The Mercury Journal, Cripple Creek's (Colo.) new morning daily, made its first appearance on Wednesday morning.

Sam Hay, the blacksmith who was reported to have mysteriously disappeared from Carson, Nevada, last Friday, has returned to his home at the capital.

The sheep herds have been moving out of our hills for some time and heading for the great Mexican desert, their winter range, says the Wasatch Wave.

Sheriff Thomas of Meadowville county has arrived from Cuba, says the Durango, Col., Herald, with Ed Schaefer, who was arrested last Tuesday charged with having robbed the Rio Grande Southern agent of Mancos last June.

Henry Franke has been arrested at Great Falls, Mont., and held to the district court on a charge of bribery while clerk and a member of the school board in July, 1892. The complaint alleges the receipt of a $100 check from C. E. Walker, whose bid on the erection of a school house was accepted and that Franke secured the same amount to Walker's bill.

The governor's reception today says a dispatch from Paris, Union, dated Nov. 14, was a continuous ovation. Rousing meetings were held at Opera and Liberty. A procession a mile long visited Paris under a sea of welcome. Every decorator within scented the main street. The meeting tonight was held in the Tabernacle. Governor McConnell's address took the occasion to thank Mr. Budge for his services in the matter of his reference to some of the visitors.

Lester M. Edwards, a conductor on the Trumbo-Rio Grande line at Denver, fell at St. Luke's hospital with a fractured skull and hovering between life and death. During the storm of snow and sleet Monday Edwards slipped in passing from his car to the tracks and fell under the wheels. Before the motorman could stop Edwards was fearfully crushed and cut and no child was beaten to it in the place. At first it was thought he could not recover, but he is now said to be resting easily. A very successful operation was required to relieve the pressure from the brain.

David Lane of John Day, Oregon, met with a mishap which came near proving fatal. He was driving cattle on his ranch, and in running after them to the brush suddenly came upon a steep bank, ten or fifteen feet high. He was unable to check his horse in time and the animal leaped over the embankment. The fall which Lane received made him so sick that he was obliged to dismount, and after going down he was unable to rise again. He lay on the wet ground about an hour calling for help before he was heard, and when found he was in an entirely helpless condition. He is confined to his bed, with the extent of his internal injuries still in doubt.

F. E. Farnham, of New York, is expected here today from Denver, says the Cheyenne Leader of Tuesday. Mr. Farnham is a young fellow of twenty-two who is taking a 15,000 mile bicycle ride across the continent and back between New York and San Diego. Mr. Farnham will ride from here to Salt Lake City. From there he makes an air-line ride to San Francisco. Thence after a week his course will be down to San Diego, eastward by the Atlantic & Pacific, and at Albuquerque he may decide to go to the City of Mexico. His route will be by Galveston, New Orleans, Savannah, Charleston, Richmond, Washington and Baltimore.

A few mornings ago, says the Hamilton Ware, an unsuccessful attempt was made, it is supposed, to burglarize the residence of William M. Grim. The back door had been left unlocked at that side of the family who has been out to the dance could get in when they came home. One of the children was sickened considerably with a cough in the night and Mrs. Grim got up at 2 o'clock to get some family remedy for it. She ignited a light and proceeded to the kitchen, but on opening the door saw a man in the room. She screamed and the man fled. Mr. Grim has been to the Park the day previous and drew some money with which to pay his taxes, and it might be that the would-be thief knew of this fact.

James W. Burns is in from his ranch, three miles from Hailey, (Idaho) Times. He says that there are more men in the country than most people think. He has two men on the ranch that he pays $30 per month besides. Now they were here $25, recently a day passed that men do not ask for employment, and offer to work for their board. But he prefers to keep tried men and pay them $30 per month and board. At Shoshone an even worse state of affairs exists. There are men employed in the railway machine shops, and oil house at that, as no new hands are put on, who do not earn $2 per week and on average. They have families to support, too, many of them. How they can pay rent and wear, and buy food, clothing and shoes on their income on some small earnings is a mystery.

The case of Hiamelia Silva against Thomas B. Jayne is on trial at Denver. The plaintiff sues for $5,000 damages for alleged slander. Mrs. Silva kept a boarding house in 1891, and on September 15, of that year, Jayne and son and partner came to it as new riders. The next day, six weeks were due, which were refused and were spoken with a warm and resentful disregard of the plaintiff's rights and feelings. On account of the former actions people came to learn of and with her, and her reputation and business were injured to the extent of $10,000. Again on October 6, Mr. Jayne said to her before many witnesses, "I suppose you wanted me to stay and take more of your stuff to-day." He went on to charge her with putting needles in his food several times and trying to kill him.

News reached here tonight, says a special despatch from Spokane, Wash., dated November 14th, that the steamer Rose of Lake, which was sunk on Kootenai lake Friday, was raised that day and towed to Kaslo. The Idaho was not the right half a mile from Ainsworth at 7 a.m. A line was thrown out to hold her bow above water, as soundings taken immediately showed 75 feet of water under her center. Tenderer Ainsworth took off the engineer and crew. The position of the Idaho was peculiar and the slightest squall would have made her a total loss. In this emergency, Captain Hume, who was active in rescuing the steamer Rose, took the vessel in hand and worked with a will. She was raised by Mr. Ainsworth, at $5,000, the $350, although she cost $50,000. Hawsers were placed around her and the steamer was towed with little difficulty. The correspondence will be thoroughly investigated by the British courts. The owners of the wreck will probably question the validity of the sale.
