For more than 30 years Lily Langtry, the daughter of the Dean of Jersey, has been distinctly in the public eye-distinctly a luscious morsel for the gossips of two worlds to roll under their wagging tongues, wherefore one will be pardoned for devoting more space to her than to any play she might appear m. Certainly she could essay no role upon the stage as spectacular as those she has enacted in private life. Last night at the Salt Lake Theater she was neither above nor below the standard of the people who gave her support in "Mrs. Deer-ing's Divorce." And yet the gaze of the audience was upon her. She was the red light in the circle's center. The author placed her there and she would not be moved. Without his aid and without fame she would not have main-tained the position. As it was, she did fairly well. But her audience, which was a large and critical one, was un-certain, doubtful. It hardly knew how to make up its mind and hesitated be-times on the propriety of applause. Was she the same peerless representative of the gentler sex that she was in the dim and distant past? Hardly. The passing of the years have left marks that cannot be effaced. But the Lily is neither wilted nor withered. She is (was) still an attractive flower in the garden of beautiful womanhood. The crow's feet disappear with the application of cosmetic and the silver in her always lowcoiled nut-brown hair is lost in the dyer's art. And so she seems young again when she is not, and real where veneer is a comfort and blessing to her and her auditors. As to her figure, the figure that has written her name high in the temple of beauty, and made her the envy of her sex on all the continents of earth-lt is still graceful, still queenly, imperial, commanding. The waist that has been the model (not literally) for the chief modistes of Fashion's great centers, is quite symmetrical as when she was the favorite of the gay and dashing young prince who is now England's king, against whom no suggestion of scandal must be uttered. But her neck. It is is gazelle-like as in the joyous period of her girlhood's spreading fame. And the shoulders, which it surmounts are as expansive and snowy white as ever. Chin, nose, ears are all marvelously well preserved considering the service they have rendered their distinguished mistress during the past 52 years. But her lips, mouth, teeth-when it comes em, we mercifully draw the curtain and think only of other physical charms are hers in high degree. that doubtful if Nature was half so generous with Venus or Cleopatra as it was with this maiden of the Jersey Isles. To her it gave without stint or consideration though a thousand less favored sisters were turned out on short rations. But that would probably have been too much to expect. The architect of her magnificent physique never intended that she should outrank Bernhardt as an actress; and she doesn't. But that isn't her fault. She does the best she can and o'ertops many a woman who has aspired to histrionic renown. We can't name them just now but could do so under pressure. However, it is well to remember that the Lily lays claim to being a beauty rather than an actress—in fact she is (was) a whole of convenience throughout. There were present of the general authorities Elders John Henry Smith, John W. Tay-lor and Abraham O. Woodruff of the Council of the Apostles, and Elder J. Golden Kimball of the First Council of Seventy. On Sunday, after the necessary pre liminary arrangements and by and with the consent of those present at the con-ference, the Bingham stake was divided and a new stake, the Blackfoot, created, with Elder Ellas Kimball, president, and Elders Lorenzo R. Thomas and Don C. Walker as his counselors. Elder Kimball is a son of the late Heber C. Kimball, and was at one time president of the Southern States mission. He is 46 years of age, and during the war with Spain served in Cuba as chaplain of a company of United States engi-neers, under Col. Willard Young. He is known as a progressive young man and will doubtless do well in his new calling. Elder Thomas, first counselor to President Kimbail, is receiver of the United States land office at Blackfoot, and is also engaged in mercantile pur-suits at Rexburg, while Elder Walker is a well known resident of Lewisville and a young man of much promise. At the conference a High Council was appointed for the new stake and the presidency made appointments to visit all the settlements of the Saints and arranged for a conference to be held Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 13 and 14, at Blackfoot, when the stake organization will be made complete. The Blackfoot stake includes all the "Mormon" settlements north of tello and runs east to Gray's lake and west to Lost river. It has a population of something like 2,500 souls and promises to do well and become one of the strongest stakes in the Church

NEW WINDER WARD.

Was Organized Sunday With Joseph A. Cornwall as Bishop.

