LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

SALT LAKE STAKE CONFERENCE.

The regular Semi-Annual Conference of the Salt Lake Stake of Zion will be held in the Salt Lake Assembly Hall, on Saturday and Sunday, July 2nd and 3rd, 1890, at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. of each day. There will be a meeting of the presiding officers and others interested in Relief Societies, Young Men's and Young Ladies' Mutual Improvement Associations, Sunday School, Primary Associations, in the Assembly Hall, on Saturday evening, July 2nd, at seven o'clock, and a general meeting of the Priesthood of the Stake, on Sunday evening, July 3rd, at the same place, at seven o'clock.

ANGUS M. CANNON, DAVID O. CALDER, JOSEPH E. TAYLOR, Presidency of the Stake.

Grain on the Sand Ridge.—The prospects are fair for a good yield of grain on the sand ridge between Kaysville and Ogden. A good shower would greatly assist the wheat and barley just now, but the crop will be very fair any way. Dry farming is a success in that region.

Rehearsals.—There will be a general rehearsal of the solos and choruses of the music in "Macteth" tomorrow (Tuesday) evening, at the Theatre, at half-past seven. In consequence of the above rehearsal, the members of Zion's Musical Orchestra will meet at the Council House on Thursday evening next, at half-past seven.

Old Folks' Excursion.—The bishops of the various wards are particularly requested to send to Bishop Hunter's office the names of those who are eligible to participate in the Old Folks' excursion, which is to take place on the 7th of July. The names must be handed in this week, without fail. The Relief Societies will please attend to picnic details as heretofore.

Primary Reports.—All the Primary Associations of the Stake who did not report in full at the Stake Conference on the 19th inst., will please send full statistical and financial quarterly reports as soon as possible, as they are wanted immediately to complete a general report for the Quarterly Conference of this Stake of Zion, to be held in the Assembly Hall, on Saturday eve, July 3d. Please forward to the office of William S. Clawson, president of the Primary Associations of this Stake.

Returned Missionary.—We had a call this morning from Elder William Driver, of Ogden, who returned a few days ago from a year's mission to Great Britain. He left home on the 10th of June, 1879, and labored in the London Conference during the time he was away. His works were rewarded with success, and he much enjoyed his mission. He returned home earlier than he expected, on account of matters that demanded his attention, and was honorably released by President Budge, with an excellent certificate for fidelity and usefulness while in the field.

Sounds from the South.—Mr. R. G. Lambert, our traveling agent, writes from Topeville on the 23d inst. Things were quiet generally in that region. Preparations were under way for celebrating the "Fourth."

Fourth Dalton, the self-confessed murderer, still adheres to his statement of having been assisted in the killing of Mrs. Parker by young Jennings, who after a weeks tedious examination was discharged for want of evidence. Dalton tells his story unvaryingly each time, and says he will die with it on his lips.

Deseret Museum.—An interesting collection of coins and medals has been presented to the Museum by Bro. John Smith on returning from his mission. One of these is a silver three-piece of Queen Anne, in fine preservation; there are a few Roman brass coins, one of Diocletian, a coin of gun-metal of the French Revolution is curious. A fine specimen of embossed leather work, done by the Slade process, has been presented by Sister Slade Barney of this city. It is the intention of the Curator to frame this specimen. The work is very curious, and some of our leather workers may perhaps imitate it and thus start a new branch of industry.

A Pleasant Time.—Yesterday morning the Sixth Ward Sabbath School children, with their superintendents, teachers and a large number of friends, assembled in the upper room of their meeting house, for the purpose of reviewing their studies for the past three months. After the sacrament had been administered the exercises began by a number of small girls, whose average age was about five years, reciting in concert a recitation entitled "I am a little Mormon," which was very pleasing. This was followed by the other classes who came to the platform in their turn, reciting and answering questions on the subject of the organization of the Ward, the Stake, and the priesthood and its duties. The questions and answers were arranged by the teachers, and evinced a good knowledge of the subject. The ladies' theological class did remarkably well, answering in unison, about forty questions without an error. The singing, too, was an enjoyable part of the programme, and showed plainly that the leaders of the choir had done their share of the work. One piece, "Our Mountain Home," deserves especial mention, the solo part of which was sung by six young ladies. The statistical and financial report of the school was read by the secretary, and showed that the school was in a very prosperous condition. Superintendent Goss and assistants are live men, and know how to make the most of such occasions. At the close of the exercises Elder George Giddard, made an interesting address.

Sunday Services.—The congregation at the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon was unusually large and very attentive. The speakers were Elders B. F. Cummings, George Q. Cannon and President John Taylor.

