of his brush is eagerly sought for by the best of theatrical managers. He is tall and portly, rather round, very dignified and has a commanding presence. Yet, the appearance of his face would lead one to believe otherwise. This, however, is the fault of Mr. Tadema. It is the work of Mr. Max Beerbohm, a well known caricaturist and a member of Mr.

Beerbohm, the talented English artist. The picture was made by Mr. Beerbohm, and it is a very good one. It is a caricature of Mr. Alma-Tadema, and it is a very good one. BRAZIL'S BALANCING ROCK.

Nature has shown some of her handiwork on the high hills which surround Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. This time it is in the way of a balancing rock, and one has often nothing less than a 250-ton rock to do it with. There are many of these rocks of nature throughout the world, but there is none as large as this one or placed in such a seemingly dangerous position. The great boulder rests on the very edge of a steep hill overlooking part of the city. Its position is so precarious that it is often feared that it will fall. It is a very good one. It is a caricature of Mr. Alma-Tadema, and it is a very good one. It is a caricature of Mr. Alma-Tadema, and it is a very good one. It is a caricature of Mr. Alma-Tadema, and it is a very good one.
