

On the 3th of June H. W. Beenher, in Plymouth Churco, Brooklyn, N. Y., preached from the text-"Help, Lord, for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from smong the children of men." Psalms XII, I. The follow-ing are reported as some of Mr. B's re-setfish purposes, what is gained by the exchange? It is quite possible for men to be religious-and wicked. It is quite methe to make religion susceptibly are becoming more and more untrust-worthy with every allowance. I still feel that we are losing ground in that respect. Looking at the tendencies, I cannot but fear that the growing feel-ing in our time is the laxity of men in fidelity. In the matter of truth, there is a certain digression from that path. I am not speaking of this invention of his. I mean simply heedless state-ments-things caught up, the want of some and sensibility in the matter. I wear to their own heart and don't heep when they can get away from it. Trustworthiness under assumed obliga-tions seems to be relaxing. We have an army of clerks to whom we are obliged to give a certain part of our business. In these times it is the habit for a man to do what is for his advan-tage to the out of the set of the s tage to do, and nothing else. So soon as selfahness interprets itself to the young and controls them, so soon the decay takes place which utterly des-troys them. The superior and interior are knitted together, and should look out for each other's interacts. But it is out for each other's interests. But it is the general complaint that there is a scarcity of young men who are faithful in their obligations to their employers. In their obligations to their employers. I hear the same complaint in respect to men who fail to perform premised work. It is true, I hope the tendencies are tempoary, that work is not per-formed as faithfully as it should be. They say the employers are selfish and trasping, and so they have a right to be. However that may be, eye service is getting to be too common. The price demanded is higher, and the work not so good. I am very sensitive upon this so good. I am very sensitive upon this point, for I sprang from workmen, and i am proud to own that I could get a lying by my hands if I fail to get it by
