BREVITIES.

An old maid, speaking of marriage, says it is like any other disease—while there's life there's hope.

Hard work is the price asked for success, and it can be purchased with no other kind of currency.

A clergyman in New York has come to the conclusion that "science must stop or religion cannot go on."

The late Dean of Lincoln's will bequeathes property valued at $20,000, and is written on a half-sheet of newspaper.

Some young men are a little partial to blue-eyed maidens. Others like black-eyed lasses, but the moneyed girls have the most admirers.

The man who was said to have died of Asiatic cholera, died of cholera morbus, says a New York paper. Well, no doubt he's dead anyhow.

A clergyman was asked whether the members of his church were united. He replied that they were perfectly united—frozen together.

An old lady says that "this going off to be doctored is all well enough if folks are well to start on; but if they are sick she thinks they'd better stay at home."

Virtue consists in making desire subordinate to duty, passion to principle. The pillars of character are moderation, temperance, chastity, simplicity, self-control; its method is self-denial.

"Albany has four hundred dwelling houses and two thousand four hundred inhabitants, all standing with their backs to the street." So we read in a school geography not long ago.

An exchange says: "This is the fifth trout caught this year from the same 'hole,' the total weight of which is six pounds."

"Good," says the Ottawa Citizen, "now we know what a hole weighs."

Every person, without regard to race, sex or condition, is bound to the streets of the cities and towns of Russia in a state of intoxication, is compelled to work at sweeping the streets during the night of the next day. Here is a valuable hint.

A beet-root distillery has been in operation in England this year with such success that one man is going to plant 800 acres with beets next season. Over 90,000 gallons of spirits were produced this year, and found to be of superior quality for the manufacture of British spirits superior to that produced from grain.

There is more than one way of "talking on the subject of religion," and a better way, evidently, than the old English lady had found whose husband was wasting under a lingering disease. The rector expressed a hope that she sometimes spoke to him of the future.

"I do, indeed, sir. Often and often I was him in the night," says John, John, you little think of the torment as is preparing for you."

The waiters who carry lunches to the rooms at Congress Hall say it would worry a hired man to show away the corned beef and pork and beans that the young ladies of water, rice and sponge cake. Girls who bite a strawberry into four mouthfuls before their beaux get away with a piece of beef as big as a coal-heaver's boot when in their rooms.

There is a sufficient quantity of fermented and distilled liquor used in the United States in one year to fill a canal four feet deep, fourteen feet wide, and one hundred and twenty miles in length. If the victims of the rum traffic were there at for between their suicide at every mile, and one thousand funerals a day. If the drunkards of America could be placed in a grand procession, five abreast, what an army of victims!

Said a very old man, "Some folks are always complaining about the weather, but I am always very thankful when I wake up in the morning and find any weather at all." We may smile at the simplicity of the old man, but still his language indicates a spirit that contributes much to a calm and peaceful life. It is better and wiser to cultivate that spirit than to be continually complaining of things as they are.

We were riding once with a hearty little country lass, when her horse took fright at a bog in a fence corner turned up so as to see his digestive department. There is nothing in this world that will frighten a horse more effectually than that hog-like arrangement. The steed evidently thinks it gotten up to kill horses. On this occasion the cob went off like a shot, and the little girl found a mouth of coal-iron and saddle turned up, and the saddle turned up, and getting into a man's position saw the animal into a fence corner. When we came up our female friend was beside, while that remnant of barbarism called a side-saddle hung under the horse's belly. All very well, but every woman has not that presence of mind and knowledge of horse. Let us hang the side-saddle by cranking it up, and all clothes and have done with the barbarism.—Washington Capital.

In Williamsburg, last night, Joseph Karm, threw a kerosene lamp at his wife, cutting her head, setting fire to her clothing and injuring her so that she has since died.

GREENSBORO, N. C., 11.—Judge Settle addressed a reply mass meeting here, last evening. He claimed they celebrated the greatest political victory ever achieved in the State. The view of the party with no name had been declared, it is that as North Carolina went in August so would the Union in November. It made a better fight than it ever would be able to make again. It fought, however, under a black flag, observing none of the rules of honorable warfare aided by Tammany money and emissaries skilled in all its manipulating of registration books, ballot boxes and election returns. In spite of all, however, the Republicans had elected Caldwell by 2,000 majority, and the executive department of state will be in the hands of an honest man for the next four years, although the Democrats have elected a majority in the legislature.

New York, 11.—A Belize, Honduras, letter of July 24th, says the schooner Lizzie Webster, from New Orleans, was wrecked on the Strand of Cosumel. The inhabitants have taken charge of the cargo, one-third of which was seized by the Yucatan government, one-third was taken by the natives, and the rest was stolen by the natives, who also stole all the clothing and everything belonging to the passengers, fifteen in number, including three ladies. Nobody could be obtained at Belize to go to their relief, on account of the outrageous Mexican laws.

John Brennan, a prominent Brooklyn politician, bitter Melody's nose off in a drunken fight last night.

The frigate Portsmouth, from Rio Janeiro, last night, brought a large number of officers and seamen of the frigate Lancaster.

