FRAGMENTS.

"IN HIS POWER" at the Theatre this evening.

LEAD — [illegible], New York, per 100 lbs., $4.25.

MCCORNICK & Co. to-day received one car Hanauer ore, value, $2,100.

A LARGE number of the Conference visitors are expected here this evening.

ED. BURGOYNE, Esq., a prominent merchant of Montpelier, Idaho, is in the city.

WELLS, FARGO & Co. to-day received Ontario Mining Company's shipments, value, $44,417.

SILVER quotations, corrected daily by Wells Fargo & Co.: New York, 1.02; London, 47d.

THERE will be a "Mikado" rehearsal at Careless' Music Store, at half past seven o'clock this evening.

MR. H. S. WOOLLEY, of the firm of Woolley Brothers, Paris, Idaho, came down on Wednesday evening's train.

THE General Conference at Logan adjourned at noon to-day. We shall publish the remainder of the minutes to-morrow.

BROTHER Rees R. Llewellyn, of Fountain Green, Saupete County, is in town, having returned from Logan last evening, whither he has been attending Conference.

JUDGE ZANE announced in Court this morning that the setting of the civil calendar would be made at 10 a. m. to-morrow, and requested the members of the bar to be in attendance.

A MAN undertook to carry an eight-gallon keg of beer on his shoulders from the Fisher brewery to Wagoner's brewery, on a wager, last night. He gave up his useless task at Eighth East Street.

THE case of the United States vs. O. F. Due, charged with polygamy, and The People vs. Samuel Howells, murder, have been continued until the December term, owing to the absence of counsel for the defendants, Mr. Brown.

THIS morning, as a gentleman was driving out of the Tithing Office yard, one of his horses got across the wagon tongue and did some lively kicking for about ten minutes. Several men who were near by held the animal until it was liberated and quieted down.

ON Tuesday evening a Frenchman named A. Pelletier, of Anaconda, Montana, while on a visit to Butte, was assaulted by two footpads, who beat him severely and robbed him of $7. Pelletier succeeded in retaining his watch and a pocketbook containing $200. The thieves escaped.

LOCAL NEWS.

Benefit Concert.—It has been decided by the Tabernacle choir to give a concert for the benefit of three of its members, who have been called to go on missions to the Sandwich Islands. The concert will be given in the Theatre on the 23rd of this month, on which occasion the Theatre orchestra, the 16th Ward brass band, Mrs. Agnes Thomas, Mrs. Nellie Pugsley and other popular vocalists have kindly consented to take part. The affair promises to be a brilliant success.

Fell in a Fit.—About half-past 5 o'clock this morning, Allen Hilton, the nightwatchman at the Tithing Office, started for home after his night's work. Shortly afterward a newsboy, on his round with morning papers, discovered Mr. Hilton lying close to the wall east of the Eagle Gate, on South Temple Street, in an insensible condition, the left side of his head bruised and cut, and blood oozing from the wounds. The injured man was taken to his home, to receive proper attention, but up to latest accounts this afternoon he had not recovered consciousness.

The means by which Mr. Hilton was brought to his present condition cannot at present be definitely ascertained. It is not probable, however, that any personal attack was made upon him, as nothing about his clothing appeared to have been disturbed. The most reasonable explanation of the affair appears to be that as he was walking along he was attacked by a fainting spell or apoplectic fit, and in falling struck against the rock wall, thereby receiving the injuries to his face.

Evan Stephens in Boston.—By a private letter from Brother Evan Stephens we learn that he is getting along well in his musical studies at the New England Conservatory of Music, in Boston. He says:

"I have been saved one course of four terms by passing a successful examination in 'Harmony,' at the end of the first week. I hope to do the same in 'Counterpoint' at the end of the first term. I study voice training and the piano also under an excellent teacher; have comfortable lodgings, and am feeling quite well. I have many a little chat about 'Mormonism,' with young men, students and others, and I invariably let them know that I am proud to be a Latter-day Saint, and why; and they never seem to think less of me when our chats are over. If they did, I would only be sorry for them, and not myself."

He is very anxious to have his former pupils and other friends in Utah write to him, and they should do so by all means, though it is doubtful whether he will find time in the midst of his studies to correspond with many of them. His address is New England Conservatory, Franklin Square, Boston, Massachusetts.

