

TRUTH AND LIBERTY.

NO. 202.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1896, SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

VOL. XXIX.

Raging of the Battle. How the Struggle Ebbs and Flows in All the States.

THE VERY LATEST ELECTION BULLETINS.

The Heaviest Vote and Greatest Contest Ever Known.

FINAL RESULT IS STILL IN DOUBT.

Remarkably Heavy Morning Vote—Fine Weather in Most States—Cook County Conceded to McKinley—Blasted Fired in Texas—Many States Still Claimed by Both Sides.

That the reader may have before him a key that will help him to appreciate the significance of facts and figures contained in the following telegram, a table showing the estimated total vote of each state is enclosed. It will be remembered that the number of votes in the electoral college necessary to elect the President is 161.

State	Electoral Votes

In the two-way states I think upon Mr. Bryan's chances at the best:

State	Electoral Votes
Illinois	10
Michigan	11
Pennsylvania	29
Wisconsin	10

There are other states I repeat as doubtful, JAMES M. JONES.

ILLINOIS.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 3.—Election day dawned bright and brilliant. The weather was not too wet to carry the terrible struggle of last night, when a majority of both parties participated, appearing to have exhausted even the strength of the first New York election, which was held in October. Both sides are literally encamped with workers watching keenly for any change in the returns. Changes of front were frequent.

At noon reports from the state indicated an exceedingly heavy vote all the morning, so early in the day, while votes were cast since twenty-three at any time in the history of the state.

LAWRENCE, Nov. 3.—Bryan came early to see the results from Omaha to Lincoln. At 11 a.m. he was at the station, and at the eighth of the裴克特班, his voice was bright and never so cheerful as when he addressed his audience yesterday.

He had his hat removed and sat down in a chair, and after a hearty shake and a hearty laugh, he said, "All right, Mr. Mrs. Bryan and party, come for breakfast."

Bryan delivered a speech which was not with emotion. After shaking hands with the election officials present, he went his way through the裴克特班.

Bryan was at the裴克特班 until 10 a.m. when he left for Lincoln, where he had his breakfast and left well. At 10:30 Mr. Mrs. Bryan and party made their way back to Omaha.

The police officer reported the order regarding the closing of saloons. Chief Henderson personally gave the first word to the saloon keepers.

Telegrams have been received at Republican state headquarters indicating that the Democrats have made no changes in their organization.

Democrats have stated, however, that we are treating everything in All-gold.

1 P.M.—Democratic county committees in the Cook county to support Bryan.

Early in the day telegrams began to arrive at the various national headquarters.

One to the Democratic national committee at New York was "McKinley will carry New York by a large majority.

Democrats were meeting in at an adjourned session.

Abbie G. Johnson, New York, said:

"What can you say of the general result?"

"We don't know it," he said.

"What do you say about the election?"

"It's not worth our salt," he said.
