When we visited the Territorial Fair this morning we found the colections in the various departments argely increased, but still, in most Whilst viewing the department devoted to indies' work we were almost bewildered with the numerous specimens of useful and ornamental work here exhibited; and we feel flames could be seen shooting high satisfied that the awarding comwhere so much is worthy of conmany cases, where there is scarcely any choice in the material, in the workman-hip or in the taste displayed by the fair exhibitors. There are specimens of embroidery in silk and worsted, of tatting, of crochet, of braiding, of knitted work, of ome-made straw hats and bonnets and quilts, ottoman covers curtains anti-macussars and a thousand and ne articles of taste and ornament with which the ladies know so well how to adorn their persons and their homes. Nor must we forget the cases, etc., of wax flowers, whose beauties elicited many comendations. The displays of dressmaking and millinery are very conspicuous portions of this depart-We were particularly pleased with the numerous samples of work-embroidery, knitting, crothet, wax flowers, etc., marked as the results of the industry of young ladies of very tender years. On the other hand we noticed a pair of leather gloves, labeled, "Made by Mrs. Simmons, aged 81 years," and some beautiful specimens of lace edging, collars, etc., the work of "Margaretha Johnson, of the 20th Ward, 70 years old."

Since our visit yesterday we no-ticed the following additional col-lections, which we deem worthy of special notice he work of Mess. Devey & Son of exhibition is equally fine, though it does not show the marked im-provement noticeable in the other classes of live stock. Classes of live stock.

The art and mineral department has received several additions since yesterday, among which is a splendid oil painting of Box Elder Kanyon, which takes in a bird's eye view of the Salt Lake. It is well painted, showing much strength and power of style in the artist, whose name is Carl Dahlerson.

Mr. Nathaniel Spence exhibited taken for the genuine article. This was particularly the case with the imitations of Californian laurel wood, which, both in point of color and character, would be difficult to surpass.

It is a matter of regret that Messrs Morris & Son did not exhibit in this line this year, as their reputation as first class artists is well established. An apprentice of theirs, a young lad, named William Lloyd, had some good panels on display, which, considering the age of the artist, were highly creditable. An imitation of oak was especially good.
