

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

congratulations and good wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Snow will be at home after July 15 at their new home, No. 1650 South State street.

Miss Mabel McBride, of Provo, formerly of Fillmore, and John P. Tate, of Tooele, were married in the Salt Lake Temple on Wednesday, Bishop John L. Winder officiating. The bride is a well known kindergarten teacher and a very capable and deservingly popular young woman. The groom is the son of John W. Tate, a leading Tooele merchant and is regarded as a young man of excellent character and habits. When the war broke out with Spain he was a delightful musician on Wednesday afternoon, the participants in the program being Miss Thelma Winfield and Miss Marion Lake of the Salt Palace Co., and Mrs. Drogmund, a pianist of Kansas City.

A pleasant social was held at St. Paul's rectory on Wednesday evening, the young men of the brotherhood of St. Andrew gathering there and enjoying an informal evening with music and conversation. Rev. Elihu Bishop and Rev. Dainton were the hosts at the pleasant affair.

On Thursday evening, Miss Genevieve attending the Brigham Young academy of Provo, from which institution his wife graduated. He immediately offered his services and was accepted as a member of Battery C and by order of Uncle Sam. He made a very good soldier and his old-time comrades will wish him well in surrendering to the will of Cupid. An elaborate reception was tendered him in Tooele last night at the residence of his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Tate will be at home to their friends after July 1.

Among the pretty weddings of the week was that of Miss Rhea Haddock and Oscar G. Hemenway on Wednesday, the ceremony being performed at the bride's home by Prof. J. E. Talmage. The rooms were lavishly decorated with roses, carnations and smilax, the parlor being especially pretty. After the ceremony an elaborate supper was served at an exquisitely arranged table, the family and intimate friends of the bride and groom being the guests. The bride was prettily gowned in pink Swiss over pink silk with lace and ribbon trimmings. Both the young people are popularly known, the bride being daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Haddock, and the groom a member of the well known firm of Hemenway & Moser. They will be at home after July 15th at 223 east Third South street.

Another of Wednesday's weddings was that of Miss A. Williams and Durward B. Ralls, the marrying ceremony being performed by Bishop W. W. The house was lavishly decorated with flowers and vines presenting a charming appearance. After the ceremony a reception was held and an elaborate supper served. The bride was gowned in white Swiss over white silk with lace and ribbon trimmings. The bride's maid, Miss Rose Bird, wore white organdy. J. B. Watson acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Ralls will be at home to their friends at 39 south First West street.

Miss Myrtle Hayes and Mr. Benjamin Brewster were married on Thursday, the wedding taking place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Schuler, 249 north Third West street, Bishop Isaac Barton of the Nineteenth ward, officiating. The house and grounds were brilliantly decorated, the former with flowers and vines and the latter with electric globes making a pretty picture. An elaborate supper was served, and the evening pleasantly passed with music and games.

Miss Lillie Anderson and George T. Taylor were another happy couple who embarked on the tide of matrimony on Thursday. The ceremony took place in the Temple and a pretty reception followed in the evening. They will be at home to their friends at 121 G Street.

Among the charming hymeneal events of the week was the wedding of Miss May Keate and Archibald H. Cook, which took place on Thursday evening. The affair occurred at the home of the bride's parents, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Elihu Bishop of St. Paul's. The bride couple entered the room at 8 o'clock, the Deseret Mandolin and Guitar club playing Mendelssohn's wedding march, and afterward during the service Schuler's serenade. The party stood in a pretty floral bower consisting of a canopy of smilax and flowers intertwined with blue and white ribbons and with a background of potted plants and palms. Blue and white were the prevailing tints carried out in artistic designs the colors being those of the S. P. club, of which the bride is a member. The bride wore a gown of dainty organdy with lace and ribbon trimmings and carried bride roses. She had no attendants. Refreshments were served during the evening in the dining room, which was prettily decorated with pink sweet peas and white carnations. The members of the S. P. club, gowned in blue and white, presided over the dining room, among them being Misses Margaret Liggett, Allie Seccles, Vera Temperley, Belle Scofield, Mollie Bryson, Mary Carr, Anna Johnson. Punch was served on the lawn, which was effectively decorated. The bride is the pretty and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Keate and the groom the well known manager of the National Tea company. They will be at home after July 10 at 112 Third street.

Mrs. Max Peters was the hostess at Raine Pitt and Mr. Alexander Roberts Curtis were united in marriage, the event occurring at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pitt, 1812 south Fourth East street. The house and grounds were brilliantly decorated, the interior with a profusion of sweet peas, roses and carnations, and the latter with colored lights and bunting. In a large tent on the lawn tables were laid for 250, the table being beautifully decorated with flowers and smilax, and a delicious repast served. The tent poles were entwined with flowers, and the effect throughout was most charming.