The United States consul report of the late fracas at Alexandria, Egypt, has been received. The testimony of Gen. Loring, who was present, shows that the United States consul, a nephew of Butler and Wedgell, attempted to murder Campbell. While Gen. Loring was at the office of the chief of police, giving testimony, and demanding the arrest of Wedgell, the latter attempted to draw a revolver and shoot him, and was only prevented from so doing by the police.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., 11.—Ex-President Johnson made a political speech here last evening. He said he was not going for any office, and severely criticized the administration of Grant and said the re-election of Grant would be a great national disaster.

PORTLAND, Me., 11.—Seven dwellings, on Wood St., were burned last evening. Loss, $12,000.

CLEVELAND.—There was the largest political meeting ever held in this city last night, to celebrate the North Carolina election. It is estimated that there were 15,000 persons present.

J. W. Carson, chairman of the Democratic Central Committee, has declared his preference for Grant over Greeley.

WEST INDIES.

KINGSTON, 8.—Advices from Peru, of the 27th ult., state that Gutierrez injured a revolutionist, proclaimed himself dictator, and succeeded President Balta. The people, indignant at the murder, captured Gutierrez, killed him and burned his body. Pardo was then inaugurated president. The insurrection is over.

EUROPEAN.

LONDON, 10.—The following is the full text of the Queen's speech on the prorogation of Parliament: "My lords and gentlemen, the time has arrived when you may properly relinquish the performance of your arduous duties for a term of repose, which has been honorably earned by your devoted assiduity."

"I rejoice to inform you that the controversy which has arisen between our government and the United States, in consequence of the presentation of the American claim for redress of damages under the treaty of Washington, was composed by the spontaneous declaration of the arbitrators, and that you are at the opening of the session. In consequence with your action on the part of the United Kingdom the parliament of Canada has passed the act necessary to give effect to the treaty within the Dominion, all arrangements contemplated by that instrument are, thus, for now in progress, and I reflect with satisfaction that the subjects with which it has dealt no longer offer any impediments to the perfection of concord between two kindred nations."

"Since I addressed you at the commencement of the session I have received from France a formal notice, which would bring to an end the commercial treaty of 1860, and which, however, has indicated a desire for further communication. In any correspondence of this subject I shall be guided by an earnest and anxious desire to secure attention to the claims of my subjects by those friendly feelings which so long united the two countries, and by my conviction of the moral as well as the material benefits derived by each from free intercourse between them."

"I have had great satisfaction in concluding with Germany a treaty in conformity with provisions of previous treaties for the mutual surrender of fugitive criminals. I am engaged in framing similar arrangements with other powers."

"My government has taken steps intended to prepare the way for dealing more effectively with the slave trade on the east coast of Africa. I have cheerfully given my assent to an act of the legislature of Cape Colony for the establishment in 1880 of what is now a generally known and responsible government."

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons, my acknowledgments are due to you for the provision which you have made for the varying exigencies of the public service."

"My lords and gentlemen, although the wants and expectations of the country seem to outstrip every effort of Parliament in its career of legislative improvement, I feel with satisfaction the main additions which you have been enabled to make during the present year to our laws. The act in reference to outrages by the natives in the islands of the Pacific Ocean is well designed, by providing for the easy and effectual prevention and punishment of the offenses at which it is aimed, to promote the ends of humanity and the honor of the empire."

"The act for the localization of the army, which is a step towards a more effective system of the country, will tend to render indispensable aid in extending those improvements which have been approved by Parliament."

"The act which establishes the ballot will assist to secure alike the independence of the voter and the tranquility and purity of elections for members of Parliament. Although the act is unable, during the present session, to mature any measure directed against corrupt practices in the choice of members of the House of Commons, I observe with satisfaction that the subject of municipal elections has had your attention, and that you have presented to me a law which is well calculated to check existing evils, and which provides a tribunal for trying the validity of such elections."

"By the Scottish education act you have made provision for the further extension and the greater efficacy of the training of the young in Scotland, in accordance with the conscientious and deep-rooted convictions of the people and the principles of religious freedom."

"The act establishing a board of local government in Ireland, modeled on the English statute of 71, supplies the machinery for giving effect to many useful laws, and promises to exercise within that portion of the United Kingdom the solid benefits of a popular local institution."

"The measure for the amendment of the act of uniformity, based upon careful enquiry and the sanction of an ascertained consent, has without of force and shock introduced useful modifications into the ancient system of discipline, and has secured the assent of my people are warmly attached."

"The public health act, though it does not embrace all the enactments which could have been desired, has, by the establishment of efficient and duly organized local authorities, done much both for the enforcement of present sanitary laws and for rendering more easy what yet remains to be accomplished in the way of legislative provision on the subject."

"The act regulating the custody and management of the large funds held by court of chancery will relieve numerous classes of persons in that court from the risks of the stock exchange, which they may have heretofore been more or less exposed, and will likewise tend to increase the stability of our financial system."

"I am gratified to find that you have been enabled to supply new securities for the safety and advance of large bodies of my subjects engaged in the great business of the world."

"The enactments embodied in the measure for the regulation of the licensing system constitute a sensible improvement upon the existing law, and I trust the several regulations for the police, which they include, will be found conducive to public order."

"I am able to speak with confidence of the tranquillity and good order in a flourishing condition, and while I cordially congratulate you on the activity of trade and industry, I hope it will be borne in mind that periods of unusually rapid changes in the prices of commodities and in the value of labor are likewise periods when, more than ever, call for the exercise of moderation and forethought."

"In bidding you farewell, I ask you to join with me in acknowledging the abundant mercies of Almighty God and imploring their continuance."
