DR. TALBOT'S SERMON.

The sermon of the day, by Dr. Tal-bot, was from I Chron. xxix: 12-13. "Both riches and honor come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might," etc., and the speaker said in part: "This gatherthe speaker said in part: "This gather-ing is full of significance for two things. 1. We believe in God, and things. I. We believe in God, and recognize that he reigns over us and cares for us all. 2. We are a Christian nation. So it is fitting that we should be here today, giving thanks, first of all for personal blessings received at all for personal inclusions for the second at His hands. Life itself is a ground of thanksgiving, whether it be in plenty or want, in companionship or ionliness, joy or sorrow. Every condition of life affords opportunity to build up a noble character-the greatest thing in the world.

CHARACTER BUILDING.

No human being can be defeated in building up a character;" and in this connection Dr. Talbot called attention to the fact that one considerate faith-ful friend possessed by any one will counterbalance many losses in life.

SHOULD SHARE LUXURIES.

The man is certainly deserving of pity who without the comforts of the domestic circle, is yet burdened with all the responsibilities of married life. If you have luxuries, share them with the unfortunate, and do not consider your possession of those luxuries as the final broduct of your own wilsdom your possession of those luxuries as the final product of your own wisdom and industry. Love brings a great sustaining power to the family, great comfort to troubled hearts. Is it true that the family relations is decay-ing in America; have we turned over to the public schools the family training, and is the religious teaching going to be confined to one scant hour in the Sun-day school? If this be true, we have shirked our plain duty, and society will feel the effects of our neglect.

The same was true of manded him. The same was true of Moses and of others who have made the deepest impress upon the world. This, Bishop Spalding said, did not detract in the least from religion and high ideals, but caused them to be established in a way that God and nature intended they should be.
