"Ugly charges are made against British soldiers at Elandslaagle by a cor-respondent of the leading Amsterdam paper, the Algemein Handelsblad, who visited the Boer prisoners aboard the guardship Penelope in Simons bay. It is charged that the prisoners and the wounded were robbed of everything valuable, even wedding rings, and that in one case a Boer's finger was cut off to get a ring. The correspondent says: "Never have I thought Englishmen to be such brutes. I imagine that about ninety men were behind a kopje when 300 lancers attacked them. The Boers had to surrender to such over-whelming numbers and threw down their weapons in token of submission. But the captain of the lancers shouted, because he had remained flat on the ground.

"Remarkable corroboration of this "Remarkable corroboration of this charge is furnished by a letter written by Private Dolan, of the fifth lancers, about obviously the same incident at Elandslaagte. He describes how the lancers charged a kopje, adding "as soon as they saw the lance they threw up their rifles and ammunition and cried 'Friends.' But it was no go, for they fired on the Red Cross and we had no mercy for them." A dispatch to the Herald from Lon-don says:

Says:

it is now certain that the Boers are in great force on the further side of the Tugela river. The Boer army which invaded Natal was put by good judges at 25,000 to 30,000 men. If we accept the latter figure and deduct 2,000 for losses, which may have been made good by disloyal Dutch recruits from Nalta and another ten thousand for the remaining force at Ladysmith, the total of the army confronting General Buller may be from 15,000 to 20,000 men. As for its artillery at Farquhar's Farm, according to the accounts in Natal pa-pers, the Boer guns overpowered the British, who had thirty-six field wea-
