

SPENCER DEIES GRAVE CHARGES

Tells the Court Just What Did Happen in the Un-savory Case.

OBJECTION TO WITNESSES.

Assistant County Attorney Serves Notice on Court That Mrs. Spencer Listened to Testimony.

The preliminary hearing of Samuel G. Spencer was resumed this morning before Judge C. B. Diehl. In the criminal division of the city court. No sooner had the clerk announced that court was in session, than Asst. County Atty. Aaron Meyers arose and, addressing Judge Diehl, said:

"May I please the court, the state wishes to give notice that in case Mrs. Stewart, sister of defendant, or either of his debitors are called to testify, objection will be interposed, on the ground that yesterday afternoon, while defendant was testifying, they, Mrs. Stewart and the two girls were close enough to the door, which was frequently opened, to hear what witness was saying."

Judge Diehl said that he would at the proper time take the matter into consideration. For a period of 55 minutes the defendant, Samuel G. Spencer, was subjected to a rigid cross-examination by Atty. H. A. Smith, the direct examination having been concluded just before the close of court yesterday afternoon. The questioning drew out from Mr. Spencer the statement that so far as he knew there existed no ill feeling between himself and members of the Wallace and Bertoch families at any time during the time that Hannah Iva Wallace was staying at his home, although in years past there had sometimes existed relations somewhat strained.

CHARGE DENIED.

In answer to the attorney's questions, the defendant denied that he had ever occupied the same bedroom with same bed with Hannah Iva Wallace, neither had he subjected her to any of the indignities that formed the basis of the complaint against him. He has kissed her on occasions, the same as he had done his own children, and that was as much as he had ever done.

The witness was interrogated extensively on the stand made by himself and others to the home of the Bertochs, Sunday, Sept. 22, 1907, and he adhered to the story told yesterday on direct examination. The effect that was made with a view of inducing the Bertoch family to intercede with Mrs. Wallace for an interview that an understanding might be arrived at, would and the controversy.

"Did you not take this action because you knew you were guilty?" queried the attorney.

"No sir, I knew that I was innocent," replied the witness.

"Q. And you feared that although innocent, you might be convicted?"

"Yes sir, such cases are in plenty."

WHAT HE DID SAY.

The witness denied that he had invited his aunt, Mrs. Bertoch, into a room alone to talk to her, but said that he had entered the room upon her invitation, and that there were also present his wife and his sister, Mrs. Stewart. He had not, he said, upon being asked to get out of the room, but had merely asked her to use her influence to bring about a meeting between himself and the Wallace family. The statement attributed to him to the effect that they (the Bertochs) or their children might go astray, he said had never been made.

In various forms questions were put to the defendant as to whether he had not subjected Hannah Iva Wallace to indignities and finally that an assault had been made upon her by him, to all of which came the answer, no.

At 10 o'clock Judge Diehl announced that the case would be continued until Monday morning before Judge C. B. Diehl, in the criminal division of the city court, did not commence until 4 o'clock, owing to the stress of regular police court routine.

Mrs. Ann Elizabeth Wallace, mother of Hannah Iva Wallace, the latter being the girl against whom the offense is alleged to have been committed, was cross-examined by Attorney Adam A. Duncan. Aside from the fact that the witness became somewhat confused relative to the time in which she had provided her daughter certain articles of wearing apparel, the testimony that Mrs. Wallace gave on direct examination was not shaken.

FAMILY CONFERENCE.

Mrs. Ann C. Bertoch, mother of the preceding witness and grandmother of Hannah Iva Wallace, was next called to the stand. She testified that some time in September last, the first Sunday after Mr. Spencer's second arrest, he had come to her place in Hunter, accompanied by his wife, his sister, Mrs. Stewart, Bishop H. T. Spencer of Pleasant Green, and others, and that in her yard a general talk was indulged in relative to the case. In addition to herself, she said that her mother, James Bertoch, her sons, James C. Bertoch and George Bertoch, were present of the immediate family. Mr. Spencer, she testified, asked her and others to go with him to see Mrs. Wallace and family in Granger to talk the matter over. The defendant, she said, stated that he was willing to admit that he had been indiscreet in his actions with Iva Wallace, and he would confess to all the allegations, except as to criminality. He further stated, she affirmed, that to settle the matter he was willing to give his property, his life or go to prison; that he asked the family to be humane, that some of them or their children might go astray. She testified that a little later she had asked the company to come inside, that Mr. Spencer proceeded most of the others into the room, had fallen on his knees at the witness' feet and begged her to do what she could for him. Mrs. Bertoch said that she is the sister of Mr. Spencer's mother.

