55th Hose; Samuel B. Conely, 26th Hose; Jacob Alt, Engine No. 31; Wm. Vandergraw, 3d Light Hose; Brooklyn; J. H. Segbers, Engine No. 4, Williamsburg; E. R. Young, Esq., an old New York fireman, joined the party at Ogden. There were also several ladies on the train.

On the run which was made in an hour and a half, there were told some stories of fires and fraternal fights in which the Go ham firebugs on board had participated, which were highly characteristic of the volunteer fire department of the metropolis in former years.

On the arrival of the party in Ogden it was learned that the excursion train would not arrive until seven o'clock or later. Then came a highly graceful and hospitable act on the part of some of the firemen of the Junction City. Six carriages were procured and the Salt Lakers were taken on a drive where they inspected the electric light works, the water works, the fine scenery, etc., thus whiling away several hours in a very agreeable manner.

INTO OGDEN CANYON,

Mr. Ford, assistant foreman of the hook and ladder boys, and Hiram Lewis, Esq., an honorary member of the Ogden Fire Brigade, are chiefly responsible for this treatment towards the visitors.

The Ogden firemen had made preparations to receive the excursionists in a fitting manner, and in company with the visitors from Salt Lake waited impatiently for the delayed train. It was expected about four o'clock, but repeated dispatches came, announcing its loss of time, until at length 7:20 was fixed as the hour when it would reach Ogden. The Ogden Fire Brigade had been all eagerness to welcome the excursionists, and shortly before 7 o'clock formed in procession at their hall and marched to the depot, preceded by the Ogden City Band, a fine organization by the way.

Thousands of people streamed towards the depot before, during and after the marching thither of the Fire Brigade. The platforms surrounding the railroad buildings became a and appearances indicated that the population of Ogden had been reinforced by that of neighboring country districts.

SEA OF HUMANITY,

Another dispatch came, deferring the arrival of the excursion train till 7:35, and while the multitude surged and waited, the Ogden City Band played occasionally. At length the whistle of the expected train sounded, and at this signal some half a dozen engines in the yard joined in one united and terrific scream of welcome.

When the excursion train stopped, the Ogden City Band struck up, and the visitors from Salt Lake, with the Chief and other officers of the Ogden Fire Brigade, sought out the President of the New York Veteran Firemen's Association, to extend a personal welcome.

In response to the music of the Ogden band, and the reception tendered the excursion by the citizens, Cappa's band alighted from the train and played a selection in a style that

THRILLED THE MULTITUDE.

After the loss of less than half an hour's time, the excursion train left for Salt Lake. The coach of the escort from this city was attached to it, and the members of the party mingled with the firemen in a sociable way during the run southward. The old time firemen of New York who reside here, were very cordially treated by the excursionists. The train reached the Utah Central depot at about 10 o'clock, and on its arrival the firemen formed and marched up town. Most of them stopped at the Walker House.

This morning at about 9 o'clock, the Salt Lake Fire Department, in uniform, formed at their hall and, led by Held's band, marched down First South Street to Third West, and with a "right wheel" continued to the Utah Central depot. On the south side of South Temple Street, just east of the depot, the Salt Lake firemen formed in single line, facing the centre of the street. Cappa's band and the New York firemen then formed at the depot, and marched eastward, the veterans drawing their ancient hand engine. The Salt Lake firemen stood with while their visitors marched by and the latter responded by raising their hats while passing. After going beyond the line of Salt Lake firemen, the New York veterans formed in single line as the former had done, and the mutual salute was performed as before. This maneuvering was very graceful, and neatly executed throughout.

After this exchange of salutes the Salt Lake Fire Department preceded by Held's band, marched toward Main Street, and were followed by Cappa's band which, in turn, was followed by the New York firemen, pulling their hand engine. It was a and excited the admiration of the throngs of people who lined the streets through which it passed.

As the famous Seventh Regiment band wheeled into Main Street, it struck up an air, and the streets of this city have seldom if ever before resounded with such strains as this magnificent organization poured forth. The procession marched down Main to Third South, thence east to Second East, thence north to First South street, and thence west past the Firemen's Hall.

At the latter place the steamer and hoscarr, each with its span of horses attached, stood on the side walk. As the New York firemen passed, the steamer whistled a salute, and the crew of the steamer and hoscarr sent up a cheer, in which the crowd along the street joined with a vim.

The procession continued down First South Street to the Utah & Nevada depot, Held's and Cappa's bands playing alternately as they had done during the march. A long was in waiting to take the firemen and the general public to Garfield. Two cars were reserved for the Seventh Regiment band, two for the Salt Lake firemen and four for the New York firemen. About eight or ten cars were allotted to the public. Shortly after 11 o'clock the train rolled out.

THE OFFICERS

of the New York Veteran Firemen's Association are as follows:

President, G. W. Andersen; Vice-Presidents, John Moller and A. C. Hull; Recording, Financial and Corresponding Secretaries, B. M. Sweeney, A. T. Anderson and Thomas Barrington; Treasurer, J. F. Wenman; Sergeant-at-Arms, Henry Jones.

The excursion comprises 100 members of the association, many of whom are accompanied by ladies. The organization was formed in 1885, and a person to be eligible for membership, must have belonged to the old volunteer fire department of New York City prior to the time it was disbanded in or about 1865, which event occurred at about the time of the introduction of steam fire engines. Not a fireman among the excursionists is less than forty-six years old, and many seem to be bordering upon, and some to have passed the allotted age of man. Many of the party since they were volunteer firemen, have attained wealth and distinction, and all of them are well-to-do. Each is provided with three uniforms, a wine, a smoked pearl, and a drab fatigue. They wore the second while on parade to-day.

REPEATED OVATIONS

have been extended to the party since its departure from New York City on the 5th inst. Buffalo was reached at about 2 a.m. and the firemen there made a great demonstration, and exacted a promise that the excursion would, on its return make a stop there. At Chicago a grand time was had, as detailed in the press dispatches. At Omaha the enthusiasm of the citizens in welcoming the veterans was boundless. In many instances, when some of the latter would enter a store to purchase some small article, such as a necktie, etc., the store keepers would refuse to accept payment.

At Cheyenne, the fire department turned out with great enthusiasm to greet the excursionists, though the latter could stop there but a few minutes.

Between Evanston and Ogden

A TERRIFIC RATE OF SPEED

was at times made by the excursion train. A mile a minute was frequently reached, and the last forty miles before reaching Ogden was covered in forty-five minutes. The train was drawn by a locomotive of tremendous power and immense proportions, and contained ten sleeping and dining cars, provided with every convenience and luxury. Lew Forbes is the engineer and Bert McKenzie the conductor. Trainmaster McIntosh was aboard, and Agent Luzzalls of this city met the train Green River and returned with it.

The Utah & Nevada train hearing the firemen, arrived at Garfield shortly before noon, and the visitors proceeded to participate in the pleasures of the place, bathing, boating, etc. During the afternoon a grand dinner was given in honor of the veterans. Speeches were made, and a occurred, preparations for which had been kept a secret. The firemen of this city had had made from Utah silver a miniature hydrant, with a section of hose coiled around it and a fireman's hat leaning against it, the device being an inscription showing that it was presented to the New York Veteran Firemen's Association by the Salt Lake Fire Brigade. Chief Ottinger made the presentation in a suitable speech, and the gift was accepted with appropriate expressions of appreciation. It will adorn the club house of the association in New York.

The excursionists will return to this city from Garfield in time for Cappa's band to prepare for the concert to be given in the theatre this evening, and at or about midnight, the visitors will board their own train and start for the west.
