broken back by the vehement charges of Bragg's force, and was carried along with broken masses into Chickamauga, where he begged for the privilege of returning to join Gen. Geo. H. Thomas, whose guns told him that the heroic man still stood fast with his left wing. Gen. Rosecrans gave him leave and he did return, running the gauntlet, joining Gen. Thomas, and serving close to his person till night enabled him to fall back in good order to Chantanoona. That was Gen. Garfield's last day in the field. He was a special prize, and I know he will be at Chikamauga next Wednesday to celebrate the event. Otherwise infamous crimes, punishment or indictment of the grand jury, in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy public trial by an impartial jury of the district wherein the crime shall have been committed. This is the solemn contract of the Government binding on the President as well as All. Should our President be guilty of a crime, he would be entitled to a speedy trial by jury, and hope he will have justice done. But I do not want any officers, or any soldiers, or any men of arms, in this district which are the undoubted power. Violence in any form will bring reproach on us all, on the country at large and especially on us as the people of the continent. All the circumstances of the situation, and the long heroic struggle for freedom, lead me so strongly that I would be ashamed of my country if they were to feel the feelings of grief and any thought of vengeance. Vengeance is mine-saith the Lord."

to trust the public press will order its powerful influence to maintain good order and decorum which have been the rule of all the great days in Washington, July 2, 1861. Sincerely yours, W. T. SHERMAN.

Reception of the News in New York.
New York, 20.—The lateness of the hour at which the news of the president's death was received prevented the usual throng of newsmen, except at the principal hotel, and other places where men are accustomed to gather until late at night. Many who heard the news at the principal hotels, telegraph stations and newspaper offices, came to the city for confirmation. About the Fifth Avenue Hotel, early in the evening, thousands of people walked in the streets. The plaza in front of the illuminated banner on the roof of the building, at the junction of Broadway and Fifth Avenue. Bulletins given there were favorable as late as 10 o'clock. At that hour the streets were thronged, and the corridors of the hotel were densely filled. When the light of the camera was turned off and the crowds slowly dispersed. The last bulletin shown was encouraging. The crowds grew smaller and smaller. Within ten minutes after the President died, Chief Clerk, got news from the White House that a telegram came concerning the intelligence, and he clerked out a group of five or six about the time it was 10 o'clock. At 11:20, not 20 minutes around, when a group of reporters rushed in. One of them seized the wall with the door and fastened it at 10.50." In five minutes more men began to crowd in. Many of them were there who doubted its words, and they went to the chief clerk's desk to be convinced. The news was then scattered quickly and almost entirely in the corridors and rooms. Men came running all over the place; others came running in from supper to get the truth. The crowd grew on the sidewalk until it overflowed onto the street. About midnight men and boys came streaming from Newspaper Row, many crying "Extra! Extra!" and shouting "He's dead! He's dead!" as he received Cassen's paper.

received and Gen. Arthur broke it, opened the envelope and read the letter, buried his head in his hands and remained in this position for a long time. Meantime, the dispatch was being read by the telegraph office. A message from the cabinet informing the Vice-President of the death of the President, by 12 o'clock the afternoon of the 15th, reached the White House and the house filled the street. A few moments after receiving the news of the President's death, Gen. Arthur's son hastened up the steps. He found his father in his study room with his father, but the latter was still too much affected by the news to speak. It was 12:30 o'clock when Gen. Arthur received the formal notification of the President's death, signed by the members of the cabinet. He had not then received the news to take. He then became completely overcome and again buried his face in his hands.

At 1 o'clock the throng in the vi-surging into the city by rail and ferry this morning has beat all the noise that ordinarily characterizes it; newspaper stands are swept bare of every word, with the single and significant exception of the one of which the forgery of Garfield's handwriting appeared during the Presidential campaign, great piles of which paper were left untouched. The

The crowds do not seem to diminish about the bulletin boards as the day wears on.

The Body.—The Secretary Windom says the body will undoubtedly be at Washington to-morrow. This is the result of their conference. Mrs. Garfield was at first going to direct to Memorial, but she has been convinced it is better to let the nation that she should be taken to the capital.

The cabinet cannot speak of the death without the greatest emotion.

Agnew has been requested to go to the immediate cause of the President's death, but in his opinion it is due to spasms of the heart, induced by blood clot.

The Garfield Fund.—Brown Bros. gave the Mrs. Garfield fund $5,000. Gen. Grant went to Long Branch this morning.

Socks.—Stocks and governments opened strong at 11 to 12, but boards soon adjourned.

President Arthur.—New York, 20.—Arthur, accompanied by Col. Bliss, left at noon for Elberon, by special train.

His Reception at Elberon.—

Elderson, 20, 1.25.—President Arthur was well received by the people, and escorted to the station by a reception accorded him. He was met at the station by about 50 carriages, which accompanied him to Elberon.

Elaine.

New York, 20.—Secretary Blaine arrived this morning and is now with President Arthur.

Examiner.

Elberon, 20, 2.15 p.m.—The em-balmer has arrived, and the body of the President is being embalmed.

The Federal Train.

Long Branch, 20.—MacVegh who manages the removal of the remains from Long Branch to Wash-ington, says the Pennsylvania Railroad will send four coaches here to be used on the occasion. The train to be made up as follows: First car, baggage; second car remains of the President and escort; third car, Mrs. Garfield and family; fourth car, cabinet and surgeons. The train will take the same route as when he President was removed.

No stops will be made except for water. No correspondents accompany the train. It is the desire of those managing the arrangements

For removal, that the train shall be run either in advance or after the President's special, for observation of the people. The speech train will be run slowly, and all through trains will be laid over for it to pass. The present intention is that the train will leave Washington at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, and arrive in Washington between four and five p.m. After lying in state in the city, the body will be taken on Thursday and Friday, the remains being taken charge of by the Pennsylvania railroad, and be conveyed direct to Cleveland, Ohio. It is proposed that the request on the President's remains be abandoned by the local authorities. The fair and respectful tone of the remarks here, show that while Pres. Arthur was in office under a shadow of doubt, press and people are willing and eager to do their duty, and meantime accord him a full amount of respect.
