BREVITIES.

Gifts break through stone walls.
He is the best scholar who has learned to live well.

A handful of mother-wit is worth a bushel of learning.

Enjoy what little you have, while the fool is looking for more.

The shortness of life is often owing to the irregularity of the liver.

It is better to encourage what is right than to punish what is wrong.

Truth is as impossible to be soiled by any outward touch as the sunbeam.

Fancy and humor early indulged may expect an old age overrun with follies.

Nearly four thousand persons are said to have starved to death in London last year.

You had better leave your enemy something when you die than live to beg of your friends.

Five women are editors of papers in Iowa. An exchange remarks that woman has some of her "writings" in that State.

A smart young lady in reply to an inquiry why she did not get married, said it was because she was unable to support a husband.

Deer were never so plenty in Wisconsin as now. They go into the settlements every day, and may be shot on the street corners, and often run with the flocks of sheep for days together.

Witchcraft is having a revival in Mexico, where women are hanged, shot and burned to death on suspicion, or dragged until they confess, their own children taking part in the infliction of the torture.

An Irishman being asked what he came to America for, said, "Is't what I come here for, ye mane? Arrah, by the powers! ye may be sure it wasn't for want, for I had plenty of that at home."

"Mother," said a lad, "is it wrong to break egg-shells?" "Certainly not, my dear," said the mother, "but why do you ask such a silly question?" "Because I have just dropped the basket with all the eggs in it, and a pretty mess I've made of it."

A very good woman, though somewhat given to worldly vanities, was lamenting the loss of a child (one of a family of eight) "because," said she, "that was just enough for a cottillion, and they did dance so very pretty."

During a storm recently, a lady was sitting near the fire-place in her residence, at Sharpsville, Tipton County, Ind., holding a child on her knee. A bolt of lightning ran down the chimney of the house, and struck both mother and child dead upon the spot.

A poet says, "there is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune," etc. The trouble with many is that they get stuck in the mud at low watermark, and are thus overwhelmed by the sweeping tide. They are unaware of the fact that have walked into the spider's parlor.

Chief Justice Chase recently ruled on a case at Baltimore, that Government could not collect income tax from foreigners who hold our bonds, and that what has been collected must be refunded. The Internal Revenue Bureau is preparing regulations to carry out this decision. Several hundred thousand dollars will be taken out of the Treasury for this purpose.

A Quaker had a quarrelsome neighbor whose cow, being suffered to go at large, often broke into the Quaker's well-cultivated garden. One morning, having driven the cow from his premises to her owner's house, he said to him:

"Friend T., I have driven thy cow home once more, and if I find her in my garden again—"

"Suppose you do," his neighbor angrily exclaimed, "what will you do?"

"Why," said the Quaker, "I will drive her to thee again, friend T."

The cow never troubled him again.

Mr. C— was in the habit of asking his children to repeat the text on their return from church, to prove that they gave attention. One Sabbath the text was, "Why stand ye here all the day idle? Go into the vineyard and work, and whatever is right I will pay thee." Charlie came home and was asked to repeat the text. He hesitated a moment and then as if it just came to him after much thought, he said:

"What are you standing round here doing nothin' for? Go into my barnyard and go to work, and I'll make it all right with you."

All persons bitten by mad dogs do not die. A French King once ordered that whenever it happened that a number of persons should be bitten at one time by a rabid dog, they should be seized and put in a hospital until the result in each case could be known. Shortly after this twenty persons were bitten at one time, by a rabid dog which passed through a lane, and the King's orders were carried out. Every one of the persons bitten was placed in the hospital, but not one of them died.

At Lawrence, Mass., about six weeks ago, a resident, who had been sick for some time, told his friends a dream that he had the night before. It was that he was very soon to leave this world, and take with him his grandson, then a healthy boy at school. About two weeks after the lad was taken sick, and the grandfather was so firmly convinced that his dream would be fulfilled, that he warned those about him that medicine would do the boy no good. The lad died a day or two ago, notwithstanding all efforts to save him, and his relative remarked that he should follow him in a few hours. He died the next day.
