Companions in Life and Death -A gloomy feeling has pervaded West Jordan Ward during the past few days, caused by the unexpected death of two sweet little girls, each about eight years old, companions who occupied the same seat at echool. One is the daughter of Bro. Emanuel Richards. Some idea having obtained that the complaint that carried them off was diphtheria, the school has been suspended for a time. This morning, at about II o'clock, she breathed her last. Sister Needham presided over the Relief Society of the 7th Ward, with down the pipe, creating obstructions much satisfaction to the people, and was always ready with an open hand and free heart to help the needy. People who have visited or residand is just now able to get about a ed in the southwest are familiar with the poisonous plant known as "Crasy Weed." Owing to its injurious and frequently fatal effects upon dattle, Brother Brigham Young was induced to send a specimen to the Smithsonian Institute, with a view to ascertaining whether or not, it had any known antidote. The following correspondence was elicited:

United States. Dapt. of Agriculture, Division of Botany. WASHINGTON, April 14th, 1883. Prof. F. S. Baird, Scoretary

Smithsonian Institute. Dear Sir: -The Specimen of "Loco Weed" transmitted from Mr. Brigham Young, of Arizons, is a species of Astragalus, of which there are very many species abounding it the arid regions of the West. There are several species of this genus soot, smoke, dust and dirt. In orwhich have the poisonous proper-Botanist. The people of Southern Utah, Arizona, New Mexico and other localities to which the plant is indigenous can now make up their minds to exterminate it if they wish to preserve their cattle from its deadly effects, there being, according to the chief eclentific authority in the country, no other remedy known.

The weed receives its common or untechnical name from the effects it produces upon cattle when eaten by them. The animals become genuively crazy, and cut up curlous and will capers. Even when the result Hyrum Cooper, and the other of is not immediately fata', stock that normal condition of health.

> Wanted to Go to Jail .- Yesterday, a respectable-looking, moderately well dressed man called upon the police and said he wanted to be put into jail as a vagrant. On being ture in the city, also refrigerators taken into court the Justice refused and baby carriages, which we will to commit him, there being no basis for the charge of vagrancy other than his own statement. The man, who gave the name of A. T. Hurd said he was from the East, where he had a family; that he had been in the employ of the D. & R. G. Co. bat owing to indulging in the habit of drinking, had been discharged. Drink had caused him to be subject to occasional slight aberrations of intellect, and he desired to go to jall, where he could be for a season under some sort of restraint. The Court still maintained its refusal to commit, but Justice Splers stated to Hurd that he could have the privilege of working for the city for his board, so long as the supervisor seeded his services. He accepted the situation and forth with went to

A Good Idea .- A short time ago Manager Clawson asked Mr. David smes if he could get up some ar tangement for keeping drinking water in the Theatre cool other than by the ordinary method of placing ice in it. The two gentlemen "put their heads together," and the result is a coil of pipe through which the water will flow, enclosed in a suitable vessel. Into the interior of this coil the ice will be placed, so n which, the lices was prac tically operated in Salt Lake City by Me ars. Clawson and James.

It is claimed that many dises have been engendered through the drinking of ice-water, much which is necessarily impure, much so that frequently impurities can be seen in the frozen lumps.

Alleged Vandalism.-John Rowley, of Nephi, informs us that he has spent much labor and means to convey water to his farm from the mountains, but has been greatly annoyed and damaged by the doings of some mischlevous lads. It appears from his statement that he made and laid half a mile or so of asbestine piping, but the youths referred to uncovered and injured it, even going so far as to float objects even going so far as to float objects down the pipe, creating obstructions which cannot be removed without much trouble and expenditure. If this statement is correct, the boys should be dealt with if they do not desist from such inexcusable vandalism. If the matter cannot be physicians using it in their practice.

Later and fuller particulars. The following additional dispatch was received this afternoon:

"The man Frank James has been somewhat quarrelsome and set himself up as the best man in the district. He has carried two revolvers constantly, even while at work in the mines. About a month since he went into a saloon and made both the proprietor and bar-keeper kneel down and beg for their lives.
