LOCAL BRIEFS.

An interesting service of song was given last evening in the Westminster Presbyterian church, which was well attended.

The Epworth league of the First Methodist church will present the Tuskegee colored male quartet tomorrow evening, at the church, the proceeds to go towards the new building fund.

The public library has been enriched by the addition of a 16-volume series entitled "Famous Composers of Music," and the demand from the musical part of the community is such that the board is proposing to buy another set of the same work.

There was a small blaze at the residence of M. Butler, on Ninth and I streets, at 9:25 o'clock this morning, the same being caused by the combination of boys and matches. Fortunately no damage was done, and the blaze was extinguished before it got a fair start.

Roy Bragshaw, who was arrested several days ago on the charge of embezzlement, was arraigned in Judge Diehl's courts this morning and entered a plea of not guilty. The defendants' bail was placed at $250, and the case set for preliminary hearing June 30. The accused was unable to furnish the necessary bond, and was taken to the county jail.

J. J. Lonergan of Los Angeles is at the Kenyon, where he is not slow in expressing an appreciation of this city. He is on his way home, after a visit to Denver. Mr. Lonergan says that Salt Lake property yields more revenue than Los Angeles property, and advises that local dealers to steer clear of sky scraping prices. The hospitality extended to the Los Angeles people impressed him very much.

A horse belonging to Thomas Wybel, an expressman, became frightened while standing in front of the White House hotel yesterday afternoon, and ran away down Second South street. Several vehicles narrowly escaped a smashing, and the runaway finally came to grief at Fourth West street, where he ran up against a pole. When an attempt was made to get the animal on his feet, it was found he had broken his neck.

Colonel George B. Squires will lecture next Monday evening in the Third Presbyterian church, at Eleventh East and Eleventh South streets, on the battle of Gettysburg, the occasion being the forty-third anniversary of that noted battle. The program will also include quartet singing, a recitation by H. E. Dewey, and singing by Miss Martha McClain, daughter of the pastor, who arrives home this week from Oberlin college, where she is a student.

The Knights of Pythias held memorial services yesterday, at Mt. Olivet cemetery, where 200 members of the order observed the occasion. The Knights marched from their hall at 10 a. m., yesterday, headed by the State band, to State and Second South streets, where cars were in waiting to take them to the cemetery, each man carrying a boquet of flowers. The services were opened by Past Supreme Representative F. W. Gardner, followed by short addresses from Past Grand Chancellor Allan T. Sanford, Grand Chancellor R. E. White and Supreme Representative Dr. O. C. Douglas. After the speaking, flowers were deposited on the graves of departed Knights, and a special delegation went over to the City cemetery where graves there were also decorated.

CONFERENCE OF ENSIGN STAKE.

Quorums and Other Organizations Reported in Satisfactory Condition.

SERVICE IN THE AFTERNOON.

Elder Riter Speaks on Practical Religion and Elder Smith on Sunday Observances.

The quarterly conference of the Ensign stake of Zion convened Sunday morning in the Assembly hall, President Richard W. Young and counselors presiding. The attendance was fair, and after the preliminary exercises, which included an address of welcome from the presiding officer, the condition of the High Priests' quorum was reported by President Hamilton G. Park, while Elders John A. Evans, Arthur W. Brown, Heber J. Romney and William F. Atkins spoke for the First, Second, Third and Fourth Elders' quorums respectively, reporting them in satisfactory condition.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session was held in the Tabernacle and began by the choir singing the hymn, "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire." Prayer was offered by Bishop George Romney of the Twentieth ward. The choir further sang, "Ye simple souls who stray."

Elder William W. Riter was the first speaker. He expressed pleasure with the practical character of the teachings received at the morning meeting. This had appeared to him as a striking peculiarity of the "Mormon" faith, and one which perhaps had little place, if any, among other religious denominations. It was advised at the morning session that the members of the different quorums be schooled in the principles of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. This was an essential part of the teachings of "Mormonism," for the contumely heaped upon the Saints was such as to call for intelligent action in self-defense.

