

INDIAN WAR VETS HOLD REUNION

More Than a Hundred Gather in Armory Hall for Joyful Occasion.

CAMPFIRE SONGS A FEATURE.

Governor Cutler Delivers Address Favoring Pensions for Veterans—Col. Squires Follows.

Fifty veterans of the old Indian wars of Utah and more than a hundred of their friends gathered in Armory hall last night to hold a reunion. A feature of the gathering was the singing of a campfire song entitled, "In Our Leaky Tents We Sit," and a number of other topical songs, which created much hilarity and were followed by a selection of blood curdling Indian yells.

THE GOVERNOR'S ADDRESS.

Gov. Cutler said:

"The little I shall say to you tonight will be along the line indicated by part of the second inaugural address of President Lincoln. It was delivered on March 4, 1865, about a month before the terrible civil war ended. After speaking of the policy of the government in carrying on the war, and indicating his belief that the conflict was almost over, he outlined the aims and purposes of the government in relation to the losses occasioned by the strife. Among these purposes he set forth the aim of the government to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow, and his orphan. Out of this noble sentiment, expressed as only Lincoln could express it, has been perfected the splendid pension system of the United States, the most liberal, extensive, and humane in the history of the world.

"I am in favor of the pension system. I am convinced that no better use can be made of a portion of the nation's revenue than to apply it to the support of the old veterans and the helpless ones they have left behind. Lincoln said that thousands upon thousands of the heroes who had done their duty in the civil war would be helpless and penniless at its close. Wounds and sickness, and exposure and privation had done their work; and many a man who left home in the strength and prime of manhood came limping back from the war, to pass the remainder of his days in helpless poverty and hopeless sickness. And Lincoln further knew that of the hundreds of thousands who had fallen on the field of battle there were very few but had left dependent mothers or wives or children. It was to care for such that the pension system was originated and built up.

WAR NOT NATURAL.

"War in a nation like ours is not a part of the natural order of things. It arises from unexpected and unwished-for circumstances. Citizens of such a government go into war reluctantly, and then only when forced to do so by honor or necessity. In nearly every case war in the United States has had as its object the preservation of the nation from external or internal foes. It has never been—and I hope it never will be—for the oppression of the weak, and wars of the kind referred to are forced upon a nation, not sought by it.

BATTLE OF THE WEST.

"While the armies of the Union were fighting to save from division and destruction the country already won from the wilderness, bands of men, equally brave and devoted were rescuing from a savage foe the plains and valleys of the west, which have since done so much and will yet do more in adding to the wealth and the strength of the nation. In each case the peril was great and the war was reluctantly waged. And if there was any difference between the bravery of the men who faced on the battle-field their brethren of the south and of those who fought the savages, I can not see it. And it seems to me that they are equally worthy of reward.

"Your work, my honored friends, was as devoted and as self-sacrificing as that of the Union soldiers. It was just as much for the preservation of the nation. The republic could not have survived but for their devotion; it could not have expanded to the shores of the Pacific and across the ocean, but for yours. They saved a country already made; you both made and saved one. If it had not been for your brave and devoted devotion in meeting and overcoming the many savage perils which threatened the westward expansion of our nation, the triumphant crushing of the west might have been long delayed. Discouragement at that time would have meant, in all probability, a fatal interruption of our western progress.

SHOULD REAP BENEFIT.

"Because, therefore, you did so much to aid in the saving and the growth of our country, I can not see why you should not be made partakers of the benefits of the pension system. I think you ought to be, and what I mean, I think you will be. You have doubtless heard of the efforts of Senator Smoot in your behalf. Knowing that he is interested himself in securing for you the benefits of the pension laws, I wrote him about ten days ago and asked him as to the progress being made in the matter of securing benefits. In a paper written for the Educational Review Prof. William G. He gives as a reason for this that they come to school with definitely prepared for the work, and with a serious purpose of making the best of their opportunities.

The same situation has been reported from other American institutions of learning. At Stanford university the Japanese are conspicuous for the eagerness with which they devour learning on economics and history, while in English a Japanese named Nakagaki recently took the first place in a class of 50 students of the old English poet Chaucer.

At the Salt Lake high school the abnormality exists of a Japanese boy being able on several months of drill in the American manual of arms, to surpass his American brothers, who had been at it two years.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS.

There will be civil service examinations in this city, March 25, for the position of superintendent of engineering construction and plumbing, at $6 per day, when actually employed, in the operation of the public roads, or roller operator, office of public roads, department of agriculture, at $2 and $4 per day. This work involves considerable travel throughout the United States. The time of employment will vary owing to the weather conditions when the work is being carried on, but will usually be from eight to ten months each year, and in rare cases where work is being conducted in the far south, the employment may be for the entire year. Employees whose services are not required for the entire year may be furnished without pay and re-employed without re-examination at any time within one year. Traveling expenses to and from assignments will be reimbursed, but subsistence expenses while on duty must be paid by the employee.

There will also be an examination for pensions for the Indian war veterans of Utah.

"For my part, I am only sorry that I am not able to do much more in the way of helping you get these pensions. But you may be assured that so far as I have any influence with the national Congress, I shall use it for the advancement of the interests of the men who stood at the outposts of civilization, and in warfare with savages suffered the greatest wear for today's culture and progress.

UTAH IS GRATEFUL.

"I am pleased to have the privilege again of extending to you my personal greetings and the good will of the state. You saved Utah in the time of peril. Utah is grateful for the service you rendered. On behalf of the state I wish you long life and the good things of life. May your closing years be as pleasant as your earlier ones were arduous.

Governor Cutler then read a letter from Senator Smoot telling of the progress of the bill for the granting of pensions to Indian war veterans. The letter stated that the bill had passed the senate and was before the house committee on pensions.

