

Kansas City, Nov. 19 .- A worldwide peace, substantial and enduring, possible by closer commercial and friendly relations between nawas the keynote of a notable speech delivered here tonight by Elihu Root, secretary of state. Following Mr. Root, the diplomatic representatives of Latin-American republics made speeches along the same lines." offering trade extension between the countries of North and South America as a means of bringing these countries into closer and lasting relationship. The occasion was the twelfth an-nual banquet given by the Kansas City Commercial elub, in commencation of the signing of the John Jay com-mercial treaty. Five hundred plates were laid, and many notable persons were said, and many notable persons were present. Besides Secy, Root, the speakers, in the order of their rank, were: Ignacio Calderon, minister of Bo-

bia. Sylvino Gurgel Do Amaral, first sec-retary of the Brazilian legation. Alberto Yozcham, charge d'affaires of the Chilean legation. John Barrett, United States minister to Colombia. Dr. W. Jay Scrieffelin, New York, great-grandson of John Jay, who spoke to the toast, "The Value of the Life and Example of John Jay."

E. H. Harriman, president of the Union Pacific railway, talked infor-formially on trade conditions general-

Secy. Root, who addressed him-self to the toast, "Our Relations With South America," spoke in part as fol-lows:

ROOT'S ADDRESS.

"Since John Jay made the tariff Since your Jay made the tariff freaty which is commencated by the annual dinner of this club, the United States has passed through a period of comparative isolation and indifference in foreign affairs. The fathers of the republic, who in their early lives were clubic ways nature to families entry colonists, were naturally familiar with European affairs. The whole course of colonial life, followed by the French alliance and the early wars of Great Britain, was one of intimate relations Britain, was one of intimate relations with Europe. The young republic, bounded on the north by the British provinces, on the south by Florida and Louistana, the possessions of Spain and France, and to the west by sav-age tribes under foreign influence; the mavigation of the Mississippi blocked at the mouth by foreign guns and with an extensive ocean-forme com-merce, had to be keenly alive to for-eign diplomacy, but whenever south-

Root, has just made to those countries. The secretary of state, whose eloquence has won for himself the affection and esteem of the forty million inhabitants living south of Panama, and for his country, the United States of America, he has secured the eventasting regard of the southern portion of this conti-nent. The visit of Secy, Root sooner or later will bring the industrial and commercial Americanization of the South American republics. Mr. Root has been able to appreciate that the South American countries offer today all kinds of security to American capisouth American countries offer today all kinds of security to American capi-tal, because these countries are now on a stable basis and the country is re-spected, civil and political freedom ex-ists, and revolutions exist only in the minds of newspaper writers, who find in them a good subject to amuse their readers."

to the judgment of great popular mass-es. It grows continually more true that the sentiments, feelings and opinions of "Evolution in this country has been marked by two currents, both of which the people, determine policies; decide upon the issues of peace and war, and marked by two currents, both of which have contributed enormously to its present stage of prosperity and power. The first current, whose genesis may be placed in the characteristics of the pil-grim fathers, is one of spirituality, the appreciation of the sublime, the estab-lishment of self-government, the educa-tional movement, the campaign against corruption in all its forms, and the great movement for the emancipation of the slaves. The rival current has moved in the fines of production and in the cultivation of wealth and of macitablish those sympathies between na-tions which are more powerful than written and signed treaties of alliance. A new responsibility rests upon the people whose representatives answer to their will in shaping the treatment of their will in shaping the treatment of foreign nations. The thoughtful men of every self-governing people have a duty to inform themselves carefully and thoroughly; to think soberly and clearly, and to express themselves temperately and wisely upon foreign affairs. We already realize that the same rules of right conduct which ob-tain in our individual intercourse with in the cultivation of wealth and of ma-terial prosperity. The success in this direction has been so complete that, I believe, you have reached the summit, since one of the great problems that now occupies the minds of the best peo-ple of the land is here to avoid the best tain in our individual intercourse with each other apply also to our internal ple of the land is how to avoid the in-definite accumulation of wealth. In In fact, you have reached the point as to whether an indefinite amount of wealth "My view and my hope is that wealth will be vanquished in its struggle against spirituality, and that this coun-

We realize that what is wrong and to be con-demned in the conduct of man to man is wrong and to be condemned in the conduct of public officers and in the conduct of public officers and in the conduct of public idns, "In the relations between nations, which the great body of the people now control, there should be a general, all-prevailing and controlling sense that prevailing and controlling sense that the same rules of conduct ought to be followed. Nations have souls and contry, which has been so rich in surprises to the world, will in the future, at no distant time, assume the heretofore undistant time, assume the heretofore un-known attitude of a nation becoming the upholder of the high principles of morality and the virtue of justice, love and good-will, not only in a political and administrative way, but likewise in its international relations. By as-suming that position I believe this great nation wfil attain a point of real greatness entirely unknown in the history of the world, and that indeed it will carry the prosperity of the nasciences as truly as individual citizens. The life of the just and faithful and kindly man, who is respected and be-loved by his neighbors, is the type of what every citizen should wish his own country to be in its relations to all other countries. To be narrow and hard, selfsh and grasping, to be arrogant to-ward the weak and timid in maintain-ing the right against the strong, to be it will carry the prosperity of the na-tion to a point unknown in the history of the great nations of ancient and modern times. The United States will unwilling to give kindly consideration to the rights and interests and feelings of others, to be without sympathy or helpfulness for the rest of mankind-all these things make an individual man never have cause to complain of the accumulation of too much justice and too much love, as you feel now that you have too much wealth." lespised and hated in the community "We should take the same pains to

SECY. DO AMARAL.

