An Episcopal Clergyman Arrested at Denver On a Charge of Forgery.

EXPLOSION OF "RED FIRE"

A Fifteen-Year-Old Girl Charged With Burglary.—Destructive Mountain Fire in Colorado.

Two large forest fires in the mountains north of Pike's peak are doing an immense amount of damage.

W. H. H. Waggoner, editor of the Lincoln county Ledger and one of the most prominent men in that portion of Colorado, has just died.

Salem, Colorado, was in sorrow at 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning. Otto Roth, an employe of the Union Pacific, while charging an improvised cannon was seriously injured by having its one hand blown off and otherwise burned.

This is what the Denver News has to say: It is a glorious Fourth now for the small boy. He was blown to the small boy. He was blown to bits, shot up, has teeth blown out, arms shot off, feet cut off, eyes blown, all in one short day, and Police Surgeon Wheeler did not have a moment to himself.

The Highland Irrigation company has just completed a reservoir, ten miles from San Diego, Cal., with a capacity of 1,500,000 gallons, which will be filled by a pump having a capacity of 4,000,000 gallons daily. Upward of 2000 acres of land will be irrigated. The pipes are now being laid. The company will soon build another reservoir a few miles from the present one, with a larger capacity, to irrigate 4500 acres more.

What came near being an awful accident on the night of the Fourth was averted only by a special dispensation of Providence. Out in the Western addition, on McAllister street, near Barnaman, there was an explosion of "red fire," which shook the buildings within several blocks of the vicinity, shivered panes of glass, wrecked a drug store, partially demolished a grocery and injured several persons. Exactly how the accident occurred nobody seems to be able to tell, but that there were not more people hurt is little short of a miracle.

Adam Dixon, an ex-convict, was killed by Fred Gray in Grass, Nevada, on Tuesday afternoon. It is reported that Dixon made some filthy remarks about Grey's mother. Gray, who was in liquor, approached Dixon from behind, shooting him in the left side of the head, over the ear. Dixon, who never spoke, expired in a few minutes. Grey then turned the pistol into the saloon, snapping it five more times but the shells did not explode. He was arrested at once. Dixon met death in the same saloon where he shot a man named Campbell some years ago, for which he served ten years in the Nevada State prison.

A fifteen-year-old black-eyed girl and two men giving the names of Middleton and Lawrence were arrested at Santa Ana, Cal., late on Tuesday evening on a charge of burglary. Considerable stolen goods were found in their possession. The officers believe the trio have been operating in Southern California during the past year and look on the arrest as a most important one. The little girl claims to have been raised in San Diego, where her father now resides. She says she is Lawrence's wife, but her story is not believed. She went to jail with the two men.

Big Valley can boast of as queer a case of feeblemindedness as is to be found in Oregon or anywhere. We will mention no names, but the family is residing only a few miles from Adin. The gentleman married a widow whose daughter was almost a young lady. Several children were born to them. The wife died, and the mother of these the daughter married her step-father, and now, besides being the wife of her own step-father, she is stepmother to her half-brothers and sisters. He is the husband of his own stepdaughter, and father of the half-brothers and sisters of his living wife.—Adin (Cal.) Argus.

The Rev. M. Edwards, an Episcopalian writer, of Dallas, Tex., reached Tuesday in Denver's city jail. He is on his way to San Francisco under the charge of Officer Knight. In San Francisco Edwards was connected with Trinity Episcopal church and had charge of the funds of the old ladies' home. About three months ago he received a call to take charge of a church in Palestine, Texas. After his departure it is said his accounts were found to be incorrect and he was indicted by the grand jury for embezzlement. His arrest in Palestine created a sensation. Edwards states that his indictment was due to spite work and that his accounts are all right.

A destructive fire has been raging in the mountains in the vicinity of Cathedral rocks, four miles south of Monument, Colo. The fire originated through the carelessness of some others who were burning brush and failed to extinguish the fire. The mountains in that district are densely timbered and the destruction of timber will be very great unless the fire is extinguished. As no water is available the only hope lies in the advent of a heavy rain. The mountains are entirely enveloped in smoke and the fire appears to be spreading. There is considerable dry timber lying above, which makes matters worse, as there was once a camp located there. The timber is government reserve land.

A distressing accident occurred at Clackamas river, two miles south of Oregon City (Oregon), when M. F. Bradley's team became frightened and ran away, throwing the wagon containing himself, wife and four children over a rocky precipice forty feet high. As the wagon was going over he jumped and caught upon the verge of the precipice, but the rest fell to the bottom and were all more or less seriously injured. Mrs. Bradley struck upon the rocks at the bottom, tearing the scalp loose from her head. She was rolled into the water and was found after an hour's search 300 yards down the stream. The baby, 18 months old, was brought up uninjured as was also the seven-year-old boy. The eldest child, a boy 10 years of age, sustained a concussion of the brain and is in a critical condition. The other two children escaped with serious bruises.

John McFarland, who attends to the animals at Ranch's, in Denver, was severely burned about the head and arms on Tuesday afternoon while assisting at the installation of the ball loon. He was engaged in "sparking," which would seem to be a decidedly dangerous job. To do it a man must go inside the balloon, into which hot air is being driven from a fire of gasoline and wood. The flue runs into the big sac and the "sparker" must see that it does not set fire to the cloth. A puff of wind came, the balloon caught fire, and before McFarland could extinguish the blaze the whole affair collapsed about him and he was fearfully burned before the bystanders could get him out. Physicians were summoned and the injured man was removed to his home. At first it was feared he would lose his eye, but after a more careful examination the doctors decided that their patient would recover without permanent damage beyond a few scars.

Another horrible tragedy was enacted in Butte, Mont., on Tuesday. Thomas Cassels, a miner, cut the throat of his wife from ear to ear, almost severing her head from her body, and then took a rig dose of strychnine and died within a hour. He was about 45 years of age and his wife was about 35. It appears that Cassels has suspected and accused his wife of infidelity for a month or more, and frequently threatened to kill her. But one other occasion did her life or that of her neighbors seem to be in such imminent peril as on Tuesday. Cassels spent Monday night in town drinking and playing cards with friends. This morning he took his wife to his home, killed her head first and made certain of her death with a razor. He then released his victim and left the house. A few minutes after the tragedy an friend discovered the body by the side of his dead wife. Another account says that Cassels and his wife had been separated by the fact of his drinking habits and late in the night he went to the house and cut his wife's throat. He was arrested in the act and lodged in the jail, where he died very early this morning.
