EDITORIAL NOTES.

O'Donovan Rossa, the dynamic fiend, says that O'Donovan, the talented correspondent who let his life with Hicks Pasha's army, is his cousin. Doubtless a great many people think the wrong cousin was killed.

The Philadelphia News says: It is hard to kick against big corporations as Master Workman Lavery, who led the recent strike of the operators against the Western Union Telegraph Company has found out. He has just succeeded in getting his first position since the strike, which pays him a little over a third as much as he was getting before he kicked over the traces.

It appears that the visit of the Crown prince of Germany to Spain is hardly more welcome to the government of that country than it is to the French patriots. Naturally the bond that unites France and Spain is a close one. The people have a great deal in common, and just now a very considerable section of the Spanish people are drawn to France by their strong feelings in favor of a republican form of government.

At Paisley a monument has been unveiled in honor of Robert Tannahill, the weaver-poet of that old Scotch town. The songs of this writer are better known than himself. Among them are the "Flower of Dunblane," the "Braes of Balquidder," "Gloomy Winter's Noe Awa," "London's Bonny Woods and Broom," "O' his more ambitious work the greater part has been long since dead. His love-songs remain and can perish only with the race to whom they so sweetly speak. On the 17th of May, 1810, Tannahill, then 36 years old, was found drowned in a canal near his native town. There is little doubt but his death was that of a suicide. Toward his later years a morbid melancholy beclouded his life with hopeless gloom.

The Chicago News says: "It is not improbable that the Mormons will eventually gain control of the Sandwich Islands, where they have already planted a large and growing colony. It may develop that the simplest and easiest way of solving the Mormon problem will be to ship the Saints to Hawaii and let them shift for themselves. And, by the way, the Mormons have from time immemorial shown a good deal of tact and ability in shifting for themselves. With all their ignorance and bigotry, they are phenomenally industrious and thrifty." The "Mormons" are as intelligent and liberal as they are industrious and thrifty, and the last remark of our contemporary is like hitting a man with a guinea club and then putting a piece of sticking-plaster on the wound. There is as much prospect of the Sandwich Islands coming to the "Mormons" however, as the "Mormons" going to the Sandwich Islands.

The New York Mail and Express says: "Consecutive polygamy" is a growing evil in Massachusetts, as well as in Connecticut, where New Yorkers mostly go for easy divorces. The forty-first official registration report of Massachusetts presents a fearful array of statistics, which are here summarized: In 1883 there were 10,875 marriages; in 1882, 17,684, an increase of 62.6 per cent. The number of divorces rose from 207 to 515, or 147.6 per cent, with an estimated increase in the population of 33.4. Reckoned from 1870, in which year the nine causes were legalized, it appears that marriages increased 20.1 per cent, while divorces increased 35.9 per cent. During the last ten years the ratio of increase in marriages has been 7.6 per cent, against 14.7 per cent. for divorces. War against consecutive polygamy would seem to be a first duty of Massachusetts preachers and moralists. The same paper might consistently have extended the scope of its advice to the moralists and preachers of every other part of the country to clean up their own doorsteps before turning their attention to comparatively pure Utah. If this consistent course were taken the "Mormons" would never be molested, as inexhaustible would be the labor undertaken.

The old saying regarding truth being stranger than fiction is again exemplified in the story that comes from California. For some years stages had been robbed, and the robber in nearly every instance had inscribed a piece of doggerel poetry on the back of a wall bill and signed it "Black Bart." For years he had baffled the skill of all the detectives. Recently a coach was robbed in Calaveras County, and near the scene of the robbery was found a linen coat bearing a laundry mark. The detective upon this slight clue ascertained that it was the property of a man going under the name of Charles E. Bolton, and who has been known in San Francisco as a mining man and capitalist for several years. He has never associated with disreputable characters, has lived well, dressed well and worn diamonds, and has always maintained, with the greatest success, his assumed character of a mining man. Occasionally he would leave the city, ostensibly for the mines. It has been proved, and he has confessed it, that he is "Black Bart," the stage robber, and that his pretended visits to his mining interests were but ruses to the treasure houses of Wells, Fargo & Co's express. He has made a full confession and been sentenced to six years in the California State prison.

AMENITIES OF EVERY DAY LIFE.

We are almost deluged daily with copious oral and written accounts of weddings, surprise parties, birthday parties and other complimentary social gatherings of a similar character.

From a degree of deference to the feelings of the persons concerned, perhaps a little more space has been accorded to such affairs than should have been given. But we deem it necessary to make a radical curtailment in this direction in the future. When such matters are mentioned at all, we intend to give them scarcely more than a passing notice. We draw attention to the subject here conspicuously that those who might otherwise furnish matter of this class may not be disappointed by having their statements radically balled down or not appear at all. We will probably be pardoned for expressing the opinion that the desire to publish accounts of birthday parties and other parties has been carried to an extreme. Such social affairs are excellent in their way, especially when moderately engaged in. But they properly belong, as a rule, to the amenities of private life, in which they serve to break the monotony of every-day routine. When they are described through the columns of a newspaper they become public and the charm of privacy is broken.

Speaking of the community of Latter-day Saints, while on this subject, it will be well for them to consider how far the spirit of adulation of others or self can be indulged in without overstepping the boundary line of the Gospel. An ounce of sensible appreciation is worth a ton of exaggeration exhibited in an excess of public display. Too much cannot be taken in avoiding anything that will feed a feeling of vanity or pride. Beware of pride lest ye become like unto the Nephites of old, in the voice of revelation to the Latter-day Saints, through Joseph Smith.