The Winder ward of the Granite stake of Zion was organized Sunday with Joseph A. Cornwall as Bishop and George W. Williams and Taylor P. Brockbank as his counselors. The new ward is bounded on the north by Cottonwood creek, on the south by Fifteenth South, on the east by the upper county road, and on the west by Tenth East street. It comprises a portion of the Mill Creek. East Mill Creek and Big Cottonwood wards, and starts out under very favorable auspices. The ward was named in honor of President John R. Winder, who long has been a resident of that section.

When You Have a Cold.

The first action when you have a cold should be to relieve the lungs. This is best accomplished by the free use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. fering several years with a cancer on my face, which gave me great annoy-ance and unbearable itcihng. I was using Ballard's Snow Liniment for a sor leg, and through an accident, I rubbed some of the liniment on the cancer, and as it gave me almost instant relief, decided to continue to use the liniment on the cancer. In a short time the can-

The people of Murray are indignant because they have not a postoffice of their own, and are obliged to have all their mail pass through the Salt Lake office. They argue that Murray is no longer a caudal appendage to Salt Lake, but a separate municipality, and they propose agitating the matter at Washington. It would save much time for Murray, and much bother for the Salt Lake office, if the proposed change could be made.

BEAUTY SHOW, center and circumference. Don't make any mistake about that. If you are skeptical go and see her tonight and tomorrow night. It will pay you well. When it comes to gorgeousness of costume she stands alone, empress of all her sex, matchless critic of the dressmaker's skill. That knowledge with her physical charms makes a picture of surpassing loveliness (just once last night) that no woman will forget. It is her stock in trade. She knows it and she knows that the dear public knows it and will pay to see it. What cares she for the cost of it all? American dollars have ever done much to defray the expense. "Mrs. Deering's Divorce" is not a very decorous play and yet it is not particularly bad aside from the scandalous suggestions in the disrobing and rerobing scene which is, however, as modestly done as an immodest thing can be. The different characters are well sustained and the English both as to diction and atmosphere is very good, and the bridge whist party was a skil-fully conducted feature. Katherine Stewart was a splendid and altogether overwhelming Lady Granpier. As a woman's rights advocate Ina Goldsmith vas strikingly masculine and capable in the role of Suzannah Verner. Frederick Truesdell as Capt. Deering, was quite equal to the worldly task of the worldly character he typified, but the Jimmy Foster of Harold Mead, the imbecile dude of the English aristocracy, was the best work of the night. It requires an artist of no mean ability to play the brainless fop that he played without completely destroying the part. Stephen

B. French as Lord Granpler, was hap-pily cast and is entitled to his share of commendation. The plot sets forth how Mrs. Deering obtained a divorce from her husband, a rather unstable officer of the English army; how she regretted the action; how he was courted by manly Suzannah and how the former wife gave him splendid character to his new flame while he was in an adjoining room. The situation is very amusing and some of the repartee decidedly sharp and clever, complexity of affairs is accentuated by Mrs. Deering engaging herself to another man while still in love with her former husband who meanwhile retains his affections for her. The play is handsomely equipped in a scenic way and has much literary merit. It goes again tonight and tomorrow afternoon, while "The Degenerates" will close the engagement tomorrow night.

"For Mother's Sake," which opened at the Grand last night to a very good house, proved to be a captivating rural melodrama, with Marie Heath as the boy who performed stirring deeds for the sake of the maternal side of the household. Miss Heath speedily came into favor with the audience and further strengthened her position by the interpolation of some songs during the performance. From Joe Pemberton, the village scapegoat, she arose to the heights of a public curve, who arose to the heights of a mine owner, who returns to the New England village and the heartbroken mother to release the imprisoned father and scatter smiles and fat pocketbooks all over the village. Another character who went around scattering good things and sunshine generally was John Bisbee, a church deacon, interpreted acceptably by Charles Plunkett. Still another favorite with the audience was Adelaide Plunkett, as Alzina Pickett, a typical New England old maid. The other members of the cast ranged from good to indifferent. The company carries special scenery for the presentation. "For Mother's Sake" will be presented again tonight, tomorrow matinee and night.