George D. Bertoch, a son of the preceding witness, gave testimony corroborative of that given by his mother. He disclaimed any prejudice against the defendant, and while he pitied him, he wanted justice meted out.

POSITIVE DENIAL.

Counsel for the state announced that it rested its case, whereupon Samuel G. Spencer took the stand in his own defense. He told the story leading up to the coming of Hannah Iva Wallace to his home to stay while she was working at the knitting factory of which he was manager. He positively denied that he had ever occupied the same bed or even the same bedroom with Hannah Iva Wallace, did that during all of the time covered by the complaint against him he had slept in the same bedroom that his wife did, and that only on two occasions during that period had either of his daughters slept in the same room that himself and wife did, and that was on the nights of Aug. 25 and 26, 1907, when her older sister and Hannah Iva Wallace were at the latter's home in Granger.

THAT ALLEGED CONFESSION.

Referring to the alleged confession in the Bertoch home in Hunter, on Sunday, Sept. 22, 1907, Mr. Spencer stated that he had in the presence of all the persons mentioned by Mrs. Bertoch positively asserted his innocence; that he told them that his conduct with Hannah Iva Wallace had gone no farther than the fact that he had kissed her, as he had done his own children. This, he said was the extent of the indiscretion to which he had confessed. He had asked the privilege of talking with Hannah Iva Wallace in the presence of the family, and he assured them that in five minutes' time she would tell the truth.

As to the offering of his property, his life or a willingness to go to prison, he said that he had asked the Bertoch family what was back of the proceeding against him, if they wanted his property or his life they might have them, but he asked them to be humane and not draw down his family to humiliation. He denied positively that he had gone down on his knees to his aunt, Mrs. Bertoch, and asked for clemency.

TO SOLVE AUSTRIAN PROBLEM.

County Attorney Will Bring Opposing Factions Into Court.

Pec Wukill, Mike Bogdon, Mike Bogdonovich, Joe Chasich, George Danovich, Joe Tresich and John Zori, all Austrians and members of a church and political faction in Bingham, are to be brought into court to tell how, when, and why trouble has occurred in the city. Because of the differences of opinion upon religious and political matters affecting their countrymen who stayed at home and those who are working in mines and smelters in Utah and sending the money back so that more Austrians can come over here. Many times there have been serious clashes between the factions. One that will be remembered for some time yet to come is the trouble in which Lafayette Chidester, a deputy sheriff, was badly wounded and made a cripple for life while in the discharge of his duties.

Members of the faction opposed to the one of which the above are members are already in jail. County Attorney Hanson is disposed to throw out the trouble to the bottom, and to see if some steps cannot legally be taken that will prevent the recurrence of such disturbances among the foreign element at the Bingham mines and Bingham Junction smelters.

TO APPEAL FUSION CASE.

Defeated "Americans" Will Go to Supreme Court for Ruling.

The "fusion" test case will go to the supreme court for final determination. Judges Ritchie and Lewis yesterday upheld the claims of the county-climen-elect whose offices were tested by the defeated "American" candidates in November. At the conclusion of the case in the district court, S. P. Armstrong, counsel for the defeated councilmen, announced that an appeal would be taken. James D. Murdoch, Oliver Hodgson and L. E. Hall were the men who were successful in the polls and Thomas Hobday, Alden E. Payne and Frank Harris coveted their places, alleging that the political machine had no right to take men from an opposing party and place the names upon their party's ballots as their candidates.

TAYLORS QUIT MATRIMONY.

Kapollina K. Taylor, wife of Ernest W. Taylor, a well known hackman, told Judge Armstrong yesterday several of her troubles. Taylor, according to the wife's testimony, called her a Dutch girl, a pretentious and cross, and consigned her to eternal torment. He also urged her to go home to her mother, because, he said, no longer loved her. A habit which has fastened itself upon Taylor, according to the wife's statements, is that of staying out at nights. Although he gets through work at 8:30 each evening, he is always up at home until quite late, and is preparing to steal over the foothills. Mrs. Taylor drew a decree giving her the custody of their minor child.

KATIE STEWART COMMITTED.

Katie Stewart was committed to the industrial school at Ogden yesterday by Judge Gowans of the juvenile court. The girl has been a ward of the court for some time, but efforts to reform her have proved unavailing.

SUES U. L. N. R. FOR INJURIES.

Edward Smithson has commenced suit against the Utah Light & Railway company to recover judgment for $15,000, alleging that by reason of injuries received in being thrown from one of the defendant's street cars at Mead street, he has lost his sight, smell and taste and that his memory is impaired.

