BEAUTY, UTILITY AND WEALTH COMBINED.

THE destruction of the forests the United States is causing much anxiety to persons interested in the future of the country. It is thought that the continual diminution of the timber will bring about climat-ic changes that will work much in-jury, prevent the fall of rain and ultimately turn the land into an arid desert. It has been shown that the destruction of forests in the old world have brought about just such disastrous results, and it is argued that the like cause will produce similar effects in America.

To encourage the planting of trees, Congress has made liberal provisions in the land laws, and there is no doubt that great benefits will accrue to the country by ex-tensive timber culture. The ques-tion naturally arises. Which is the best kind of tree to plant? The people of Utah ought to be as much interested on this point as any in the United States. The more trees planted in this natural wilderness,