Elder Riter spoke of the religious attitude of the world generally, and said that mere sincerity was not sufficient for heavenly favor. The Lord had spoken from the heavens and revealed His mind and will unto men, and He expected them to profit by the things revealed. Religion with the Latter-day Saints was a practical institution, calculated to better fit men for the journey of life. It was not alone a spiritual institution as with the world, but a temporal institution as well, looking into the material affairs of life with a view to improving and bettering society.

In this connection Elder Riter cited the different occupations of those presiding in the Ensign stake. Some were lawyers, some merchants, some mechanics and some clerks, yet all were engaged in the work of the ministry, spending their time to benefit their fellow men. These men were liberal and broadminded in their religious views, and confined their efforts not alone to business or to religion, but so mingled the two as to bring one in perfect harmony with the other.

The Gospel, said the speaker, was generally defined as glad tidings; but it was more than this. It was God's truth, comprehending every principle of truth, religious and otherwise. As man is a dual being, so also is his religion of a dual character. It has been fashioned to suit every element of his being, to meet every condition in him, provided he will apply it in his daily life.

Elder Riter gave the world's conception of life as a spontaneous production, or, as Huxley expressed it, the product of dead matter. This theory, however, was disrobed by the Prophet Joseph Smith, who contended that life was a product of antecedent life. This announcement was later verified by Prof. Tyndall, thus vindicating the position taken by the Prophet Joseph.

The speaker made this allusion in order to show that the Prophet was inspired of God. He said the Latter-day Saints welcomed every scientific discovery, for they knew that if such discoveries were true, they would not conflict with the teachings of "Mormonism."

ELDER GEORGE A. SMITH.

The choir sang the anthem, "Let the Mountains Shout for Joy," after which Elder George Albert Smith addressed the meeting. He admonished those having children to teach them to pay due reverence to houses of worship, and to properly respect the Sabbath day. If the children were taught in this manner, they would grow up to be an honor and a credit to their parents, and set an example before their fellows that would be recognized and have an effect upon them for good. The desecration of the Sabbath, said the speaker, was too common among the children of men. The Latter-day Saints were great believers in the sacredness of the Sabbath day, yet many of them, in an unwary moment, perhaps, disregarded this command and thus deprived themselves of blessings which otherwise they might enjoy. In olden times men were stoned to death for violating the Sabbath day, so sacred was this commandment held. But today men wantonly violated this provision, and sought recreation and pleasure when they should rest from their labors and pay their devotions unto God.

The speaker said that in the world there were differences of opinion as to the observance of the Sabbath day. With the Latter-day Saints, however, there was no room for such differences, for the Lord had spoken from the heavens and had given them the necessary instructions for its proper observance. It was wrong to seek pleasure on the Sabbath day and the Lord would certainly bring to account those who persisted in such conduct.

The choir sang the anthem, "Unfold Ye Portals Everlasting," and the benediction was pronounced by Elder John M. Knight of the stake presidency.

IDAHO FOREST RESERVE.

Latest One to be Established is the One in Cassia County.

One of the very last forest reserves to be created is the one in Cassia county, Ida., which comes into actual existence by a proclamation of the president. It sets aside about 326,000 acres of land in Cassia county, Ida., lying just north of the Nevada line in the Shoshone mountains. This reserve was created on petition of a number of residents in that vicinity who wanted to conserve the waters of certain streams rising in these mountains, which supply a large agricultural range and live-stock district before reaching Snake river, into which they flow. The establishment of the reserve was also found to be important in order to insure a controlled use of range and thereby harmonizing the interests of the sheep and cattle men now using it between whom there is much bitterness.

SEEING SALT LAKE.

Manifest Increase in Tourist Stop-Over Business in this City.

The hot weather that has been Utah's portion during the past few days, seems to have struck other portions of the land, as there is a great awakening of local tourist trade. The "Seeing Salt Lake" cars this morning had to be doubled in number, and a permanent order was issued for two cars instead of one for the morning trip over the city. It was learned at the company's office this morning that the figures for last year show a total of 23,000 tourists carried over the city, and that the prospect for this year is much heavier. The cars out this morning made trips numbered 25,079 and 25,080 since the cars began to operate.