The bride wore a gown of dainty white organdy and carried bride's roses. The maid of honor, Miss Richards, wore a gown of white Swiss. Mr. George Granger, a cousin of the bride, acted as best man.

The affair was a most delightful one, and the guests were one in voice praising for the generous hospitality of the host and hostess.

Mrs. J. E. Hansen and City Editor Hansen of the "News" entertained the members of the staff at a delightful informal gathering on Wednesday night. The evening was enlivened with songs by Court Reporter John James, rendered in his best operatic style, and a number of the hosts and guests distinguished themselves by the usual distinguished narrative ability, which has made our local scribble famous in newspaper annals. Delicious refreshments were served, Miss Rebecca Morris assisting the hostess in hospitable dispensations, while City Editor Hansen fulfilled his part as host in beaming encouragement upon his flock of gifted assistants. The inebriated and self-congratulatory over the pleasant affair.

Mrs. Carlson was the hostess of a pleasant Kenosha yesterday afternoon. The rooms were lavishly decorated with flowers, refreshments served and a delightful time passed.

Miss Josephine Kellogg and Richard B. Beck were married at Provo on Wednesday.

Miss Alice F. Scoville of the Ogilvie school left during the week for Chicago.

Mrs. D. Dunbar and family left during the week for California, where they will spend the summer.

Miss Gertrude Felt, who has been down from Parley's for a few days, returned this morning to the canyon.

Among the many parties to Salsair this week was a delightful one chartered by Mrs. Hoyt Sherman on Wednesday.

Mrs. D. H. Peery and daughter, and Mrs. C. C. Richards, who have been in Virginia for some time past, have returned to their home in Ogden.

Edward H. Scott, former well known resident of Salt Lake, and Miss Margaret A. Withers of Lebanon, Ore., were married last week in California. They will come to Salt Lake in the fall to reside permanently.

Mrs. Dewey Richards, who has been in San Francisco for the past two years, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Richards.

Mrs. A. Roundy and family leave on Monday for Holiday Park, where they will spend the summer. Miss Florence Roundy will visit with Mrs. John Roundy at her home on Fifth and J streets.

PROVO SOCIETY.

On the evening of June 26th, Mr. and Mrs. Will Roberts and Lieut. and Mrs. E. A. Wedgewood entertained their friends at a lawn party at the Hotel Roberts. The edges of the lawn were decorated with flags, flowers, hammocks, rockers, rugs, etc. while in the center was stretched a large canvas, where all enjoyed dancing to the strains of sweet music made by Darton's band, Miss Arvilla Clark sang and Miss Miriam Nelly, recited. These artists were vigorously applauded and of each an encore was demanded, which was given. Miss Gordia Westwood and Miss Mable Shepherd acted as ushers for the evening. A dainty and delicious luncheon was served in the dining room, that having been profusely decorated for the occasion.

Those present were Dr. and Mrs. Pike, han, Mr. Murray Twelves, Mr. Herman Martin, Mr. Surh, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Bachman.

Miss Vera Hardy, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Shields at Park City.

Mrs. M. M. Kellogg entertained Monday afternoon, a large number of friends in honor of her daughter Josephine who was married Thursday evening to Mr. Richard Beely.

R. R. Irvine spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Will Irvine in Salt Lake City.

Postmaster James Grove and Leland Graham spent Wednesday at Ogden on business.

Mrs. D. D. Houtz and daughter Edith returned Wednesday evening after a two weeks' visit with relatives in Salt Lake City, Logan and Tooele.

The Fourth ward Sunday school spent Wednesday at Nelson's Park.

Mr. Bert Twelves has been confined to his room for a week, Mr. Twelves has been threatened with typhoid fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Beck and Mr. and Mrs. Charley DeMoisy spent and will have five club rooms, an excellent library and fifty members in good standing.

Mrs. L. Holbrook has been very sick for the last two weeks. We are pleased to know that Mrs. Holbrook is convalescent.

Miss Freda Barnum of Salt Lake City, and Miss Miriam Nelly of New York, are going to organize classes in elocution and Delsarte for a ten-weeks' course.

Mr. Jos. Urbansky, an employee in the cloak department of F. Auerbach & Bros., will join the excursion of delegates to the national Democratic convention leaving this city Saturday, the 30th. He expects to remain in Kansas City, his former home, for a month, visiting his relatives and friends.

The marriage of Miss Vada Parkin and Mangus Kast was solemnized at the residence of the bride's parents in South. Bountiful, Thursday evening. After the ceremony nearly fifty couples participated in the festivities provided for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Kast will be at home at 1050 east Fifth South street.

CLUB CHAT.

The Reader's club met in the Exposition office, Templeton, on the 25th of June. Mrs. E. B. Wells read a very nice selected poem; and, also, an interesting letter from Mrs. Lydia D. Alder. These were followed by the mention of current events, after which the club adjourned until Monday, the 3rd of September.

