WASHINGTON NOTES.

The punishment visited upon the naval cadets at Annapolis concerned in the recent case of hazing is quite severe, but perhaps not dis-proportionate to the offense, after the warning of the Secretary some twelve months since. As has been stated, the ringleader in the affair was dismissed from the Academy, and in addition the entire third class, who were more or less connected with it, will, by order of the Secretary, be deprived of their customary leave of absence this year .- Washington Star, April 30.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Senator Morrill, of Vermont, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate, complains of the tardy action of the House on the appropriations, which Washington, April 29.—Sen-ator Morrill, of Vermont, chair-House on the appropriations, which it has had under consideration so long and only just passed. In this connection he laughs at the idea of being able to fix a time for adjournment as early as June next. He says that according to the way business is going on, it will probably be late in August before it will be possible to adjourn, as everything will be rushed in at the last moment and there will be such a pressure that they will not know what to commence at first. Unless 50,000 Trees there is an understanding reached satisfactory to all on the currency question, there are mutterings that it will go hard with the final affirmative action on any appropriation bill which comes up, until terms are acceded to by the adminstration which will favor an increase of the circulation.-N.