From the "Old Dominion."—Elder Jens Jensen, of Mendon, and George A. Biglow, of Millville, who returned night before last from a mission to the South, paid us a brief visit yesterday. They started upon their mission on the 27th of February, 1883, and were both assigned to the Virginia conference, where they continued to labor up to the time of being released to return home, the first fourteen months separately and in company with various other Elders, and since that time together. Their experience in the missionary field has been much after the ordinary style. They labored devotedly to sow the Gospel seed, meeting frequently with discouraging circumstances in the shape of total indifference, unreasoning prejudice and more or less active opposition, but being encouraged continually by a consciousness of the divine approval of their labors and by occasionally finding an honest soul willing to receive their testimony and investigate the principles of the Gospel. The people of that State are noted for their hospitality, and the Elders generally get with kind treatment, but in a few instances were obliged to sleep out in the woods because of bitter prejudice preventing them from obtaining lodgings. The prospects generally for proselyting in Virginia are not very bright at present, though in a few districts there is a slight disposition to investigate the truth.

THE HANSEN CASE.

THE USUAL VERDICT OF GUILTY.

In the examination of witnesses in the Hansen case, continued after our report of yesterday, A. C. Jensen testified that he was the father of Anna Katrina Jensen; he came to Utah four years ago; his daughter did not come with him; she came the year before, and was married to Hansen; witness had seen her in Hansen's house in 1884; she lived there; there were two rooms in the house, and a cookstove and bed in each; both women lived in the house; Anna Maria Hansen was defendant's wife.

Cross-examined—Was at Hansen's house about two months since; lived about half a mile from Hansen's; had some trouble with defendant about land; had no desire to put defendant in the penitentiary in order to get the land.

Anna Katrina Jensen was called. She was married to the defendant; there were two rooms in Hansen's house, and Anna Maria Hansen lived in one and witness in the other; witness had lived in the dugout since April 1st; did not know whether Anna Maria was married to Hansen or not; witness' child was born in Hansen's house nine months ago.

The prosecution rested their case.

Frederick H. Hansen, the defendant, was then sworn in his own behalf; he was married to both women, but had not lived with both during the same period; had not occupied Anna Maria's bedroom during the last four years; there was only one bed in his house; had had trouble with the Jenseas about land, commencing April 14th, last.

Cross-examined—Before April last there were not two beds in the house; the child was born in the two-roomed house.

Anna Maria Hansen testified she was the wife of defendant; had not lived with him since July 1883, as his wife; had not lived in the same house with defendant.

Cross-examined—Bossed her husband the same as she did other men when working for her; did not know how he made his living; he worked her farm on shares.

The case was then submitted without argument.

The Court gave its charge to the jury, who went through the formality of retiring, and came back almost immediately with the unchangeable verdict of guilty.

By request of the attorneys for the defense, sentence was deferred until November 5th, to give the defendant time to provide a shelter for his family during the winter.

The Bicycle Races.—The wheelmen of the Salt Lake Bicycle Club to the number of twenty, arrayed in their neat blue uniforms, as per announcement, formed four abreast in front of their club rooms on First West Street Street, about 3 p.m., and, preceeded by the 16th Ward Band, moved to Washington Square, attracting a good deal of favorable criticism by the way. The seats on the bicycle track were well filled with spectators, not to mention a host of youngsters and others who witnessed the races from trees, fences, etc., and any available point of vantage in the vicinity.

The first race, for a gold medal and the championship, was between Wm. Wood, who has won the medal twice and Walter Jennings. It was won by Jennings in two straight heats. The time was 3.11 2-5 and 3.07.

The second race, for a gold medal, was contested by Joseph Wood and Theodore Angell. The latter won in two straight heats, although Wood was not more than two feet behind in either. Time, 3.08 and 3.10.

F. G. Brooks and Lewis Peck were entered in the third class race for a silver medal. Brooks won the first heat in 3.16 4-5, Peck the second and third in 3.25 and 3.21 4-5.

A race that excited a great deal of interest was an amateur handicap between Earl Pembroke, aged 7 years, and David Tribe, aged 9. Master Earl won the first heat of two laps in 1.21, and Master David won the second.

Owing to the facts that a brisk breeze was blowing at the time of the principal races and that some of the boys were a little out of training, the time made was not as fast as at the previous contest.

At the conclusion of the medal races Mr. William Wood, in the presence of several members of the Club, rode Mr. Taylor's patent machine around the track against time, making the lap under a 2.40 rate, and beating his best previous effort by one second.

