FORTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, I. — Senator Edmunds, from the judiciary committee, reported back in relation to the President's message about lawlessness in Arisona, that it was the opinion of the committee that additional legislation is not necessary to empower the President to suppress lawlessness in the Territories; that he can, under the existing laws, notify lawless gangs to disperse and cease disturbance, and if they do not obey the proclamation, the President can then use such force as he may deem necessary, including the army, to suppress lawlessness and restore order. This was assented to and the committee discharged.

In the Senate to-day Pendleton submitted the record of the proceeding in application of James O'Neal for writ of habeas corpus before Minister Bingham in Japan. He said this record showed that O'Neil is an American citizen, was tried by an American order, convicted of manslaughter, and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment, that the minister declined to grant a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that he had no right to supervise the proceedings i efore the consul. The Minister also denied permission to prosecute an appeal under the direction of the State Department. The prisoner was finally landed in California, where he now is. Pendleton called the attention to the wrongs inflicted upon American citizens in the countries of the East by reason of the laws conferring criminal jurisdiction upon our Consuls, Vice Consuls and Ministers in those countries.

Edmunds suggested that the imperfect tree ties of consular countries.

Edmunds suggested that the imperfect treaties of consular courts were pre erable to subjecting Amer-icans to a law of the native tribunals of the East.

Pendleton said he desired some provision made for courts of appeals from such courts to a California from such courts to a California judiciary. He called attention to the Executive message sent to the Senate at this session, concerning the outrage upon American citizens, the facts if known, he said, were enough to shock the Senate.

Edmunds defended the action of Minister Bingham, and Pendleton disclaimed any disposition to reflect upon any individual, protesting that his purpose was only to secure the improvement of the system.

On motion of Pendleton the paper went to the committee on foreign relations to which had already been referred the message from the President on the matter.

Pendleton referred to the outrages on American citizens in the countries of the East by reason of defects in the law conferring criminal jurisdiction upon our consuls and minis-diction upon our consuls and minis-

A bill to repeal the discrimination against the appointment of ex-Confederates in the army again came up and a division upon the pending question to refer to the committee on judiciary resulted 21 in favor and 19 against.

Townsend then said he offered the resolution to show that only one republican had the courage to favor it. He then moved to suspend the rules and pass the following joint resolution:

New York, 1.—The Washington correspondent of the Mail-Express says that Senator Edmunds, of the judiciary committee to whom the President's message about the outrages of cowboys in Arizona, was referred, had reported to-day that it was the opinion of the committee that there was no necessity for further legislation, and that the Executive had it in his power to put down lawlessness in the Territories and using, if necessary, the army as and using, if necessary, the army as a posse comitatus. Gariand made a brief address in support of the committee's finding. Senator Call offered a resolution to the effect that murders and other outrages by the Apaches in Arizona demand that Apaches in Arizona demand that the entire military power of the United States should be used for the publishment of the perpetrators and for the protection of our citizens. Dawes hoped that such outrages would be stopped, but charged that it was a scandal on the administration that such outbreaks should recur yearly. Ingalls was in favor of the general objects of the resolution, but said he was opposed to it if any reflection was intended on the Executive. Hawley took the same ground, and after a further debate, a resolution was referred to the committee on Territories.

Comments on Emerson's Beath.

London, 1.—The news of Emerson's death was read with wide regret, no American man of letters being so highly esteemed among the cultivated English people. The papers contained long oblimaries and leaders.

The Times said that the world will not be agreed as to the exact nature of Emerson's literary merits, but on all hands it will be admitted that his country has lost a man of Life, when we pause to contemplate the hurrying throng rushing madly through the world, is too brief to spend much of it in pain, especially when a fifty cent bottle of St. Jacobs Oil will afford immediate relief. Millions say so, and they seem to know whereof they speak. The La Fayette (Ind.) Courier, in a late issue, says: Mr. Wendling, who, as much as our readers may know, was a short time ago seriously afflicted with severe sickness, stated that while thus confined to bed for five weeks, during which his left leg was power es, his attention was called to a statement in the Courier of wonderful cures effected by the of wonderful cures effected by the t. Jacobs Oil. He sent for a bottle of this Great German Remedy, and stales that after using the article for but a few days he was on his feet again, and that it entirely cured him. As such information is not only pleasing, but of great interest to every body, we cheerfully give our readers the senefit thereof, and we congratulate our friends on his recovery, and the public on the fact that a reliable cure for one of the most painful of all allments has at last been found.