It is nearing the holiday season. There will be many surprise parties. Who can fail to observe in the community a too strong tendency to turn according to class lines in this department of life? The rich feast the rich and pay them numerous attentions that make their hearts run over with the oil of gladness. We are pleased to observe this, and would like to see the hearts of the wealthy made still more plethoric with the joys of life. We know how it can be done. If they would extend their little courtesies to the poorer and more needy they would kill two birds with one stone. The good they would do by turning at least a part of their attention that way, and the happiness they would impart to those who need it so much more than those to whom it is customary to tender it, would find a pleasurable echo in their own hearts.

Perhaps we will not be accused of hyper-criticism if we express an opinion that the effect that there is some room in our community for improvement in social practices, by the infusion of a little more of that Gospel spirit that inspires a constant desire for the welfare of the comparatively helpless. Those who are in influence are in a position to take care of themselves. A little more of the actual work of doing good without heralding the act with the blast of a trumpet would serve to increase the actuality of a professed brotherhood and sisterhood.

We have departed somewhat from the strict line of our first object expressed at the beginning of the article, but there is at the same time a connecting link throughout. Except in cases where occasions of the nature named are of more than ordinary note, we expect to adhere to the policy of brevity or non-publication.

A HARD STRUGGLE.

When the Denver Inter-Ocean spoke in this fashion, there was some degree of truth in its remark, notwithstanding it was not free from an ironical ingredient: "Denver Inter-Ocean 23d: The Order of Jesus, Mormonism, which is published in the titling enclosure of the Mormon rulers, has our sympathy in its efforts to stem the tide of public opinion. It is better than any organ ought to be in trying to answer all the foul slanders falling upon the afflicted church. The Mormon rulers ought to publish more papers for the Order of Jesus, albeit it is a blanket sheet, is proving inadequate to the mighty task. Let it find comfort in the fact that the affliction of the right eye is but the way that the God of Israel has of purifying His people. Let the Mormon masses remember that this wicked work is still the adding place of Amalekites, Philistines, Moabites, Amorites, Egyptians, Jebusites, Perizzites, and other tribes of heathen Gentiles."

The task of refutation is decidedly Herculean, and our isolation in the struggle is strongly marked. But we are not disheartened. When calumny comes with a greater rush than usual, we roll up our sleeves, sharpen our pens, and go to work with redoubled energy. With the truth on our side, we hope to do something toward helping its cause. At the same time, if the Inter-Ocean or any other capable journal should have the courage to face the popular flood of senseless rage it may rest assured that it will come out on the winning side in the end. Victory may be a good way off, but it is nevertheless sure. In any case, our colors are nailed to the mast-head. In our lexicon there is no such word as surrender.

WANTS A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

The resolution proposed by General Rosecrans for an amendment to the Constitution "prohibiting polygamy in the United States" is very absurd. It is as good as an admission that as the Constitution now stands, all laws made with a view to the suppression of the plural wife system of marriage are in conflict with it, which we hold to be the case. A constitutional provision is of itself powerless on any subject. This plain as to be almost self-evident.

BY TELEGRAPH.

THE AMERICAN.

LATEST BY LIGHTNING.

Governor Murray interviewed.

New York, 30.—Gov. Murray of Utah, who is now in this city, has given lengthy views on the Mormon problem. In his interview he describes the Mormon church as a "Hierarchy within a republic." A combination to defy the laws of the United States, a conspiracy which led to open rebellion at one time, and still defies the plain will of Congress and the President, and the judgment of the Supreme Court. The representatives of the Mormon church are aggressively defiant; aim at the establishment of polygamy, to impair which shall supplant the government itself. He declares that the establishment of a hostile sovereignty is the chief danger, exceeding the evil of polygamy itself. He describes the common school system of Salt Lake City, as under the complete domination of the Mormons. The school house being almost immediately contiguous to the ward meeting house. Having the complete control of the legislature and schools of the Territory, the Mormon Church is prepared for a collision which Gov. Murray pronounces inevitable, although he says that the Mormon leaders are using strategy in order to delay the conflict, thus gaining time for the augmentation of their resources. It appears that by immigration alone the Mormon population has increased more than 25,000 during the present year.

The Times says Gov. Murray recommends that Congress either repeal its laws against polygamy in the Territory or assume control of the territorial government and destroy the liquidity of polygamy. The monogamous legislation was approved under the Edmunds act, but is virtually controlled by the Mormon hierarchy. If it fails to repeal the laws regarding the establishment of religion and to exact measures forbidding polygamy, Congress should abolish the Legislature itself, Governor Murray thinks, and establish a legislative council in its place consisting of three or five members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. His representation that the power and purpose of the organized and hostile sovereignty in Utah now strong and growing every year, will certainly produce a deep impression upon the public mind.

Double Murder and Suicide.

BALTIMORE, 30.—About noon today Mrs. Rial, a married woman living on Biddle Street, and the throat of her two girls, aged respectively 4 years and 18 months and then cut her own throat. The children soon died, and the mother, though yet alive, is not expected to live. She says she does not want to live. Domestic infidelity preyed upon her mind. This family occupied a good position. Mr. Rial is about 28 years old.

New York, 27.—The World says:

A stranger made his appearance at the Fifth Avenue Hotel yesterday, saying: "What do you want proving about this hotel? His name is I have a duty to perform," and detective Prior turned the man about and directed him to the stairs. He did not stop until the stairs were reached, and then straightening up to his full height and throwing back the hat which covered his forehead, the man almost shouted: "I am a Colonel and I have made this trip East for the express purpose of shooting President Arthur." As he uttered these words, he tapped the side pocket of his coat significantly. He did not wait for a further invitation to leave the hotel but hurrying to the sidewalk called a carriage and was driven away in the direction of Lexington Avenue. Detective Prior informed a reporter that he firmly believes that the stranger would have assassinated the President had he seen him.