The Theatre.—The Aldrich Company must have been pleased with the proportions of the assemblage which witnessed the first presentation of "My Partner" at the Theatre last evening; it was what, considering the times, might be termed an "immense house," not full up stairs, but crowded below. The character of "Joe Saunders" in the hands of Mr. Aldrich has a fine interpretation; while not uniformly excellent, still most of the weak points occur in weak places, and there are times when the emotions smouldering in his breast burst forth like the fires of a volcano, electrifying all beholders. His greatest scene beyond all question was that in the cabin, when he finds his partner dead; in nearly all of this act the artist fairly transcended the author and made the piece his own. We thought he under-acted the arrest and marriage scenes—the accusation of the murderer of his friend, and shielding the honor of that friend's affianced wife with the shadow of the scaffold falling upon him, were incidents calculated to stir human passions to their depths. It was a strong performance, however, and the support, while not in any instance so strong, was fair throughout, that of Mr. Buckley (who had but little to do) Mr. Whiting and Miss Goldthwaite being excellent.

To-night, the company appear in their great specialty, "In His Power," a piece for which they were originally cast, and in which all the members of the company will have a better opportunity of displaying their talent than is afforded some of them in "My Partner."

Improvement Associations Reorganized.—The Young Men's Improvement Association of the 16th Ward was reorganized on Tuesday evening, Oct. 6th, for the coming season, when the following named officers were unanimously sustained: president, John H. White; counselors, Peter Howells and William H. Tolhurst; secretary, Joseph Johnson; assistant secretary, John Timpson; organist, A. S. Geddes; assistant, Edwin F. Parry; librarian, Robert S. Haslam; assistant, J. M. Littlewood; treasurer, George Marsden.

The Young Ladies' Association was also organized with the following named officers: president, Sarah Emery; counselors, Mary Ann Harmon and Emma E. Cope; secretary, Belle Lawson; assistant, Lottie Matthews; organist, Phoebe Vincent; treasurer, May Dyer.

Bishop F. Kesler and counselors were present, and made appropriate remarks. A vote of thanks was tendered the retiring officers for faithful and efficient service.

Meeting will be held every Tuesday night at 7:30 p. m., in the school house, the Associations meeting conjointly.

THE jury in the trial of Nicholas B. Miko, indicted for an attempt to murder Alonzo Campbell, in a quarrel over a game of cards, August 18th, 1884, returned a verdict of acquittal this afternoon, in the Third District Court. The theory of the defense was that the stabbing was done in self-defense.

ANOTHER FLAGRANT JUDICIAL OUTRAGE.

INDIVIDUAL GRAND JURORS DISCHARGED BECAUSE THEY WILL NOT FIND A NUMBER OF INDICTMENTS AGAINST CERTAIN PERSONS FOR ONE OFFENSE.

The grand jury came into court at 11.30 to-day, and presented one indictment under the laws of the United States.

Mr. McKay then arose and stated that there was a matter he wished to bring to the attention of the court, which had been discussed informally and otherwise in the grand jury room. At least one member of the grand jury claimed the right to say whether he should find an indictment or not, when at the same time he admitted the evidence sufficient to warrant it, claiming that it would be a usurpation on the part of the grand jury to find an indictment under certain circumstances, notwithstanding the evidence warranted it. Mr. McKay then stated the objection was in relation to finding more than one indictment for unlawful cohabitation in a certain period. The juror referred to said he would do no such thing, in spite of being reminded that his oath required it, under the instructions of the Court. Under the circumstances Mr. McKay thought the juror incompetent.

The court asked for his name and Mr. Clayton was named as the juror.

Mr. Clayton said yes, he was the one, and desired to correct Mr. McKay in one particular. That he had not refused to indict where the evidence warranted. That he had voted for indictment in that case.

Mr. McKay stated that the point he made was that the juror refused to find more than one indictment. The juror assumed to say whether the law was correctly laid down by the Court or not. It was not disputed that the grand juror had a right to say whether the evidence was sufficient or not, but the grand juror claimed that even where the evidence was sufficient, the finding of more than one indictment was unconstitutional; that the law of 1862 fixed the maximum punishment for polygamy, and the Edmunds law showed it to be the intention of Congress to fix the utmost punishment for unlawful cohabitation, it which he termed the "junior" offense; at six months' imprisonment and $300 fine; and to find two or more indictments against a man he might be punished to even a greater extent than for polygamy.

Mr. McKay stated further that there was another juror he asked to have taken off for substantially the same reasons, Mr. Jacob Moritz; and he was informed that there were others.

Mr. Davis stated that in certain cases he had the same opinion as Mr. Moritz.