GROW DOESN'T SUPPORT HER.

Mary I. Grow has brought proceedings for divorce against Edward I. Grow, asking for a decree of divorce, interest in six mining claims and the custody of their two children, the decree to carry $15 per month for their support. The Grow's were married in 1896.

DONALDSON TAKES TIME.

Jim Donaldson, convicted of robbery in connection with the McWhirter robbery, has been given until Feb. 1 to file a bill of exceptions on appeal.

DICKERT WILL FILED.

The will of the late Ferdinand Dickert was filed for probate in the Third district court yesterday. The estimated value of the estate is placed at $18,810. Mrs. Wilma P. Dickert is designated as administratrix and is to be allowed $200 per month out of the estate until the youngest child attains his majority. The estate is to be divided, one-third to Mrs. Dickert and the remaining two-thirds equally among the children.

CAN GO TO HIS AFFINITY.

After Judge Morse had adjourned court yesterday and after he had stepped from the bench into his chambers with a sigh of relief, after having officiated as referee in several matrimonial handicap affairs, Counselor Hoppaugh came rushing into court and asked his honor to hear the proof in the Davidson divorce case. He borrowed a court reporter and the taking of testimony was completed in a very few minutes. Ira H. Davidson, the man in the affair, is said to have an affinity with whom he is living. Upon this ground and the proof of cruelty on his part, the divorce was granted and allowed $50 per month as alimony. Davidson is a contractor and is said to be earning $5 a day.

WM. POW, WIFEBEATER.

Admits He Got Drunk on New Year's Day and "Celebrated."

Before Judge Diehl this morning, William Pow, charged with wife beating, decided to change his plea of not guilty to that of guilty. Pow stated that, on New Year's day, he and his wife were drinking beer, and that he "might have hit her." The prosecution stated that the woman was beaten about the breast and arms until she was black and blue and suffered considerable pain. Judge Diehl continued the matter until Monday afternoon at which time he will pronounce sentence.

Pow went home New Year's evening in an intoxicated condition and began abusing his wife. She called the police but before they arrived Mrs. Pow's brother appeared on the scene and gave the drunken husband a sound thrashing.

George Kelly was arrested this morning on the charge of battery upon two boys. Kelly refused to give him a suit of clothes. He was arraigned, but took until Monday to plead. His bail was fixed in a criminal case at $5.

MURRAY ON LABOR UNIONS.

General Manager of Bell Telephone System Talks Plainly on Subject.

The Bell Telephone officials in this city are in good humor today. The news from Montana that three of the men who ran several lines of the company out of Butte recently were given jail sentences and fines for contempt of court, was particularly acceptable to them, as indicating that the rule of brute force against law and order was about come to an end in Montana. In a brief talk this morning, with General Manager Murray, S. P. Armstrong, counsel for the defeated councilmen, commented on the situation as follows:

"The labor people have dominated Montana for so long that they have forgotten there is such a thing as law or any other right except that of force. We found it necessary to invoke the law to protect our business against such force, and the court, upon our representation and testimony, issued an injunction against further interference. In accordance with our petition. It was expected the labor people would realize that our business should be allowed to continue without interference. But they interrupted dominance for a period of years made them overlook the importance of the court's order and interference of various kinds. It became our duty in accordance with the court's order to present to the court a report of such interferences as were of sufficient importance to draw the court's attention, as they were in contempt of the court's order."

"We have done this on two occasions; and as the result, the court would call in the first case, for three and four months respectively; and in the second case, three prominent labor leaders have been sent to jail for 30 days and given varying fines in addition. We shall expect to present testimony to the court for any further interference that may occur, and it is to be presumed that the court will consider that we were not giving it the proper consideration if we did not bring before it a notice of the violations of its orders when of sufficient importance to constitute a flagrant case of contempt."

In the matter of the controversy between the management of the company and the Montana Federation of Labor, over the settlement of the relations between them, Gen. Manager Murray said:

"I received last evening, from President Fairgrieve of the Montana Federation of Labor, an answer to our proposition of settlement. It is vituperative and discursive, and shows an evasive, showing on the face of it an intention to prevent, if possible, any settlement. In fact, if there is any settlement, it is evident that it will be against his will, and that his opposition must be overcome by other labor leaders who have not the same personal interest in keeping up the fight that he has."

EYES OF CONGRESS ON WASHINGTON

Congress Expected to Enact Remedial Currency Law During Session.

L. M. SHAW AS A CANDIDATE.

Friends Start a Quiet Boom for Him For President—Senator Foraker's Revolt Against Roosevelt.

Special Correspondence.

