BREVITIES.

The Queen of Spain wears $5,000,000 worth of diamonds.
Summary proceedings—Going to the watering places.
Squinting is coming into fashion in Paris among the ladies.
Organ Grinders are to be henceforth licensed in London.
A Virginia gold mine sold recently for fourteen dollars.
The "greatest bore" in the country is, undoubtedly, the Huxtonian tunnel.
One of the gardens on the Hudson river is surrounded by a $10,000 fence.
A Philadelphian is making a good thing by raising Maltese cats at thirty dollars each.
How to turn an honest penny—First earn it, and you will be mere apt to turn it to a good advantage.
Many wheat fields in England have been set on fire by sparks from locomotives, and entirely destroyed.
The blind staggers is raging amongst the horses in some parts of Maryland. All the remedies tried have proved worthless.
The printers in the office of the Toronto Leader are on a strike, because they were offered American silver in payment of wages.
The year of 1869 will witness the completion of the two greatest engineering enterprises the world has ever witnessed—the Suez canal and the Pacific railroad.
As the band of the Grenadiers of the Guard were recently practising in Paris, one of the musicians suddenly fell dead, having ruptured a blood vessel of the heart.
There is nothing that our young friends can cultivate with more profit than neatness. Strive to be neat and orderly in all your habits, and after a while neatness will itself become a habit.
The remains of an enormous animal have been discovered at Koorringa, South Australia. Among the bones discovered is a part of the lower jaw, in which the teeth are embedded, five inches. The teeth measure two and a half inches across the surface each way.
An observing individual, in a very early village, seeing the sexton at work in a hole in the ground, inquired what he was about. "Digging a grave," said "Digging a grave! Why, I thought people didn't die often here, did they?" "Oh, no, sir; they never die but once."

There is a flock of wild parakeets in London. In the summer season they may be seen daily feeding with the sparrows in Lincoln's Inn. The garden mists of the square, appreciating the presence of the gay little strangers, have appointed a commissioner to look after and protect them.
We are apt to mistake our vocation in looking out of the way for occasions to exercise great and rare virtues, and by stepping over the ordinary ones which are directly in the road before us. When we read, we fancy we could be martyrs; and when we come to act, we cannot bear a provoking word.
A method of imparting the appearance of antique bronze to iron objects coated with copper consists in immersing them in a solution of four parts of ammoniac, one part of oxalic acid, and one part of acetic acid, in thirty parts of water, and allowing them to remain until the desired effect is produced.

An English working man, now in this country, is writing letters to the London Times. He was admitted to an interview with Mr. Seward, of whom he speaks as "the complete letter-writer, the author of the omnipotent bell-tongue, the ordinary to European monarchs, the elector of Napoleon from Mexico, United States Secretary of State, &c."

There is nothing more damaging than a witness who proves too much. Miss Edgeworth tells us somewhere of an Irish peer, who, travelling in France with a negro servant, directed him, if questioned on the subject, always to say his master was a Frenchman. He was punctiliously faithful to his orders, and whenever he said, "My master is a Frenchman," he always added "So am I."

A quakeress at Bloomington, Ind., of whom her husband, watched his movements, and actually one morning found the servant hugging and kissing the quakeress. Broadbrim was not long in discovering the face of his wife, as she peeped through the half open door, and raising with all the coolness of a general officer, thus addressed her: "Betsey, there had better quit peeping, or I will have a disturbance in the family."

The British Church in Ireland has nearly 2,500 chapels, of which more than 2,000 have been built since 1800, at a cost of $2,500,000. In the same period it has established about 300 convents, monasteries, hospitals, colleges, etc., at a cost of $1,500,000; besides building 600 parsonage houses, 2,900 school-houses, and 70 Christian Brothers' schools, at a further cost of $650,000, and endowing these institutions and others, so that the total expenditure since the century opened cannot be less than seven million pounds. The maintenance of 23 bishops, 525 parochial and 500 regular clergy, is estimated at $400,000 a year, and the maintenance of the Church at over $1,000,000; and of hospitals, orphanages, colleges, etc., at $240,000. So that this church of four millions, confessedly poor, takes itself for its annual support, $1,740,000, beside large contributions to the Pope, the Propagation Society, and various minor missions. — Protestant Churchman.
