PARADE IN OGDEN. All Labor Unions Represented and Many Floats Are in Line. (Special to the "Nows.") Ogten, Sept. 7.—The Vrade this morning was of mammoth dimensions being one of the largest that has ever been held here. All the labor unions were represented and the floats were many and the decorations were char-acteristic of the occasion. After the parade the crowd went to Glenwood park. Here addresses were given by prominent city and county officials. The train bringing Engene B. Debs did not arrive at 12:15 o'clock as was ex-pected but he will arrive in tifae to deliver an address at Glenwood park at 2 p. m. o'clock. During the after-noon there will be two base ball games. The first between the Elks olub and the Labor Assembly club and the sec-ond between Salt Lake and Ogden at the fair grounds.

that to freedom and self-government. The jury system must be preserved and we cannot hope to preserve it, if, for any reason or under any pretext, we permit any clizen to be denied the protection which it furnishes. According to the declaration of in-dependence, governments are institut-ed among men to secure to them the enjoyment of their inailenable rights. Among these indicable rights.

ed among men to secure to them the enjoyment of their inallenable rights. Among these inallenable rights, three are specifically enumerated-life, lib-erty and the pursuit of happiness. The second and third, however, are really parts of the first, for life means noth-ing to the individual if it is confined to mere animal existence. Man is dis-tinguished from the brute in that the latter merely eats and sloops and dles, while man is endowed by the Creator with infinite possibilities. Liberty is necessary for the realization of man's possibilities. His conscience must be left free that he may fix for himself the relation between himself and his God. His mind must be left free that he may devise and plan for himself, for his family and for his fellows. His speech must be free that he may give to the world the results of his inves-tigations and present to others the ideal which he is teving to realize in his to the world the results of his inves-tigations and present to others the ideal which he is trying to realize in his work. His pen must be free that he may scatter seed thoughts to the utter-most parts of the earth and leave to posterity a record of his work. He finds in government the cheapast, as well as in government the cheapest, as well as the surest, protection of this liberty, to be, to think, to speak, to act.

WHAT IS HAPPINESS?

And what constitutes the pursuit of happiness? Man must have home and friends—family and society. He must have food or he will starve. He must have clothing and shelter; he must have food or he will starve. He must have clothing and shelter; he must have books, he must have instruments with which to work. He must provide during the period of strength for the years when age dulls his energies and benumbs his hands. He may have am-bition he may have suffluences to work bition, he may have willingness to work and to environment that spurs him on; but the government may encourage or it may discourage his efforts. Governnent may bid him hope or leave him to ave, and yet, insteau of being culti-vated like the valley of the Nile, vast stretches of territory lie untilled. Why? I was told that under the reign of the suitan the toiler is not protected in the enjoyment of the fruits of his toil. If the farmer plants and tends his crops, the roaving Bedouins will sweep down on the southern entrance to the proposed stockade, and numerous small this country, it is always necessary to be on the watch to keep the instrumen-talities of government from being turn-ed to private galn. One of the great problems of today is to secure an equitable distribution of the proceeds of toil. The material wealth of this country is largely a joint product; in factories few people work alone, and on the farm a certain amount of co-operation is necessary. Where men work together, the army organization applies to some degree; that is, some direct, others are directed. The difficulty has been to divide the re-sults fairly between the captains of industry and the privates in the ranks. As the dividing is done largely by the captains, it is not unnatural that they should magnify their part and appro-priate too large a share; neither is it unnatural that there should be com-plaint on the part of the toilers who think that their recompense is insuf-ficient.

New York, Sept. 7.--A perfect autumn day with cloudless skies, cool invigorating air, gave labor's hosts the opportunity of a generation today, and they made the most of it. Forty thousand strong, they marched from early morning until mid-fifthoon through thronged streets. At the same time, hundreds of less fortunates who had banded themselves under the banner of the unemployed, were participating in a counter demonstra-tion. They, too, met cheers at almost every stride as they trudged over the long route from City Hall park to Cooper Union. The holiday through-out the city was practically general and hundreds of thousands taking ad-vantage of the delightful weather, crowded the streets.

question of distribution, and the le gislation asked for is legislation which will secure to each that to which his services entitle him. As legislation is secured through the ballot every one services entitle him. As legislation is secured through the ballot every one should use the ballot to obtain the leg-islation necessary. The Democratic platform presents the ideal toward which the Democratic party is striving, namely, justice in the distribution of rewards. The Democratic party pro-claims that each individual should re-ceive from society a reward for his toll commensurate with his contribu-tion to the welfare of society, and un-less some other party can do the work better, the Democratic party ought to have the support of all, whether they belong to the wage-earning class or oc-cupy positions in which they direct the efforts of others. If an officer in the in-dustrial army were sure that his chil-dren and his children's children would inherit his position, he might feel pos-sibly indifferent as to those under his command, but the children of those who, today, work for wages may em-ploy the children of those who, in this generation, are employers. This un-certainty as to future generations, as well as our sense of justice, should lead us to make the government as nearly perfect as possible, for a good govern-ment is the best legacy that a parent can leave to his child. Riches may take the wings of the morning and fly away, but government is permanent, and we cannot serve posterity better away, but government is permanent, and we cannot serve posterity better than by contributing to the perfection of the government, that each child born into the world may feel that it has here an opportunity for the most complete development, and a chance to secure, through service, the largest possible happiness and honor.

ROBERTS' DEFENSE OF FAITH AND THE SAINTS.

T IS A CHOICE COLLECTION from Elder Roberts' discourses, magazine articles, and public lectures during the last twenty seven years of his public ministry. Every young man who would make himself familiar with the controversies in which the Church has been involved in consequence of the assaults made upon its faith and people should read this book.

READ The Presentation of the Mormon Faith to the World's Parliament of Religions.

READ The review of Harry Leon Wilson's Book, "The Lions of the Lord.

READ The Overwhelming Answer to Senator Thomas Kearns Speech Arraigning the Mormon Church on the Floor of the United States Senate.

READ The Church and State Papers.

READ The Articles in Defense of the Book of Mormon; and Elder Roberts' Exposition of the Manner of Translating the Book of Mormon.

READ The Doctrinal and Historical Articles: "The Lord's Day," "Anglican Orders," "Revolution or Reformation," "Revelation and Inspiration."

These are but a few of the papers in the very valuable collection, and yet they indicate something of the large scope covered by the book.

No man, young or old, interested in Mormonism, can afford to be without this latest, and in many respects, Elder Roberts' most interesting book. It will make a most acceptable present for your son (daughter at home, for your son on a mission, for your non-Mormon friend, and neighbor, for your non-Mormon friend in the East, or West, or North, or South.