New York, Jan. 1.—Rarely if ever in the history of the country has the convening of Congress been hailed with as much delight by the business interests in New York as at the session now under way. Ordinarily this event is attended by greater or less anxiety because of the fears entertained that general business is likely to suffer from "tariff tinkering" and "currency legislation," two of the greatest bugaboos known to the commercial and financial communities of the United States. In the present instance, however, there is no apparent danger of any serious legislation looking to a change in tariff laws, but a great deal of attention will be devoted to a consideration of the currency question, a matter which it is now generally conceded has had much to do with the present great disturbances in the financial and commercial worlds, and which calls for immediate and positive relief if a recurrence of such troubles is to be avoided in the future. It is apparent that both the legislative and executive branches of the government are now fully alive to the exigencies of the situation, and that they will go about the work of effecting permanent relief measures in a calm and deliberate manner, which is why the present session of Congress is viewed in far more hopeful light than most of its predecessors. As to exactly what nature the impending changes in our currency laws will assume, it is very early to foretell, as there is still a wide difference of opinion on this all important subject; nevertheless it may be regarded as a practical certainty that whatever policy is adopted will be for the lasting benefit of the country at large, and that henceforth there will be little or no danger from panics growing out of the antiquated currency system, such as have been occurring with increasing frequency during the past few years. If such an event transpires, it will be one of the greatest business disasters that has come to this country during the present generation and will mark a most welcome culmination to one of the most extensive panics ever witnessed.

COMPLIMENT FOR SHAW.

In the height of the recent panic, when the government was putting forth every effort to buy order to buy order, and when even the most astute brokers were at their wits' ends to stem the current of distrust and disorder, a banker of international fame and one not given to extravagant expression, remarked within the hearing of your correspondent: "If Leslie M. Shaw were now secretary of the treasury, this whole difficulty would be settled in five minutes." The speaker intended no criticism of Secy. Cortelyou, who at that time was doing everything possible to allay the panic, but merely to convey an impression of high esteem in which the former head of the treasury department is held by the general banking fraternity, and indicating the confidence felt in his ability to cope with such a difficult problem, a confidence thoroughly well merited, as when Shaw held the treasury portfolio he undoubtedly conducted that office in a manner never before or since observed. It is such expressions as these, which by many, are accepted as indicating that if former Secy. Shaw is a presidential nomination he would be found to have the hearty endorsement of the banking community, and with this assured all the other interests of the country would unquestionably swing into line. Mr. Shaw, as head of the "Carnegie" trust company in New York, is now in a position very much to his liking, and it is doubtful if he could be prevailed upon to enter into a presidential campaign; however, his name is certainly being mentioned as one of the strongest possibilities in this connection and it would only take a word from him to start a most formidable boom in his behalf.

PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER.

In reality, a number of Mr. Shaw's friends here have already started a quiet boom for him. In the mean time it is most interesting to note that the action of Senator Foraker of Ohio in coming out in open revolt against President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft and in announcing that he is a candidate for presidential and not for senatorial honors, has created a profound impression here, as well as in other sections of the country. Few people consider that Foraker's claiming the presidency are sufficiently strong to insure him the nomination, but it is likewise felt that his opposition to the president and his cabinet makes it at least reasonably certain that the privilege of leading the Republican ticket in next year's fight may after all have to go to other than a Roosevelt man. Foraker is a number of men high in the councils of the Republican party in New York state have declared their allegiance to the candidacy of Governor Charles E. Hughes, and by some he is regarded as one of the most formidable in the race. However, among those in a position to best know the true inner workings of the party, Mr. Hughes is not as seriously considered as might be the case, especially as it is hardly conceivable that the Roosevelt faction will ever become reconciled to him.

NO ONE BUT BRYAN.

Local politicians in the Democratic camp, of no matter what affiliations, have become greatly impressed with the fact that the only strong strength of William Jennings Bryan, and even his most bitter opponents are now forced to confess that he is the only real candidate of the party has to present to the convention with any chance whatever of winning. The New York World has all along been very bitter in its denunciation of Mr. Bryan as the candidate of the Democratic party, the policy of Democratic representatives and senators now in Washington just taken by that paper, however, proves conclusively that Bryan is the overwhelming choice of his party, but the polls also indicate that his present adherents insist that he must run on a conservative platform, a decision which the "People's One" has evidently long since arrived at. In a recent speech at New Haven, Conn., Mr. Bryan declared, that in the next campaign the Democratic platform will be "progressive, definite, positive and one the people can read and understand."

Continuing, he said: "We have had in the past platform which read out way before election and another after