The Utah Woman's Press club will meet this evening at the office of the Woman's Exposition. The quotations will be from Tennyson, and an interesting programme will be carried out.

The Poets' Round Table met on Monday at the residence of Mrs. Sarah Karick. The chairman of the day was Mrs. Rachel Miller, and Keats was the poet discussed. The table was prettily decorated with nasturtiums.

A practical form of summer club work has been introduced by Jewish women of Cincinnati, who furnish free trolley rides for convalescents among their sick poor. In many cases such a ride affords the single opportunity of the year to see open fields and wide horizons, and is of incalculable medicinal value. Those of us who are inclined to murmur because our summer program does not include the Paris Exposition may well draw a comparison of conditions, and as far as possible arrange some personal outing for the sick and poor.

One of the interesting women of the big Milwaukee biennial is Mrs. Robert Burdette, president of the new California Federation of Women's clubs. Anyone of the interesting things she will be able to tell of California club women will be their effort to preserve the big trees in that State.

The trouble began when a lumber merchant bought some of the big trees in Calaveras county. One of them is called "Mother of the forest," a splendid specimen 625 feet high. Immediately the club women loudly protested that these wonderful trees should fall by the lumberman's ax, and Sorosis in San Francisco proceeded to prepare a memorial to Congress asking that body to buy the grove. They are also sending letters broadcast asking other club women to appeal to the congressmen in their districts.

This is a reminder, moreover, of what club women elsewhere are doing to preserve the natural beauties of the country. In New Jersey club women decried the palisades in order to pave the streets of New York. Being unsuccessful in having this part of the palisades set aside as a State reservation, they are now attempting to arrange for the purchase of this marvelous gateway to the Hudson.

It is also claimed by Minnesota club women that they inspired the movement for a national forestry reserve in that State. A memorial, it is said, was first presented to the State legislature by representatives of the Minnesota Federation of Women's clubs, who afterward co-operated in the memorial sent to Congress.

Out in Colorado is another interesting instance where club women, headed by Mrs. Gilbert McClurg, hope to buy cliff dwellings from the Weemichute Utes. These cliff dwellings may be classed with the natural attractions of the country for they are of a nature-made, slightly improved by man.

Besides all this conspicuous effort, club women have sought to preserve natural beauty in a smaller way. The women down at Peoria, who are striving to preserve the attractions of their river, is an at home instance.

Inasmuch as Chicago club women were recently so interested in introducing cooking for boys in the public schools, the remarks of Mrs. N. Wilber, before the Brooklyn Woman's club are particularly pertinent. She said:

"The 'new boy' is of later origin than the 'new woman.' He can make his own bed, sew buttons on his own clothing, cook his own breakfast and wash the dishes if necessary, and he is no longer considered a 'sissy' for so doing. He can carry on successfully a bachelor establishment for his father and himself, make out the menus, hire the domestics, and even do his part socially without losing his place among the first six in school."

"The 'new boy' is the result of a growing belief among mothers and educators that domestic training is just as good for boys as for girls. They argue that a domestically trained boy makes the best husband, and that the brother who is obliged occasionally to make his own bed or boil an egg will not look down on his sister for doing the same things; also, that the girl who can use her brother's kit of tools will no longer consider him a superior being because the tools are his property rather than hers."

As a more practical illustration of the 'new boy' mention may be made of the New York Association of Sewing Schools. At one of the classes boys are taught to darn their sweaters, sew on buttons and make buttonholes. The work is so excellent, moreover, that it has been sent with the association's exhibit to the Musée Pédagogique in Paris.

The woman's club recently organized in Mexico to bind together the members of the American colony, and help those who need assistance, whatever their nationality, is watched with interest by American club women. Hereafter American editors will find a club where the language spoken is English and not Spanish, where the literature of the United States is on file, and where the ties of a common nationality make the atmosphere of the club rooms redolent of the aroma of genuine American sociability.

Mrs. Clayton, wife of the American ambassador, is honorary vice president. Among the members are Americans, English, Canadians, Irish, German and French women. They are all pledged to help carry out any philanthropic plan that is formulated by the club officers and already numbers of Mexican unfortunates have had reason to be glad that the woman's club came into existence. English speaking men have been found in the great gloomy prison of Belem. Where they have been penniless and friendless, their case has been taken up and, through the proper officials, they have been supplied with comforts that they had not the money to buy or rent. When their sentence has expired, instead of being turned out in the world to face the fight for bread with the brand of the prison plainly noticeable in their ragged clothing and deplorable appearance, they have been supplied with new clothes and money given them to tide over the gap between prison cell and an honest livelihood.

Mexican women have been helped in similar ways. One little American boy is being cared for and educated. They now have five club rooms, an excellent library and fifty members in good standing.

