The Great Cotton Speculator is Finally Forced to Suspend.

CREATES A BIG SENSATION.

Bull Movement Ended for Good-Strange and Spectacular Career Of the Cotton King.

New York, March 18 .- Daniel J. Sully, who has for 15 months been the largest fore in the cotton markets of the world, and who has "bulled" cotton from i cents a pound to 17 cents, today announced his inability to make good his engagements on the New York cotton exchange. Within a few moments cotion fell nearly $13 a bale from the highest figures of the day. Many crashes have been recorded, but probably none has been accompanied by such frenzy and confusion. While there had been no premonition of the impending crash, no morning of the season had witnessed a more demoralized market. In less than three moralized market. In ress than three minutes after the opening half a cent had been taken off the price of cotton. Press went up and down 10, 20 and 30 points within two and three minutes. May opened at 15.25c and sold down to have opening at 15.22c, went down to have, opening at 15.22c, went down to have a three and of the first half have grafty felicts started to cover, and how early sellers started to cover, and the was a rapid advance. There was noting in the news to account for the exitement. It seemed merely a re-neral of bear operations and the dimbing of further stop orders, Shortly after the afternoon session there was a full in the pit, and at about free minutes after 2 o'clock the an-numcement of the suspension was mide by Supt King, who read from "We regret that we are unable to meet our engagements, and will therefore have to suspend.

"DANIEL J. SULLY & CO."

For a few seconds there was quiet the floor. Then with one impulse a mighty shout went up from the bears, they who had been fighting Sully and the bull clique for months. Hats were thrown into the air to be trampled up-on in the stampede for the pit. Coats mere forn by frantie brokers, and chairs. and camp stools were dashed into the pi. Messengers soon were rushing in and out of the building with orders to sell or buy. Telephone booths were basiged and Wiegraph offices, were basiged in directors.

fooded with dispatches. Outside the cotton exchange appear-nces gave sittle indication of the pademonium within until the messearce's began to rush between the excharge and the broker's office, Soon the news reached the stock, pro-

Do you know that pain is simply the nerves crying for help? Has it ever occurred to you that pain weakens and destroys the nervous system? For this reason you should act promptly in every case of headache, backache, stomach ache, sciatica, rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, and all other pain. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve pain almost instantly, because they act in a natural and harmless manner upon the nerve tissues, and relieve the conditions which cause the pain.

While very prompt and effective in their action, they do not effect the bowels in the least, are perfectly harmless, and leave no disagreeable aftereffects. Delicate women who suffer from headache, bearing-down and periodical pains, can use them with impunity. You may also give them to children with the assurance that while they will relieve, they cannot possibly harm.

upward of 500,000 bales represented "forced liquidation" or the selling out of men whose margins have been nearly or quite wiped out. As the market slumped 250 points during this period the falling on this element amounted to something more than $1,000,000. The market steadied after about 20 minutes, and then there was a sud-den upward shoot of about 100 points. This sharp upward rise was brought about by the buying of brokers and speculators who saw that the market had slumped too far and would react.

A part of the excitement on the of the exchange was caused by the scramble of brokers who wanted just such bargains and had to fight to get in the ring to get them. The buying rush was almost as exciting and just as noisy as the selling panic. The excitement of Sully's suspension was put on the tickers everywhere within a few moments after it was made, and there was somewhat of a flurry on the floor with New York stock exchanges after the news reached there. Mr. Sully is a member of that exchange, having purchased a seat two or three months ago. Stocks went off from half a point to a point and one-half on the fear that the failure might bring a rush of stock selling. The weakness was only momentary, for word was passed around that Sully had ing that the firm would pay its debts in full, and the suspension was due to the impossibility of meeting demands for large sums of money due to the Sully firm from European sources, sums that the quick slump in the market made payable too quick for them to be able to meet.

Mr. Sully left his office at 4 o'clock. All sorts of explanations were made for the suspension. One of the reasons given was that the New Orleans bull party had sold cotton while Sully was builling it in the confidence that they were supporting him. Another was that Sully's following in the market had sold their long cotton without ad-vising with him. From two well-in-formed sources came a denial that there was any treachery from Nev Orleans. A cotton operator with New Cricans connections said that the bull party there was still bullish in cotton.

Another account that came from one of the six or seven best known cotton operators in this country was that the bear party had made a deliberate and well-planned attack to overwhelm Sully, and had succeeded. The bears, according to this authority, had figured out the weakness of Sully's position, due to immense holdings of spot and contract cotton and to his operations on the Liverpool market. and planned an attack on the market that would carry it down just far enough to make it impossible for Suily to meet his margin calls, knowing that his failure would send the market so much lower that they could cover at figures to recoup them. No definite idea of Sully's commitments in the cotton market could be obtained from other houses in the cot-ton market. One estimate was that he was "long" 300,000 bales of May cotton alone. A good authority said that he did not believe Sully was "long" more than that in the whole market, and a conservative estimate made in another scurce was 400,000 bales. The losses by Sully's failure, in case he cannot settle, it was said, will be divided among nearly all the brokers on the exchange.

One estimate was that Sully's owings after a settlement under the rule of the exchange would not exceed $500,000. What Sully has personally lost, or what his backers have lost, in market oper-What Sully will owe will be found by deducting the average quotations of cotton today from the figure to which his accounts were margined down to the last call. This will be determined temorrow.