Elder Cummings gave a synopsis of his experiences during his recent two years mission in the States. His first stopping place, after leaving home, was Council Bluffs, where he met some of the Saints who received him with kindness and also encountered many apostates, Josephites, Shakers, etc., who were warning him and associates of the necessity of guarding against a similar fate. After leaving there, he went to Philadelphia, to begin the work of searching records for the genealogies of the people of Utah, who had emigrated for that purpose. He not being successful as he could have wished, soon left for New York and Brooklyn on a similar errand, and afterward visited the region in New England where he formerly labored as a missionary. Spent over a year there, during which time he gathered tens of thousands of names of the dead who had relatives in Utah. Was assisted greatly in his researches by the mammoth institution known as the Boston Genealogical Library, or 30,000 volumes, containing information bearing upon the history and genealogy of the founders of New England. Was astonished at the extent and magnitude of this institution, and the knowledge of the hand of the Lord in its establishment. Many took a strange and unaccountable interest in these things. When asked why, the answer would be that a taste was being developed in that direction, none knew exactly why. The Prophet Joseph was killed in the year 1844, and the New England Historical and Genealogical Association was organized by three or four gentlemen of Boston. Its members now number about 4,000, and it has as representatives leading citizens of all the principal cities of New England. Graveyards had been visited, family Bibles examined, and records searched into throughout the length and breadth of that region, to gather up every item of information pertaining to the ancestors of the people of the United States. The speaker recognized in this the providence of God and felt grateful for the work he had been permitted to do in such a good cause. He closed by bearing his testimony to the truth of the work the Saints were performing.

Elder George Q. Cannon expressed his pleasure at once more being permitted to mingle with the people of God, and to feel that he could return as the bearer of good tidings. His experience of late years had been such as to enable him to appreciate, to some degree, the signs of the times, and never did those signs look more threatening to the Latter-day Saints than at the time of his departure for Washington last December. The greatest enemies the people of this Territory had to encounter, were those who should be their friends, those who lived here and were better acquainted with the condition of things and the character of the people than any who lived beyond our borders. They were the ones who stirred up all the discord and trouble, who manufactured falsehoods and calumnies, and sent them abroad to prejudice the outside world against the great majority of Utah's inhabitants. There was not a disposition in Congress, nor throughout the country generally, to adopt harsh measures against the Latter-day Saints. Because of this, a few mischievous creatures in our midst were fearful that something might be done to give this people the rights and means they deserved and deserved, and were continually misrepresenting the true state of affairs here, denouncing the "Mormons" as disloyal, not fit to be entrusted with the rights, that life and property were unsafe, and that if Utah was admitted into the Union, the "Mormon" hierarchy would have unbounded sway, and no Gentile could possibly live in the Territory. But these stories did not now gain the credence they once did. The railroad was a great educator of the public mind concerning Utah, and people were coming here constantly to see things for themselves. By this means, errors resulting from the false statements of our enemies had been and would continue being dissipated. The establishment of the railroad and other facilities, had made it more difficult to circulate falsehood. The speaker had done all he could to influence public men to come west, and on their way across the continent to carry a few days in Salt Lake City. Many had done so, and would continue to do so, and to-day the speaker did not know a man in either house of Congress who had visited this Territory that was not friendly to this people. These men were not converted to our doctrines by visiting us, but had had their minds disabused of prejudice engendered by misrepresentation. When they came here there was a class of individuals ever ready to abuse and insult them if they did not at once avow open hostility to the people with whom they were entirely unacquainted. They were accused of being bought by the "Mormons" if they simply told the truth of things as they actually existed. All their own advantages, however, for it showed our traducers up in their true light to the prominent men of the nation, and reflected corresponding credit upon the people of Utah. The efforts to malign and injure us had only advertised us. Secretary Evans' circular had been an excellent starting point, and we would probably never have been issued had his author foreseen how much good it would accomplish for the people against whom it was directed. The speaker had been told by many that it was this same circular that first turned their minds toward Utah affairs. All things working together for good, and the hand of God was everywhere manifest. Some did not believe God interposed in behalf of the children of men, but this was the faith of the Saints, and they should teach these doctrines to their children and ever cling to them themselves. They should live what we profess, cultivate in our children a respect for knowledge, our religion and its doctrines and always would be it was nothing extraordinary that they should be opposed now. Our trust was in God. We had received our knowledge, our religion and its doctrines and ordinances from him, and we were dependent upon him for care and sustenance. We did not receive our faith from the great virtues, scientific or philosophical of the age, but through the revelations of the Lord Jesus Christ, and to him we looked for guidance and protection. Our aim was to be a people who were true to men, and our desire was to treat all men with kindness, respect and fair dealing, and we did not acknowledge that our lives were in any man, nor in any one but God. We knew nothing of our religion until God revealed it. Before that, we were as ignorant as the world today, and we were as ignorant as the world today, and God sent the gospel to enlighten the world. We were sent, not to be taught, but to teach the principles of life everlasting. As to those who professed to have such an interest in the welfare of the Saints, let them prove it by sending their good works. God had set his hand to accomplish certain things, and nothing this side of heaven or in hell could prevent the accomplishment. Men might try to do it, but their plans would be frustrated. Our object was to do right, treat all men right, treat our government right, and be loyal, honest, and upright, seeking to promote the happiness of all the human race. We were willing that all men should do as they saw fit, but we would pursue the even tenor of our way, and seek to keep the commandments of God. Zion would roll forth, the knowledge of God would increase, the kingdom be established and rule forever and ever, while the wicked were swept away with the besom of destruction. The speaker then invoked the blessing of God upon the righteous, that they might be true and faithful to their trust. The choir sang the anthem, "In Thine O Lord, we put our trust."

THE OLYMPIC GAMES.—These games were celebrated in Greece every four years, the interval between them being called an Olympiad. They existed for more than 2,000 years, and were finally abolished by Theodosius A. D. 394. It was here the Greeks contended for the great prizes similar to those awarded to the Duryeas at the late Centennial for starchy superior to that of every other manufacture.
