The crowd last night was with iver, i went wild cheering for him when he ame out onto the track after a good person had been run oft, and when he maned four lengths ahead it yelied its bad off in his nonor. It had paue its rood money to see a championship con-text, and wasn't going to be forbidden the privilege of telling a fellow Sait Lask-er how detighted it was with ham. As for Kramer, he was applauded more slightly than courtesy to a guest within he dify walls would justify. They over-locked him when he came out, when there was a good opportunity to be gen-erous to a guest, and shower a welcome of cheers upon him. It would have add-at good flavor to Lawson's winning, and boosted for a spirit of fair play. KRAMER DIDN'T HIDE Des Moines Batterles-Menske and Dexter; Sanders and Gonding. KRAMER DIDN'T RIDE. KRAMER DIDN'T RIDE. As it is there is no good flavor to the nec. Lawson won, but today there are a is of insinuating questions, and many pools in the crowd that are not favora-is to either the management or the race. The talent declarc it should have been gelared off, if it was on the square, be-cause Lawson forced Kramer out of his aride by cutting down on him after go-ing around to make his sprint. Those who have lost faith in the management privati race are mean enough to declare that they believe it is programmed for kramer to win the next event, and that it was programmed for Iver to win this one, to draw a crowd for the second heat, and then leave the big question mark hanging are at doubled prices.
