DOLLIVER'S DEFENSE.

Senator Dolliver, opening his remarks with a defense of his course as a Republican in contending for lower cus-toms duties, denied the right of other Republican senators to question his position in the senate, a position which he said was dictated by his conscience 'It has not been my fortune," "to enjoy that mutual good will that should meet the efforts of a senator to change the tariff laws of the United States.

The people of his state, he added, had been referred to as "farm folk" while the state itself had been declared to be unreliable, given to populism and greenbackism. Iowa, he insisted, had always been loyal to Republican stan-dards and still was upholding the best interests of the protective policy "Here," he added, "we have had the spectacle of men compelled to bargain with the authorities which control the senate for the protection of their own people. Majorities are obtained by a system of reciprocity arranged in the citadel of protection."

IMPORTERS TRYING TO HURRY UP INCOMING SHIPS

New York, Aug. 5 .-- An interesting phase in the tariff situation is that importers are besieging the offices of the Marconi and United Wireless telegrapha companies with messages urging skippers at sea to make haste portward in order to beat the new tariff bill and scape the added duties which it would inpose. There are thousands of casks of fine wines and brandles now on the impose. My advice to the peo-ple is to look at the bottoms of their milk bottles before they use the milk or after and if dirt is found to quit the dairy and try again or fall back on condensed milk. If looking for dirt in a full bottle, hold it above the head in a good light after it has stood awhile and avoid jarring it, then look up at the bottom of the bottle and if it is dirty it is not a safe food. David N. Carvalho, the handwriting expert who sat by Thaw during the first from Stanford White were submitted to him at that time and he pronounced them genuine. The witness told of Thaw's having discussed with him a letter alleged to have been written by White to a girl whom Mr. Carvalho mentioned as whom Mr. May." The Thaw had said this girl told him she had burned the letter because she feared if her father saw it he would kill both White and her. The letter was admitted in evidence against the pro-test of Dist, Atty. Jerome, who ex-pressed regret that such testimony should be brought out.

WHITE'S LETTER.

The letter was dated April 11 and was as follows

"I am the most awfullest fraud when it comes to letter writing. It is no use. I have what Peter Dooling calls "writephobla," and a bad case at that. I am glad you are having such good time. A doze of hope after all is the best medicine any of us can take. Whatever you do, however, do not come back prettier or more alluring than you were, for under those circumstances I could not be responsible for my actions and then there would be 'real trouble.' "By the way, when is that fall boat going to sail? "The social whirl has opened and is really quite good.

"Seriously, when are you coming back? LOVINGLY." back? LOVINGLY." Instead of a name, the letter was signed with what the witness described as a hand opened with what looked like porcupine quills extending from it. Jerome explained that this was Stanford White's regular signatures in let-ters to his friends.

Mr. Carvalho then took up the "Sue Parker episode."

He said that a woman of this name made a sworn statement after the events alleged to have taken place between her and White. She produced a bundle of letters which she said White had written her and offered them for sale to Thaw's attorneys for $5,000 The letters were finally bought, the witness said, for $500, with the understanding that the owner was to receive $500 more if they could be used at the first trial.

A RUINED GIRL.

The woman's affidavit, Mr. Carvalho said, described in detail how White had first met her when she was 17 years old and later taken her to place known as the "Eagle's Nest," giver her wine and either ruined her or at tempted to. Asked why she was willing to tell this story regarding a man who, after all, had been kind to her, Mr. Carvalho testified that the girl Mr. said:

"He has taken from me more than I ever got from him, and now that he is dead, and I am destitute, I feel justified in selling the letters for what I can get." Thaw took the stand long enough to identify the letters as having been given to him. When Mr. Carvalho resumed he testified that he had told Thaw he believed these letters were White's and that in a measure they substantiated Miss Parker's story. Cross-examined by Mr. Jerome, Mr. Carvalho admitted there was noth-ing obscene in the Parker letters, noth-

the manner of her downfall. He said Thaw told him that White treated the woman named very courteously until he learned she was not a woman of loose character and then he wanted to ruin her.

Answering a question, Mr. Carvalho said he received no compensation for appearing as a witness for Thaw, not even his expenses. "I declined to re-ceive any compensation," he said. Mr. Carvalho finished with the state ment that Thaw during their associations in the trial impressed him as rational. Edward Robinson, who had charge of the Poughkeepsie jail during Thaw's confinement there declared that the prisoner's wife spent from two to five hours with him during her num-erous calls and that they seemed to be friendly
