AMERICAN GUESTS AT ROYAL PARTY

Mrs. Harcourt's Countrymen Will Be Much in Evidence When She Entertains King.

WILL MAKE IT RECORD AFFAIR.

Lord Innes-Ker Gets Rich American Wife-Margaretta Drexel an Acknowledged Belle.

Special Correspondence

London, July 1 .- Mrs. Lulu Har court has invited a large house party "to meet" the king at Nuneham from the 29th of June to the 3rd of July. Among others who will assemble there are her brother Walter Burns, (J. Pierpont Morgan's nephew) and his bride, Consuelo Duchess of Manches-Mrs. Cavendish-Bentinck, the ter, Mrs. Cavendish-Bentinck, the Whitelaw Reids and several other Americans. This is the first time Mrs. Harcourt has had the honor of entertaining royalty to sleep under her roof and she means to out-rival all her countrywomen who have hitherto acted as hostesses to King Edward, by the magnificence of her hospitality. Nuncham has been transformed since it came into the hands of its present owner and his American wife. From being antiquated and musty, ill-ventilated and insanitary it has been transformed into one of the most beautiful and up-to-date houses in England. The late Sir William Harcourt who loved the wormeaten old house would never allow it to be touched and it was left to his American daughter-in-law to take things in hand and send in a bevy of charwoomen and decorators which arrived on the scene within a few weeks of his death.

WILL HE DECLINE EARLDOM?

There is an idea that Lulu Harcourt There is an idea that Lulu Harcourt will one of these days be offered an earldom, but whether he will refuse the honor as his father did remains to be seen. The Harcourts are true Radicals but it is not every democrat who has the backbone to decline so great a distinction. There is no doubt the matter will in a great measure rest with his wife who, as we all know, is an ambitious woman. Since her husband became a cabinet minister she has made immense social strides she has made immense social strides and is now regarded as one of the really great hostesses whose smile counts for much politically as well as socially.

is going or not. Now this very action shows Mrs. Lulu to be a woman of originality and daring; for although John has been to Windsor castle for a dine and sleep visit, no hostess has ever until now had the daring to invite him to join a royal house party in which the king is the central figure.

ENGAGEMENT NO SURPRISE

ENGAGEMENT NO SURPRISE.

The announcement of the engagement of Lord Alastair Innes-Ker and Annie Breese did not surprise anyone. The heir of the Duke of Roxburghe has been paying his addresses to Mrs. Higgins daughter for a long time and he was about constantly with her. The Higgins were not so keen on the match as might be imagined as every poor man for a nobleman with a bare thousand a year or so—scarcely enough for pocket money for a man in his position. His chances of coming into his brother's dukedom are, of course, remote if only for the fact that one brother is likely to live as long as the other. Annie Breese has a snug fortune though by no means a phenomenal one and the young people will have to live very quietly and in quite a small way.

According to present arrangements the wedding is to take place at the end of next month. Mrs. Higgins and the bride elect are off this week to Paris to see about the trousseau which will be as beautiful as that which Mrs. Higgins gave her elder daughter who is now Lady Willoughby d'Eresby.

This approaching wedding is regarded as a sort of godsend to brighten up the end of July and keep people in town. It is expected that the Prince and Princess of Wales who are most intimate friends of the Roxburghe family will both be present.

MARGARETTA THE BELL.

burghe family will both be present.

MARGARETTA THE BELL.

The acknowledged belle of the season is Margaretta Deexel. Personally I fail to admire her which is a detail for all the world is at her feet. It is the men who have pronounced her a great beauty and their opinion is the one which counts. She has turned the heads of all the gilded youths and half the confirmed bachelors of all ages are in love with her. But all this admiration she takes with perfect equanimity—with almost indifference. This strikes people as being unnatural in so young a girl. The truth is this ambitious young woman who has a thorough appreciation of her own worth, has set up for herself a certain ideal in the matter of a husband and all the wiles and snares, all the affection and enterprise in the world will not win her untill the right individual enters upon the scene. She might be a mature spinster with years of experience in the ways of that astute animal, man, so prudent, far-seeing and collected is she. Her manners are good and she has the brightness and wit which are the birthright of all American women.

At the Dutchess of Devonshire's party on Derby night, she talked to the queen with all the savoir faire of a girl born in the purole and accepted her majesty's attention as her right. Perfectly cool, she was nevertheless extremely agreeable and Queen Alexandra, who above all things likes girls to be natural, found her ease and frankness, as she afterwards expressed it to Mrs. Drexel, "delightful."

CHOATE IN THE SWIRL.

As I write, Joseph H. Choate, the MARGARETTA THE BELL.

CHOATE IN THE SWIRL. As I write, Joseph H. Choaie, the former ambassador to the court of St. James, is carrying all before him. Every I am told Mrs. Harcourt has invited John Burns, Labor's representative in the cabinet, to Nuneham "to meet" the king but "Honest" John has not made up his mind yet whether he unique state of affairs for an American, a complete turning of the tables.

It is enough for a hostess to be able to say "our late American ambassador is coming" to guarantee the success of her party. One of the special charms of this diplomat is the fact that he never forgets a face. The most casual acquaintance he met here years ago he will be able to place and name. This, however, poved awkward the other night for a spendthrift, the youngest brother of a needy peer, who was in the habit of borrowing money from Mr. Choate when he resided at the American embassy.

can embassy. AMERICA TO THE RESCUE. "How has the world been treating you in my absence?" said the ex-am-bassador as he went up to his old acbassador as he went up to his old ac-quaintance.

"When America claimed you, I con-cluded my last trump card had gone," he replied, "but not a bit of it; for a few months later America furnished me with a rich wife, and if you will have the goodness to give me an ac-count of my indebtedness and the in-terest a check will be yours on the spot,"

History does not record whether Choate was in a position to furnish the desired account.