Secy. Do Amaral spoke in part as follows:

"We should take the same pains to help our country avoid them that we would take to avoid them ourselves. The greater part of the controversies and wars between nations arise from the tendency of the people of each na-tion to assume that upon every ques-tion which arises all the right is upon their ours aids and to held upon here. "The speech of Mr. Root in the Rio Janeiro conference reflected the broad-minded policy agreed upon by the presi-dent of the United States towards all the sisters republics of America. The their own side and to insist upon hav-ing their own way without that deliberate and kindly consideration of the rights and interests of the others side of the question which a just man would speech of Mr. Root is an everlasting event. It will remain as a monument of wisdom and clear-minded spirit of justice, and a tribute to universal give his neighbor. "America has given to the world an example of a democracy made up of individuals capable of self-control and self-restraint which enables the detruth truth. "Mr. Root, I believe, is quite weil aware of the enormous possibilities that the Americans have in trading with the Brazilian people through our chief port, and allow me to say, go to Brazil yourself, study our markets, see our resources on the spot. Be familiar with the 22,000,000 of people inhabiting Brazil, try to understand our Portu-guese language and be sure that sucself-restraint which enables the de-feated contestants in a most excited po-litical controversy to accept peacefully the judgment of the majority and leads the entire community, however deep may be its feelings, to bow with re-spect to judicial judgment. from these influences and the end of the exhaustive Napoleonic wars had led the exhaustive Napoleonic wars had led Europe to turn its strength toward its own internal affairs and the coloniza-tion and trade of the orient had begun to absorb the surplus activity of Eu-lope, we turned our attention to our own internal matters, and for a long period ceased to take much note of what was going on abroad, or to be much concerned with the way in which it might affect us. "Now, however, our growth has been

which it might affect us. "Now, however, our growth has been so great as to bring us again on the wider field of the world's trade and constructive enterprise into contact with all the great and active nations of mankind. We have entered anew, whether we will or not, by the neces-sities of our development, into the field of intimate relations with all the na-tions of the earth. It is a field in which the guiding principle laid down by Washington, of 'friendship for all, en-tangling alliances with none,' is as wise a rule of conduct as it was in Washington's time. It is as true now wise a rule of conduct as it was in Washington's time. It is as true now as it was then that Europe has cer-tain primary interests in which we are not concerned, and into which we should not permit ourselves to be drawn; yet it is a field in which we care no longer to be indifferent, or to be ignorant, for in it the interests of our vast production and trade are vi-tally concerned; and in it we have responsibilities and duties, duties to civilization and to humanify, which we cannot escape if we would, and which the conscience of America will not per-mit us to escape if we could. "In this time of vast immigration, of international investment and owner-humanity and the desire to help on the progress of civilization, the rule of peace and justice throughout the world, peace and justice throughout the world, may exert a powerful influence not only upon our own affairs with other na-tions, but upon the international inter-course of mankind. Mediation and ar-bitration are useful methods of solving bitration are useful methods of solving international controversies without re-course to war, but the true preventive of war is the willingness of the people of the world to be just toward one an-other; the strong desire of the people of the earth to be kind toward one an-other; the application of the same rules by all man to their solution interactions.

by all men to their collective treatment of other nations which good citizens apply to their individual treatment of each other. The true and final antidote for war is the love of justice and peace among the people who make war or preserve peace."

MINISTER CALDERON.

Minister Calderon spoke in part as follows:

"Bolivia has the friendliest feelings toward the United States. In practical proof of this we have commenced the great work of our developms t through the railways that we are building. We are building about a thousand miles of railway that will be a most important care no longer to be indifferent, or to be ignorant, for in it the interests of our vast production and trade are vi-tally concerned; and in ft we have responsibilities and dutles, duties to civilization and to humanity, which we cannot escape if we would, and which the conscience of America will not per-mit us to escape if we could. "In this time of vast immigration, of international investment and owner-ship, of opportunities for enterprise and of enlarged peaceful intercourse, and, above all, of steadily progressing popu-iar government, a new diplomacy has guese language and be sure that suc cess will be your reward. And this re-ward will be a matter of great satisfaction to the Brazilians, also, be-cause they will see the ties of our ancient and never-disturbed friendship become closer by all the advantages that commerce gives to men."

"The recent voyage through South America of your honorable secretary of state, who was received by us like the ambassador of peace, progress and American solidarity, is, I am happy to verify, producing the results duly ex-pected. The people of America will know more of their southern neighbors than they did before, and this fact will bring more close commercial relations bring more close commercial relations with mutual benefit.

"My country, Chile, for instance, though very rich in natural products, has but little commerce with the Unit-ed States, because we are not known. If we want capital to float a new commust go to start a new industry, we must go to the European markets, where we are well known and there we find all kinds of facilities. I hope that before long we mill show that the form that before long we will see your ships traffcking in South American waters and your goods coming to our ports in competition with the European trade.