There were no other announcements of failure, and leading men in the cotton market declared that there need be no fear of trouble. In stock exchange circles the failure of Sully was at first taken as a sure sign of the collapse of the cotton boom; Later there was some apprehension lest the failure might bring down a string of banking institutions in the south. Sully & Co. have or had deposits with several banks. One of their most active accounts was with the Corn Exchange bank. The account was opened about a year ago, and the firm's balances were often large. President Nash said: "All we know at this time is that Sully & Co. have suspended, and that their account with us is all right. I have been told that their liabilities may be large, but I have no personal knowledge. Their relations with us were exactly the same as those of many other cotton brokerage firms."

He established a cotton house of his own last year, under the name of Daniel J. Sully & Co., but when his operations in cotton became so suc-cessful, the cotton market having been pushed up above 17 cents a pound early this year, he widened the scope of his firm's business, bought a seat on the New York stock exchange, went into the coffee exchange, got a membership on the Chicago board of trade, and, it was said, made connections with other prominent exchanges throughout the ountry. The members of the firm were Daniel J. Sully, Col. S. F. B. Morse of Houston. Tex.; Walter S. Crandell and Edwin Hadley, Jr. Recently William R. Fagan, manager of the firm's New Orleans office, was taken into the firm.

NEWS IN NEW ENGLAND.

Providence, R. I., March 18,-The ansuncement of the embarrassment of Daniel J. Sully came as a hard blow to the cotton trade here. Sully belongs in this city and his daring operations have been followed closely. Many local speculators followed his example and advice and not a lew profited handsomelyl last year. In manufacturing circles, however, there has been little the synaphing with Sully, and mill own-ers and agents were pronounced in ex-pressing the belief that the suspen-sion would do much towards relieving the uncertain situation in the textile Fall River, Mass., March 18.-Fall River, especially those who have hade heavy contracts while the raw material was well up in price are somewhat disturbed over the failure of Daniel J. Should the price of goods decline to any great vient it is feared losses would be conderable, especially on material made from high priced cotton.

PANIC IN NEW ORLEANS.

New Orleans, La., March 18 .- Announcement of the failure of Daniel J. Sully & Co. created a panie today on the floor of the New Orleans cotton exchange. Prices melted away until they were $9 and $10 a bale lower than yes-terday's close. When the paule was over, the commercial integrity of the local cotton trade was found intact, although scores of small operators were wiped cut and heavy longs had lost fortunes.

Soon after 1 o'clock private telegrams from New York said "Sully suspended," and for the next three-quarters of an hour an immense crowd of people at the windows and doors of the cotton exchange saw scores of business men engaged in a rough and tumble fight near the ring to sell their cotton to an time, and still the selling continued. Coats were torn, hats were smashed, chairs and stools about the ring were demolished. So great was the roar from the ring that it could be heard for blocks above the noise of traffic around the busy corner of Gravier and Carondelet streets.

From about 1:10 until 1:30 o'clock fi was hard to recognize the cotton ex-change as a commercial center. The ring had the appearance of being the object of an attack of about 200 men, who plunged over one another to get street could easily see that the brokers were possessed of one idea, and that was to sell cotton, no matter what the

STATEMENT BY SULLY.

New York, March 19 .- "My suspen-sion is only temporary," said Daniel J. Sully, the cotton speculator, the suspension of whose firm shook the spec-ulative world yesterday. He made this declaration upon reaching his home after a conference at his offices ex-tending later into the night.

"I do not care to add anything to that simple statement," he continued, "and I shall not have any further statement to make either tomorrow or Sunday." Mr. Sully apparently was no more downcast that he was exultant not long ago when the current report was that he had made several millions through the under several mining through the unprecedently high prices for cotton. He would not discuss the intimations that there might have been treachery at some point among his friends, nor would he indicate how soon he expected to resume operations. The members of the cotton exchange who had contracts with Daniel J. Sully & Co., held a meeting after the close of business in the governing room of the exchange to discuss the situation. They were creditors of the suspended firm and many of them did not know wheth-er they would be insolvent on the fol-lowing day or not, in case the failure was a bad one. It was decided to appoint a commit-tee of the leading brokers, of which John McFadden was the chairman. They visited the office of Sully & Co. and made a formal inquiry as to the amount of cotton contracts which the firm had outstanding. No informa-tion was obtainable and after a protracted discussion the meeting was dissolved without any conclusion being reached. One of those present said afterwards:

"We counted noses and that's about all they did. We gathered the information, however, that Sully does not hold 300,000 bales of cotton. The amount is far less than that, I am glad to say, and after a careful compilation it was the opinion of all present at the meeting that a safe estimate of his holdings would be about 225,000 bales." Upon the average price of cotton today hinges the outcome of the failure. Should this be within reasonable bounds, the creditors will not fare so badly as it first might appear, and Mr. Sully's hopeful views are grounded on this prospect.

LIVERPOOL MARKET.

Liverpool. March 19 .- The cotton market here this morning presented a lively apearance, in view of the Sully crash in New York, which was not announced until after this market had closed. The galleries and balcony of the exchange were filled with on-lookers, and in the ring the brokers were waiting until the opening bell rang. They then gave vent to the pent up excitement which existed before the opening. The masket opened 26 to 44 points lower.
