

own, was the any prospect of a harvest? No one can pass Mr. Burrit's farm without perceiving some improvement. The external aspect of the old homestead has a more cheerful and comfortable appearance. Instead of the straggling and unsightly objects which used to be seen around the house, everything has a tidy look.

The grass is growing, the flowering shrubbery creeps up the walls and adorns the pathway, the vegetable garden is in better taste, the ornamental accompaniments the useful, and gives evidence that the youngsters of the family have been studying the books on gardening.

A glance inside shows a better regulated family, and more obedient and well-dressed children. Farmer Burrit acknowledges that Thomas, his oldest boy, has got something out of his books which has saved labor and improved his crops.

Other years pass, and the improvement is still more visible. Mr. Burrit, rather ashamed of his deficiencies, has been reading, and marvellous to tell, has spent an additional fifty dollars in books. His conversation has become more intelligent. He knows something besides farming, and his whole manner has undergone a favorable change. The religious books have accomplished their mission.

Religion dwells in that household, and has its altar there. There can be no complaint that books have rendered the children idle, for they have been a new stimulus to industry. The farm prospers more than ever, and the farmer has abandoned his prejudices against the various improvements in agricultural implements, and has obtained a good insight into the advantages of agricultural chemistry.

Mrs Burrit has become proud of her girls and boys—and well she may be, for there are none like them in the neighborhood—so sensible, so refined in manners, so attentive to their duties, so anxious to excel.—[Presbyterian.

SPEECH-MAKING.—Who has not known a pleasant party utterly done for—every element of its pleasantness extinguished by the demon of speech-making throwing its wet blanket over it. The interesting conversation, the smartly-maintained argument, the quick repartee, the good-humored badinage—all paralysed in a moment by some unhappy speechmaker, who rises from his chair, like a ghost through a trap-door, and in an unflattering stolid voice asks permission to propose a toast.

It is granted of course. You know that all is over—the blow has been struck—enjoyment is lying sprawling under the table, dying or dead. You may as well take your hat and go home disconsolately in the rain: you know what will follow. You know that the wretch is going to propose your host's health—you know all that a creature of the kind says—he is always sure the toast he is about to give requires no comment—that its object requires no eulogium from him to make them all do that toast due honor.

They all know their friend—their excellent, their valued friend—and that, as surely as he is known, he is esteemed—that they all can and do appreciate those many excellent qualities which have so generally endeared him, either as a husband, a father, or a friend. Knowing this, and feeling this, he did believe himself called upon to, &c. &c. &c.

All the commonplace cant of compliment is duly gone through; and the mischief is, that the matter don't end here. The toasting (there is no law against coining words as against coining half-crowns) is in duty bound to return thanks, which process he performs by disclaiming seriatim all the flattery lavished upon him, and too often winding up by plastering it more upon another, who in his turn repeats the interesting operation.

And so it goes round: the mania is as catching as the small-pox. Everybody proposes everybody else's health. It would be an insult given to leave out anybody—received, to be left out by everybody. Conversation, amusing or instructive, gives place to a rapid round of compliments, neither instructive, nor amusing, nor sincere.

You no more mean what you say when you make an ordinary buttering after dinner speech, than you do what you write when you finish a letter with 'your most obedient servant,' and address it to a fellow whom you mean to kick the first time you can catch him.—[New Monthly Magazine.

Davy Jones' Locker must contain an immense amount of treasure. In 1854, $25,000,000 were sunk in the ocean; in 1856, which was comparatively free of storms, only $15,000,000, making an average of $20,000,000 per annum for two years.

Napoleon said in early days, 'the only victory that costs no tears, is the victory over ignorance.'

It is like a beast who has done no good while he lived.

HOME MANUFACTURES,

PRODUCE
HOME MANUFACTURED GOODS
Will be received for Sale and Exchange.

Manufacturers, take courage; all you want is a market for the products of your labor.

Farmers, be wise; watch the spirit of the Prophet, keep his counsel, and exchange your grain for home manufactures only, except such indispensable articles as have not as yet been manufactured in the Territory, and to meet those deficiencies, a considerable stock of States goods of a certain class will be kept on hand for a time.

It would be ridiculous to mention what class of Home Manufactures will be required for Sale, or what quantity; for the fact is, we want every article from a mouse trap to a steam-engine, and the quantity unlimited.

Good, fat beef CATTLE taken in exchange for Goods. The cattle are wanted in order to procure fat for the Soap Factory. Holders of stock, won't you assist in this important branch of Home Manufactures? Some have prophesied you will not; I say you will, for there are yet many righteous men in Israel.

Endeavor to communicate with me, and make your arrangements as early as possible.

HERDING.
THE undersigned have established a HERD GROUND in Rush Valley, and are prepared to take stock to herd; and we feel confident in saying that the range is equal to any in the Territory.

The vast amount of Stock lost heretofore through the negligence of herdsmen, and the severity of the weather in other valleys has induced us to locate said herd ground, and enter into the business of herding for the benefit of the people—said valley having proved the best and safest range for stock the past winter there was in the Territory. And we shall hold ourselves responsible to parties for all losses through our neglect of stock placed in our charge.
The convenient location of said valley to G. S. L. City will enable us to receive stock on the 1st and 3d Mondays of each month, at the Estray Pound in said city.