WINDFALL FOR DUKE.

The Duke of Manchester has at last come into some money. Talking of it to a friend at a London club the other day he remarked, "Though it is not much, it will nevertheless give a fellow a certain independence and self-respect." This windfall comes through the death of Sidney, Duchess of Manchester, a delightful old lady who was known to her intimates as "Duchess Dobbs."

The duke is very indignant with his

Dobbs."

The duke is very indignant with his father-in-law, who has suggested that he is not capable of taking care of his newly acquired income and has emphatically declined his assistance in the phatically declined his assistance in the matter. As everyone who knows anything of Manchester realizes, he has a fine capacity for getting through money, so his father-in-law's suggestion is not, after all, so far fetched as it might seem to be. Of late, nevertheless, the duke has improved considerably not being half such a spend-thrift as he used to be. He is absolutely under the thumb of the duchess, who is a most tactful, judicious, and for an American, a most amazingly domesticated woman. The gay and giddy haunts of London claim him no longer. Indeed when he is seen here it is almost invariably at his wife's side, Bank Clearings—Today's local bank clearings amounted to $1,308,247.13 as against $676,563.58 for the same day last year, an increase of $631,683.55. The manager of the clearing house says it is due to the regular increase of business, and because there was undoubtedly a temporary slump in the money market a year ago.

Clear Skies Tomorrow—The local weather map shows indications of fair skies for tomorrow, with a steady thermometer. The Mercury went up to 88 yesterday afternoon. A low barometric area is forming in the southwest but it is of no noticeable extent or strength.

NEW COAST LINE.

Through the Northwestern it Is Soon to Become an Actual Fact.

Butte, Mont., July 19.—Advices from Deadwood, S. D., indicate that the Northwestern's much talked of coast line is soon to become a thing of fact. Marvin Hughitt, president of the road, is now in the Black Hills to look over the contemplated extension. Contrary to the general understanding, it is now given out that the Northwestehn's transcontinental line will be built from Belle Fourche, S. D., near Deadwood, and will proceed directly north 100 miles. Surveying has already been started on this section.

Surveying has already been started on this section.

From the boundry line between North and South Dakota the road will be constructed throught Montana, but the details of the route are yet unknown. The grading north of Beile Fourche will commence at once.

There was a red hot race between the Northwestern and the Milwaukee to get their lines inte Rapid City from the Missouri river, and the victory of the Hughitt road has encouraged it to try to be first to the coast.

It was feared by the South Dakota people that the Casper branch would be used as the main line to the coast, but President Hughitt's presence in and around Belle Fourche has brought out reliable information to the contrary.

SAHARA'S BANDITS TAMED.

Tuaregs No Longer Rob Since the French Got Supply of Swift Camels.

The greatest attraction at the colonial exposition which the French government has opened at Vincennes is the Tuareg encampment. The bandits of the Sahara are there with their tents, their camels and their weapons, their camels and their weapons.

The veiled Tuarcgs showed neither astonishment nor interest as they crossed the Medeterranean, nor were they moved by the sights of the capital of France. One fact impressed them deeply. This was that they saw men meet strangers and treat them affably without first ascertaining whether they were friends or enemies. They could not understand it.

The density of population also impressed them as strange, and no wonder, for they had often traveled 300 miles to attack a caravan without meeting a soul.

miles to attack a caravan without meeting a soul.

Two years ago a Frenchman who met a small party of Tuaregs, at the time that peace was made with the bandits, tried in vain to get a good photograph of them. He succeeded in snapping his camera just once, but the conditions were not favorable, for every Tuareg had his face covered with a veil. Times have changed, and at Versailles every man of them is unveiled, except when they are exhibited in full attire.

Six years uso these robbers captured one of the largest trading caravans that over fell into their hands. A large number of camels and their drivers were transporting 1,500 packages of lvory, ostrich feathers and hides from the central Sudan across the desert to Tripoll. The value of this merchandise was about $300,600.

The caravan had scarcely emerged was about $300,000.

The caravan had scarcely emerged from the Sudan into the desert when the Tuaregs, their faces velled as usual and their excellent firearms in the ual and their excellent firearms in the best condition, swooped down upon it. Resistance was useless, and the valuable freight was diverted to the strongholds of the tobbers in the inner part of the desert.

Readers of the Sun already know what has brought about the change in stead of the slow baggage camels the French used when the Sahara first be-came their domain they now utilize an-imals specially fitted and trained for fast travel.

It was not until the French possessed as peaceable as women, save for one or two exploits by small parties. They thought they were at a safe distance from the French, but found their mis-take when they were called to severe account for outrages upon small cara-vans. at was not until the French possessed camels that could cover three times as much ground in a day as the ordinary pack animal that they were able to cope with the Tuacegs. The Tuacegs for generations had picked and trained their camels so that at first the French were unable to eatch them.

But for three years past every French troop in the Saharan service has equal-led the Tuaregs in celerity of move-

In the last two years three parties, two French and one German, numbering only a few men, have crossed the desert safely without molestation from ment. Since then the Tuaregs have nothe bandits. The last large expedition longer been immune from punishment.

THE KING OF SPAIN'S BOY CHOIR.

The French can catch them whenever they please. The nomads have been tamed and the once redoubtable warriors have been for about two years as peaceable as women, save for one or two exploits by small parties. They thought they were at a safe distance thought they were at a safe distance.

The French sent across the Sahara numbered 1,000 camels, all of them slow bargage animals. The Tuaregs did not hesitate on several occasions to attack the stragglers and make off with their guns and supplies, well knowing that the French could not catch them.