Col. Squires, in behalf of the Grand Army, made an eloquent address to the Indian fighters contrasting their work with that of the soldiers of the Rebellion.

COL. SQUIRES' ADDRESS.

"When we went forth to battle," said Col. Squires, "we marched to the strains of martial music. A band headed each regiment; each company had its life and drum. We were brilliantly caparisoned and armed with the most modern of weapons. In battle we were charged on the enemy with the ground trembling with the fire of cannon, with gallant leaders to thrill us with their heroic examples.

"You had none of this. No martial music thrilled your souls and inspired you in battle. No cannon fire wrought havoc with your enemy. It was the personal bravery of the individual men that kept you up and led you on to victory. You did not charge your enemy en masse, but tracked the stealthy red-skin to his lair, with the chances of survival all against you.

"You were the pioneers of civilization. You blotted out savagery, prevented massacres and made this glorious west habitable to the peace-loving citizens of our republic."

Colonel Squires, joined with Gov. Cutler in urging that every son and daughter of Utah become a member of the Utah National Guard, and declared that the veterans deserved their pensions.

The invitation committee of the veterans consisted of Commander O. P. Arnold, Vice Commander James Hague, and Charles Livingston; the floor committee, William Turner, William Newell, J. E. Jemery and G. W. Reiser.

ROCKEFELLER'S UNMARKED GR. AVE.

William Avery Rockefeller, the father of the richest man in the world, is said to have been none other than the man who in 1806, bearing the name of William Livingston, now lies in an unmarked grave at Freeport, Ill. He was 96 years old.

For 50 years it is alleged, he lived a double life under the name of Livingston and for many years for ten, two wives; one, the mother of the oil king, who died in 1839, and the other, Margaret L. Allen, whom he married in Ontario, in 1855. Until within a few years of his death, his second wife did not know that he had been married before, or that the name he bore was a false one. Even now she will not admit that he was William Rockefeller.

Rockefeller was 45 years old when he deserted his wife and she died without knowing that he had married again. His three sons knew it for the last 25 years and kept him supplied with money to stick to the name and life that he had chosen. Since the death of their mother, the old man is known to have visited John D. Rockefeller and to have met with some of the cronies of his earlier days. The fact of his existence has been the skeleton in the family of the oil king and they have strenuously denied it without affecting the belief of these best able to form an opinion.

A break among the brothers, however, led one of them, Frank, in denouncing John D. to say in an interview last summer: "Go ask John D. where our father is. Tell him that I sent you, and that I defy him to answer."

SAUTELLE IN THE TOILS

Professed "Expert" Bookkeeper Arrested for Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

C. E. DeSautelle, who professes to be an expert bookkeeper is in the hands of the law on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. He was arrested at his home in this city last night by Deputy Sheriffs like Emery and Andy Smith on complaint of J. Sondregger. His bond was fixed at $500 and in default of bail was placed in the county jail.

De Sautelle came to Salt Lake City from the east some months ago and opened an office in the Herald building. He advertised himself as an expert accountant and bookkeeper, promising large salaries and steady positions to all who took instructions from him. A number were caught with his bait among these several young women of this city.

Sondregger paid the "expert" $74 for instructions on the understanding that he was to have a position paying $150 as soon as he was ready for it. The position did not materialize and the filing of the complaint followed.

Ralph H. Davis of 23 Delmar avenue, bookkeeper for the Elgin Dairy, is another victim. He complains that he paid De Sautelle $75 for instructions on the understanding that he was to receive a position paying $185. A young woman, whose name is withheld, suffered in a similar way to the extent of $70.

DeSautelle is said to have done a lively business for a time. He collected a considerable total from his dupes. He is about 40 years of age and of good address.

"JACK" PAPE HAPPY MAN

After Forty Years Suffering With a Crippled Limb He is Able to Jump on Streetcars.

"Jack" Pape, one of Utah's old-timers and a resident of Park City for years, is in the city, and he is the most delighted man in Salt Lake. Mr. Pape, when a boy, hurt his legs in polevaulting and other athletic sports. The injury was in the nature of a strain upon the largest veins running down the legs and in direct connection with others leading to the heart. As a result his legs became more or less crippled as the years rolled around and for a long time past Mr. Pape was unable to sit down without holding his legs straight, it being practically impossible for him to bend them at the knees.

A local practitioner and one of the Holy Cross hospital's staff, became interested in the case and advised Mr. Pape some time ago to undergo an operation. Mr. Pape was at first dubious, as he had been told time and time again that nothing could be done. "Some day the vein will open, a rush of blood to the heart will result and you will drop dead. Heart failure will be given as the reason for your sudden death," said various physicians to whom the sufferer went in search of aid. This thing of knowing you may drop dead at any moment isn't the pleasantest thing in the world, so Mr. Pape finally went to the hospital.

There a short time ago the entire Venus vein, as it is called, was removed from the patient's left leg; this done, 55 stitches were put in to close the long slit ranging the whole length of his leg. The ends of the severed vein were of course tied, precautions being taken to give the blood a chance to enter and circulate in other veins. Mr. Pape recovered from the effects of the operation rapidly and was released from the hospital Monday. After being unable to walk without a limp and considerable difficulty for over forty years, he can now bend his leg at the knee; dance, kick at objects and use the member as readily as a youngster. To prove how successful the operation had been, Mr. Pape ran for a car, not because he really had to, but to show the "News" man his agility. And he caught the car and hopping aboard nimbly turned to wave a most happy "Good bye."

Mr. Pape was one of the earliest comers to Park City when that place was a few houses and prospects. He was known all over Utah, Idaho, and other states, however.
