CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, 18.—Whyte submitted the following amendment to the resolution referring the credentials, etc., etc.

And that said committee report thereon on before the first day of November, 1877.

Mitchell, who is acting chairman, said he was afraid it would not give the committee time enough.

Whyte said the Kellogg case was referred to the committee last March. Since then events in Louisiana had crystallized so that a whole matter was now embraced in a very narrow compass. It should not take any committee longer than two or three days to settle the whole matter. The chairman of the committee from this State was now ill, and if the committee investigation might be postponed until his recovery.

It was expected by the Senate that a decision of the committee on privileges and elections on this case should be final, it was asking too much of the committee to report by November 1st.
He did not think the white league of Louisiana, with its bayonets, revolvers and guns, could decide for him who was entitled to a seat in the Senate from this State. He argued that the proceedings under which Kellogg was elected senator were valid and correct in form.
The testimony of the Louisiana cases covered thousands of pages, and the committee could not examine all of it and report to the Senate by November 1st.

He knew of the Senate having adopted a resolution instructing the committee when to report. He had been taught to believe that the adopted such a resolution would be virtually an affront to the committee. Redress for any undue delay of the committee was found in the rules of the Senate, which authorized any Senator at any time to move that a committee be discharged from further consideration of the subject.

Gordon inquired if any day could be set for the committee to report on the credentials of Spofford?

Several Senators on the republican side—No, none whatever.

Thurman said at no time since 73 had the State of Louisiana more than one Senator on the floor. He referred to various investigations regarding Louisiana, and said, now after all these years of inquiry we are told that the committee cannot make a report by the 1st of November. What was the reason for this attempt to postpone the matter?

Was it intended to postpone it for four years? Was the dread of a collision upon railroad?

If there was no dread of a smashing of cars as they came head to head on the same track, he could not see why it was so essential to postpone the matter.

Edmunds said he did not understand what the senator meant by his paraphrase about railroads.

Thurman would never attempt to explain anything to the senator from Vermont which a man of the most ordinary comprehension could understand. Such an attempt would be an insult to his intelligence.

Edmunds said the senators on his side of the chamber were not his-siders of any railroad at all. They labored to promote the interests of the people according to law, and did not act like some others to cover up differences. Liberty of opinion had always been contended for on his side of the chamber.

Whyte said he intended no disrespect to the committee. He submitted his amendment for the reason that the chairman of the committee, when he attempted to (Morton) was lying ill at his residence in Indiana, and all regretted that it would not be possible for him to be here during the extra session.

Edmunds—Yes, but there is always a chairman.

Whyte—Yes, but there is always a delay, and I offered the resolution instructing the committee to review the senator from Oregon (Mitchell), the vice chairman, who felt a delicacy in calling the committee, who had no motive except for public good.

Edmunds argued that this was the first instance in the history of the Senate when the attempt had been made to instruct a committee to report upon an important question within a given number of days.

Vandegraft said the committee on elections had examined the credentials of Kellogg, and were prepared to report that Kellogg had a prima facie case and was entitled to his seat in the Senate.

Hausbury said, as a member of the committee on elections he did not regard the motion of the senator from Maryland, to instruct the committee, as a motion to be desired to state that there was a minority report to be submitted.

The motion of Whyte, to instruct the committee, was rejected, yeas 23, nays 25.

Conkling said there had been some doubt expressed whether the credentials of Kellogg were still before the committee. He, therefore, proposed to pass a resolution allowing the credentials of Wm. P.
Kellogg, claiming a seat in the Senate, having been heretofore referred to said committee, and now being re-referred, he offered his amendment to make it clearly understood that the committee should report on the case of Kellogg as soon as possible.

Thurman said the amendment virtually declared that the 59th session of the Senate alone. He argued that the Senate was not entitled to report on the credentials of Wm.
P. Kellogg. The amendment was agreed to and the resolution passed.

Thurman then moved that J. B.
Bucks be sworn as Senator from

LOUISIANA.

For the term commencing March 4th, 1873.

Edmunds said there was a privileged motion on the table, and called up the resolution submitted by him yesterday, to have the committee on elections discharged from the consideration of the credentials of Kellogg.

The Vice-President said it was not a privileged motion, if the Senator from Ohio presented the resolution, he would be entitled to present it, and he would be entitled to the consideration of the credentials of Kellogg.

Edmunds then, by unanimous consent, withdrew his resolution.

Thurman renewed his motion to have the committee on elections discharged from the consideration of the credentials of Kellogg. He inquired if the credentials had been presented heretofore and being informed that they had, decided that unfinished business, being Edmunds' resolution, had precedence.
