heavy expense. St. Joseph ward now has not to exceed sixteen families, of some 140 souls. Their dams in the river and canals have cost, since the settlement was made, over sixty thousand dollars. But at last they have got a dam that appears to be a fixture, it has taken a vast amount of labor and material to construct, and the overflow is on to solid rock, yet wherever there was a loose rock the force of the rushing water tumbled it down the stream. At present they are constructing another dam farther down the river to catch the seep water from the big dam; this dam will cost the people about two thousand dollars, but will greatly increase their water supply, as there is quite a lot of water that springs up in the river bed in the two miles between the dams.

The people of St. Joseph are prosperops, with large and comfortable homes. John McLaws, the agent of the Deseret News, is adding an addition to his home. President J. H. Richards is also improving his residence. Some of the young people are preparing to build and take to themselves additional responsibilities.