Right in line with the movement among club women to promote home industries in the isolated districts is a most unique exhibit held in New York this week. It was a showing and sale of the needlework of southern gentlemen.

HEARTS MAY WELD A DIADEM

With the betrothal of H. R. H. the Princess of the Asturias, sister of the little king of Spain, to Prince Carlos of Bourbon-Caserta, a vision of by no means remote possibilities. Should anything happen to the boy monarch, this future couple would occupy the Spanish throne as queen and prince consort. Their royal highnesses are to have one of the most sumptuous weddings in the annals of European society.

This is the way it started: Some time ago it was proposed to have an exhibit of southern handicraft, and a well-known club woman, Mrs. Roger A. Pryor, was placed in charge. Immediately letters were sent throughout the south, with the thought of encouraging cottage industries. The responses were so generous and the laces and embroideries so beautiful that there was no doubt as to the success of the enterprise. Accompanying these pieces of handicraft, however, were often pathetic letters asking that they be placed on the market for sale. They were, for the most part, from impoverished gentlewomen who were more than eager for a little financial lift. Thereupon it occurred to the New York women to give an exhibit and sale made up solely of the exquisite laces and embroideries of their sisters in the south. The result was a success in every particular, handwork from fifteen southern States being represented.

So elated was everybody concerned with this unique enterprise that it is to be an annual event. Permanent organization, in fact, was effected, with Mrs. Pryor as president and Mrs. John G. Carlisle and Mrs. Thomas A. Emmet as honorary presidents.

Some time ago the announcement was made by Mrs. Robert Farson, president of the Illinois federation, that Illinois was the banner State in the Union in number of clubs. This was published in the Times-Herald, and thereupon an Ohio club woman wrote this:

"Dear Mrs. President:—The announcement that Illinois is the banner State in number of clubs—having 238—is an error. The last year-book of the Ohio federation, which was issued in January, contains the list of 237 clubs."

Once in a while some club woman has the courage to say a thing or two about certain types of self-assured staidness. This time the stout-hearted lady is a Bostonian—Mrs. Mary C. Crawford—and this is what she says:

"The club woman who is endowed with brains and bumptiousness makes a mighty good thing out of it all. In her school days she was at the head of her class because she could make her little bit of knowledge seem a very presentable thing. She hasn't lost power with the passage of years. She can 'cook up' the results of a morning's digging at the library and serve it so prettily, garnished with smiles and quotations, that the fifty good, honest souls of her class will be moved to a real enthusiasm. Some will even wear out a good pair of gloves in applause of her 'erudition.'"

Not satisfied with this deadly-but-deserved—thrust, the Bostonian sails for another say. It is:

"Here is a woman well educated and well read, a woman who keeps up intelligently with the ordinary run of what is called good literature. She moves, however, among a class of women who are inferior to her in education and intelligence, and among them she is an oracle, a real priestess of divine wisdom. They, dear remnants of a former and less strenuous epoch,

Cleaning Fruits.

There is one caution that must be observed in the preparation of the table of fruits, salads, etc., especially where they are to be eaten without cooking. They must be thoroughly cleaned. Cold water does not take off the dirt, and larvae from green or lettuce, or apples, and as for minute insects it only makes them adhere more closely to the warm surface of the plant. It washed in warm water all these things, and then it should then be put into cold water to restore the crispness and there remain for an hour until used. Fruit that is eaten raw, such as apples, tomatoes, etc., should either be pared or washed and polished.

Stewed Raisins.

Stewed raisins with bread are said to be an excellent dish for persons who have a weak digestion or for invalids. Take a pound of best raisins, pick them free from stalks, cover in a dish of cold water, steep all night, put them in a stew pan and bring the water to the boiling point, then add a little sugar, a little salt, and a little vinegar. Turn into a dish to cool and they are ready for use. If half a pound of figs, each cut in four parts, be added, the liquor will be rich, syrupy and delicious.

Shun Long Engagements.

Ask a society girl how long she intends to stretch her engagement and she will reply: "Until my fiancé positively refuses to wait any longer, or, better yet, until he is ready to marry me, she makes the engagement just as long as she possibly can, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

An engaged couple invariably grow tired of each other when the time is protracted. Their affection sinks into the commonplace, their love loses its freshness, its glamor of romance. The couple who are engaged for a long time very frequently quarrel and irritate one another by their selfish petty exactions and ridiculous demands. The best man in the world becomes impatient and indifferent. In a long engagement both begin to plainly to see the faults that startle into a crowd after awakening. This often comes after marriage, with the close relationship that comes with the close relationship helps to reconcile them.

Manicure Methods.

There is nothing that bespeaks good breeding and the instincts of the gentlewoman in the way of her hands and the woman in the way of her hands. The possibilities of transforming a really ugly hand into a thing of beauty are greater than one would fancy.

To keep the hands beautiful and the nails good to look upon requires only the efforts of one who is painstaking.