Mr. Clayton was interrogated by the Court and said he believed it was unconstitutional to find more than one indictment. The Constitution provides that excessive fines or unusual punishments shall not be imposed. He said he did vote for indictment where "the evidence" warranted it, but to go back and find an indictment for every day, or every minute or week, he would not indict. Notwithstanding the evidence showed the defendant had been living in unlawful cohabitation for three years, he would find but one indictment. He had advised with no one, talked with no one, except perhaps his wife.

Mr. Moritz and Mr. Davis thought that where parties had been indicted, tried and convicted, those parties ought to have a chance after they came out, then if they didn't live within the law they were ready to indict them.

The Court then interrogated each of the other jurors as to whether he took the same position, but they all responded in the negative.

Court—Mr. Moritz, Mr. Davis and Mr. Clayton: I am surprised, gentlemen, that after you took the oath you did, that you would investigate and enquire into all the matters that were brought before you, and whenever the evidence was sufficient you would find the truth, and nothing but the truth; that you would not be influenced by fear, favor or affection, or by any reward, or promise or hope thereof, but in all your presentments, you would present the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, that you will state you will not do it.

Clayton—I have stated that I would, and did so.

Court—The effect of your statement is to that effect.

Clayton—I don't understand it that way.

Court—Men must be careful when they take oaths.

Moritz—We had no evidence. We didn't take a vote on it.

Court—But you have no right to state you would not do it. You cannot trifle with your consciences like that in this court. It is astonishing that men have not more regard for their oaths than that. Where the evidence is sufficient you have no discretion whatever. If it is sufficient to indict. You must indict; if it is not sufficient, you cannot indict. You have no more discretion than this Court has when a case is submitted to it. If the evidence is one way, the Court, under its oath cannot find another. If a case is submitted to the Court, if the evidence is with the plaintiff, it cannot find the facts the other way. So with a grand jury; you have not the slightest discretion. You must move directly according to your oaths, and find the truth according to the evidence. You have no right to say you will not indict though the evidence may be sufficient. You have no right to say a law is unconstitutional or wrong after the Court charges you that it is the law. It is the duty of the Court to charge you what the law is with respect to your duties as grand jurors, and has so charged you. Gentlemen, you are excused as unworthy to sit on a grand jury. Next time you come before the Court and are questioned as you were in this case, as members of the grand jury, answer frankly and honestly, and if you go on the grand jury you must be governed by your oaths.

Mr. Moritz, Mr. Davis and Mr. Clayton, you may retire, you are discharged from this grand jury.

This afternoon Mr. McKay made an argument in support of the proposition that the Court had power to fill the vacant places in the grand jury. He read from the decision of the Supreme Court in the Clawson case, affirming the legality of the open venire process in obtaining a petit jury, and contended that it was within the power of the Court to adopt the open venire course in the present instance.

At the close of his remarks, Mr. McKay moved that an open venire issue, and the Court ordered that it be for six names, and be returnable forthwith.

This proceeding was followed, as the 200 names on the jury list were exhausted. The next grand jury, for the December term, will in all probability, as a consequence, be made up entirely by the open venire process, when there will be no question as to the crusaders obtaining a body of inquisitors to their liking in every report.

Upon the return of the open venire, J. S. Scott, J. T. Clasbey and A. Gebhardt were selected to fill up the grand jury, which it is now anticipated will be better adapted for the purposes of persecution.

Death at Mountain Dell.—We regret to learn of the death of the eldest daughter of Brother W. W. Taylor, of Mountain Dell, which occurred this morning. She was at Sunday School and meeeting on Sunday last, apparently in perfect health, but on Monday was taken ill with inflammation of the bowels, from which she suffered excruciatingly until death relieved her. She was a bright promising girl, and her death has cast a gloom over the little village in the cañon, in and, fact, over her acquaintances elsewhere as far as the news of her demise has extended. We extend our condolence to the bereaved parents.

On Sunday morning the body of an unknown man was found in the Wilson irrigating ditch, about half a mile west of Ogden City. A boy named Wm. Hill made the discovery. The water where the dead man was found was only a foot deep. A coroner's inquest was held, the jury finding that the deceased came to his death by drowning, and expressing a belief that the unfortunate man was insane at the time of the sad occurrence. There was no clue to his identity, there being in his pockets a pocket knife, watch key, valise key, two pairs of spectacles, a red morocco pocket book, and a card on which was printed the name of James H. Nounnan, of this city. He appeared to be about 60 years of age, sandy complexion, had chin whiskers and light mustache, was about five feet eight inches in height, and was dressed in black clothing.
